The Postmaster's Fleet With Hoover, Sincerity The Pope on Education Charlie Boston Leaves

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1930, King Features Synd., Inc.

MR. BROWN, Postmaster-General, suggests a $76,-000,000 program to build a fleet of North Atlantic super-ships for American passengers and mail.

The Postmaster demands "a service which could compete with any foreign flag service on the North Atlantic.

Americans will congratulate Postmaster Brown and President Hoover on that proposition, and hope that they will not only compete with, but eclipse, every foreign service on the North Atlantic and everywhere else.

Why should a country with the best engineers, from the President down, and with more money than anybody else, ever play second fiddle, on the ocean or in the air?

President Hoover believes "the great majority wish him full success," and he is right. Whoever does not wish him success is a poor American.

But to wish the President success, to respect his ability, and honor his devotion to public welfare, does not, necessarily, involve agreement with all methods.

The President believes in commissions, "boards" of inquiry. They are useful. No man can be in several places at once.

But the greatest leaders, while they have appointed commissions, have done their own deciding, taking all responsibility, from Genghis Khan, conquering through Asia and Europe, to Theodore Roosevelt, building the Panama Canal, regardless, when he made up his mind that it ought to be built.

Cromwell let Milton write letters for him. But Cromwell told Milton what to say, and he signed them "Cromwell."

An important encyclical published by the Pope in the Observatore Romano denounces the "new naturalism" taught in schools, which denies "the supernatural Christian agency."

No education can be sound, the Pope says, if it is founded on negation of original sin.

The Pope condemns coeducation and sexual education.

The church, according to the Pope, is supreme in education, taking precedence over the family and the state.

The Pope disagrees with Mussolini, who puts the state first in everything.

The late Charlie Boston, New York Chinese merchant, head of an important "tong" and doubtless in heaven at this moment, neglected no precautions.

Two Chinese bands accompanied him to the grave to keep away evil spirits, and bits of paper were scattered along the route, perhaps with prayers written on them, to frighten the evil spirits more thoroughly. Two Chinese bands should have sufficed.

Rice, wine and chicken were placed in Mr. Boston's grave with the body, that he might need nothing.

A Presbyterian clergyman, Chinese, read the Christian burial service.

It was planned to have a Taoist priest go through a Chinese ceremony to make sure, but no Taoist priest could be found.

Behind the two Chinese bands marched an Italian band, which played sad dirges.

Few arrive at the heavenly gates with such a good start.

A Long Island company will run "Seeing New York Airplanes," charging passengers one cent a pound for the fat man, $1 for the thin girl. That will help aviation and encourage temperate eating.

Stephen Harkness, public spirited Yale graduate, heir to a gigantic fortune, agrees to complete Yale's dormitory plan, involving five new triangles, to cost about $25,000,000.

Mr. Harkness has already given $12,000,000 to Harvard.

It is a good thing to have many drops of water collected at Niagara. Dropping together, they produce power.

It is a good thing to have many millions collected in one bank account. Like Niagara's drops, those dollars have power that small groups of dollars lack.

Columbia College, in New York, decides to approve the German language in spite of the war. Hereafter French and German will rank above Spanish and Italian in requirements for the bachelor's degree.

It was idiocy, war or no war, to discourage study of a language that, alone, makes Goethe, Schiller, and Heine accessible. . . .

REPORT BILL TO TRANSFER DRY FORCE

Measure Puts Prohibition Under Direction of the Attorney-General

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—The first concrete move to carry out the recommendations of President Hoover and the law enforcement commission for a realignment of prohibition forces, came today with the introduction of the administration bill to provide for the transfer of the dry unit from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice.

He said hearings would be arranged on the measure soon with a view to reporting out the bill in the near future.

Speaker Longworth had referred to the expenditures committee that phase of the recommendations of President Hoover and the National Law Enforcement Commission dealing with the proposed transfer.

Williamson said the bill "is in line with the recommendation of the President."

NO HOLD VETO POWER

"If enacted into law," he said in explaining the measure, "all that part of the bureau now in the treasury department having to do with the enforcement of the prohibition act, including the field service, will be transferred to the department of justice.

"The granting of permits and the administration of the internal revenue law will remain in the treasury. The attorney-general, however, may exercise what amounts to a veto power in the matter of issuing permits under regulations to be prescribed jointly by the attorney-general, and the Secretary of the Treasury. It was thought that as the attorney-general will be charged with direct responsibility for enforcement, he should have a voice in the matter of granting permits."

"From the very first," he said, "it was perfectly patent that the 18th amendment and the Volstead act would become a bone of bitter contention and that enforcement would be very difficult.

"The department of justice is the only agency of the government that is at all equipped to deal effectively with the problem.

BIG REFORM SEEN

"I believe that the lodgment of enforcement in a single agency, with the responsibility definitely fixed, will result in wholesale reforms both in personnel and methods that will put vigor and teeth into enforcement. If further legislation necessary, Congress stands ready to aid."

The expenditures committee chairman said no controversy had arisen between department heads with respect to the proposed transfer.

"On the contrary," he continued,

Bill Asks Repeal of DryLaw

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—A bill "to reduce crime and general discontent and resentment on the part of law-abiding American people against intolerable conditions," by repealing the national prohibition act, was introduced today by Rep. Sabath, Democrat, Illinois.

"By the adoption of the bill," Sabath said, "beer and wines could be prescribed and used for medicinal purposes legally under the Volstead act, thereby reducing crime and the general discontent and resentment against the present intolerable conditions as described by President Hoover, Secretary of Treasury Mellon and Atty.-Gen. Mitchell in their reports and by the National Law Enforcement Commission."

TUNNEY PASSES RESTFUL NIGHT

New York, Jan. 14 (INS)—Gene Tunney, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, who underwent a successful operation at the Presbyterian Hospital for a kidney ailment, passed a restful night and was reported "in splendid condition" today.

The strength and stamina of Tunney stood him in good stead during and after the operation, his physicians said. A rapid recovery was predicted and Tunney may leave the hospital in two or three weeks.

Fear that he might lose his right kidney was dispelled for the former ring king with the success of the operation.

Tunney, who was accompanied to the hospital by his wife, the former Polly Lauder, joked and laughed up to the moment he was placed in the hands of the anesthetist.

A stone about the size of a bean was removed. The stone had bothered Tunney for about two months.

King Boris Drives Royal Train Engine

Trento, Italy, Jan. 14 (AP)—King Boris of Bulgaria was at the throttle of the royal train which is taking him back from Rome to Sofia when it reached here.

At Rovereto, King Boris, who is a master engineer, asked permission to take the locomotive himself as far Trento. The train personnel marveled at his skill.

Prince Cyril and Princess Eudonia were also on the train, which was provided him by the Italian government when he came to Rome to be present at the wedding of Prince Humbert and Princess Marie Jose of Belgium.

Royal Couple on Island Honeymoon

Rome, Jan. 14—Crown Prince Humbert and the new Princess of Piedmont have left Rome on their wedding trip to the Isle of Capri. The young couple are making the journey to the famous Mediterranean island resort on a destroyer of the Italian navy.

Earlier reports had it that they would spend their honeymoon at the royal country villa of San Rossore, near Pisa. The decision to go to Capri was a last-minute change of mind on the part of the bride, the former Princess Marie Jose of Belgium.

Mary C. Sears Left Nearly 6 Millions

A valuation of $5,886,309.88 has been placed upon the estate, both real and personal, of the late Mary C. Sears, formerly of Beacon st., who died in September.

The figures were filed today in Suffolk Probate Court by officials of the New England Trust Co. and E. Bobier Welch, executors of the will. All of the property has been left to her children and close relatives.

BODIES OF LOST FLIERS FOUND IN WOODS

Watch Identifies One Victim of Crash at Lake Amston

Amston, Ct., Jan. 14 (AP)—A watch initialled "W. K.," found on the body of an aviator, officially identified this afternoon the wreckage of the plane which crashed on the shore of Lake Amston as the missing Fairchild cabin monoplane.

The plane left Farmingdale, L. I., Friday morning with Test Pilot William Kirkpatrick and Daniel Marra in it.

Out of the wreckage which had been swept by fire which had charred the bodies of Two men lying beside or under it came nothing else to aid in identification, and Medical Examiner Cyrus Pendleton, while withholding an official opinion, noted that "W. K." were the initials of the name of one of the missing fliers.

Rowley said it appeared as if the plane had attempted to land on a field bordering the lake. The plane, he said, had apparently flown low over a woods to get to the field, struck a large oak tree at the edge of the woods and then had turned over.

State officials were notified of the discovery of the plane and hastened to the scene. Amston is a small village in the northeastern section of the state, about 10 miles west of Willimantic.

HOOVER IS HELD GUILTLESS IN SUGAR LOBBY

Senate Probers Rap Cuban Concerns, but Absolve the President

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—President Hoover was absolved today by the Senate Lobby Investigation Committee of any impropriety in connection with negotiations with Cuban and American sugar interests charged against the chief executive in testimony before that group.

Reporting to the Senate, the committee asserted addition that a "reprehensible" effort had been made to stir up Latin-American antagonism against the United States by those opposing an increased tariff on sugar.

It listed the total expenditures of those for and against such an increase at more than $400,000. The committee said that $175,000 to $200,000 was spent by those favoring increased duties, and $200,000 by those opposed.

With reference to testimony that President Hoover had sought to bring about an agreement among the sugar interests on a sliding scale of sugar duties, for incorporation in the pending tariff bill, the committee said that "in all this, your committee finds no impropriety nor anything open to censure or criticism."

Referring to the employment of Edwin P. Shattuck, New York attorney, by H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Company, to advocate a low sugar duty, the report said:

"It is undeniable that those procuring his services labored under the belief that he was an intimate friend of the President of the United State, with whom he came into contact while serving with the sugar equalization board.

"At least, Lakin, in a voluminous correspondence, again and again asserted that he, Shattuck, sustained

TOOK POLICE TO SCENE OF TROY'S DEATH

Vanished After Shooting, but Reappears at Police Headquarters to Tell Story

A South Boston girl will be a material witness in the trial of James Threadgill, charged with the murder of Patrolman James J. Troy of Station 6, South Boston, it was learned today.

She is Mrs. Bessie Gordon of West Seventh st., South Boston, who led police to the house where Patrolman Troy was shot to death, and who told officers that the robbery suspect they sought had threatened to "shoot his way out."

Mrs. Gordon, also known as "Nonie," told police, they say, that she had seen a gun in the possession of the robbery suspect on several occasions.

The girl, who is barely 19, was said to have been a friend of Clarence LaCours, 25, of West Eighth st., South Boston, who hanged himself with his belt in a cell in the Athens st. station after he was accused of a number of robberies.

VANISHED AFTER KILLING

It was learned that Mrs. Gordon led Capt. Martin King, Sergt. Jeremiah O'Neill and Officer Troy of the Athens st. station to Dilworth st. and pointed out the house where LaCours' alleged accomplice was lurking.

She remained outside while the police entered the house, and after Troy was shot to death she disappeared.

In company with Capt. King and Sergt. O'Neill she visited headquarters today, but when her presence was discovered by newspapermen she was whisked away in an automobile.

The South Boston police investigation of a number of robberies led them to Mrs. Gordon following the suicide of LaCours in his cell.

Police say she told them she visited LaCours' house in Dilworth st. on two different occasions and saw a gun there. Once the gun was in a box near the icechest and the second time was in the possession of LaCours' accomplice, the woman said, according to the police.

They quote her as asking him:

QUOTES HIS THREAT.

"Why are you keeping that thing?" to which he is alleged to have replied:

"Well, they got LaCours and before he committed suicide he apparently spilled all he knew and told about me. If any cop comes after me I'll shoot my way through and to hell out."

With Troy's widow about to become a mother in their modest home at 114 Brook st., East Boston, police and the district attorney were working rapidly to put the alleged slayer on trial.

Medical Examiner Timoth, Leary performed an autopsy on the body of the slain policeman and took a .32 calibre bullet from where it had entered under the left shoulder. The bullet passed through the aorta or heart muscle.

Dr. Leary said the bullet was consistent with the theory that it was fired from the gun found when Threadgill was arrested.

HELD WITHOUT BAIL

Threadgill, heavily manacled, was brought from headquarters, where he had been fingerprinted and photographed, to municipal court, where he was arraigned on a charge of murder. He waived examination and was held without bail for the grand jury.

Bishop Babcock, Auto Victim, Near Death

As the condition of the Rt. Rev. Samuel G. Babcock, suffragan bishop for this Episcopal diocese, improved today at City Hospital, the hospital telephone operators were swamped with calls from friends making inquiries for him.

According to the operators two out of three calls received through the board were inquiries for the bishop, who was struck by an automobile last night at Stuart and Clarendon sts.

Today, with his wife seated beside his bed, Bishop Babcock was more comfortable although, because of his advanced years, his condition is still deemed critical.

Effects of the shock on his system are what the surgeons fear most, and there exists the possibility that he may have suffered a fractured skull.

X-ray pictures of the head will be made as soon as Bishop Babcock gains strength sufficient to allow his removal to the X-ray room.

The elderly prelate has a fractured nose, concussion of the brain and a deep gash over the right eye. In addition he was shaken up considerably.

Mrs. Babcock, after remaining at her husband's bedside until an early hour today, went home for a brief sleep, then returned to the hospital and resumed her vigil.

Bishop Babcock was injured as he was crossing Clarendon st., on his

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Roland Nutt, son of Col. L. G. Nutt, head of the federal narcotic enforcement throughout the United States, arrived at the federal building today in answer to a Grand Jury subpoena.

He is expected to be a witness in the inquiry into the activities of three rings which are said to control illicit drug trade in Manhattan and the Bronx.

FLOOD VICTIMS IN FLIGHT

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 14 (AP)—Weather Bureau forecasts of flood stages along the St. Francis river in Arkansas and along the White river, near Clarendon, Ark., were broadcast today as the rainfall which has been in progress during the past week continued in the lower Mississippi Valley.

Farm lands in Kentucky, Arkansas and Tennessee already have been inundated by rain-swollen streams and several hundred families have been forced to quit their homes.

Big lake in Arkansas still is rising, sandbags have been sent there from the United States engineers offices here and the levees are being patrolled. These levees guard valuable land and many towns.

Farm lands are under one to five feet of water in the Trumann, Ark., area with the St. Francis and all drainage ditches still rising. Some

RUM KILLINGS TOLD TO JURY

Providence, Jan. 14—Eight witnesses, including the lone survivor, were heard today in the first session of the Grand Jury investigation into the killing by coast guards of three men aboard the rum runner Black Duck.

When the grand jury recessed there were still nine more witnesses to be heard.

In addition to Charles Travers, only surviving member of the Black Duck crew, a leading witness at the first session was Dr. Samuel Adelson, medical examiner, of Newport.

Travers was before the jurors for 45 minutes and Dr. Adelson for 20. Coast guards of the patrol boat 290, from which the fatal shots were fired, were other witnesses.

The grand jury was reconvened for the probe under special arrangements supervised by Asst. Atty.-Gen. Benjamin McLyman.

Before the jury began deliberations, they were addressed in Superior Court by Judge Capotosto, who reminded them of their oath.

Although the witnesses told their stories behind closed doors it was intimated that in the event of manslaughter indictments against the Coast Guard these would be made public immediately.

of Threadgill was promised by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley today.

Troy was shot to death in the South End as he was about to place Threadgill under arrest as a suspect in a number of robberies.

Within an hour the alleged slayer, run to earth in a Batavia st., apartment, was arrested by Supt. Crowley who headed a detail in one of the most rapidly organized man hunts in the history of the police department.

Only the speed with which they accomplished the capture prevented Threadgill from again using the alleged murder weapon which was found in his pocket, police say.

The slaying took place a few minutes before Patrolman Troy was to finish his tour of duty and return to his home where four small children were awaiting him.

CROWDED HOUR

Troy, with Capt. King and Sergt. O'Neill of the Athens st. station, had gone to a Dilworth st. house to arrest Threadgill as a suspect for robbery in Taunton and a burglary in South Boston.

On arriving at the house, the policemen were informed by Mrs. Threadgill that she had not seen her husband for two weeks. Troy was assigned by Capt. King to guard the rear door, O'Neill the front door, while the captain himself was to search the building.

Capt. King walked upstairs to the apartment occupied by Harry Powers and rapped on the door. Receiving no response he listened and heard footsteps. Then he knew that his man was inside.

King demanded that Threadgill surrender, threatening to use his gun if the suspect failed to comply. When this failed to get results, the captain then began to break in the door.

He had nearly accomplished his task, when he heard a shot, then another, from the rear of the building. King raced downstairs in time to see Sergt. O'Neill carrying "Jimmy," as Troy was known, through the door from the rear piazza. Troy died in the sergeant's arms.

Captain King flashed word to police headquarters, and an intensive manhunt was immediately launched.

Sergt. O'Neill, dazed by the sudden turn of events, remained with Patrolman Troy until it was too late to get the man. Then he did rush to the rear verands, the gunman had disappeared.

CAPTURED IN BACK BAY.

It is believed that while Capt. King was breaking in the door, Threadgill slid down a rear verandah post to the first floor, where he came on Troy unexpectedly and shot him. The bullet entered just above the heart.

While details of police searched the neighborhood, the squad headed by Superintendent Crowley raced to Back Bay, where a house was pointed out to them on Batavia st. The building was surrounded and the superintendent led his men into the house.

They included Special Officers Arthur Tiernan and Leonard Banks of Division 5 and Inspectors Paul Crowley, William Taylor and Officers John Devir and William J. O'Connor.

Supt. Crowley and Tiernan went to the third floor, the others remaining below, and rapped on a door. A woman's voice answered and the superintendent, closely followed by Tiernan, entered. They saw Threadgill sitting on a chair talking with three women. Tiernan seized the man, whose hands were in his pockets, and a gun dropped to the floor. One shot had been fired from it recently.

Threadgill and the three women were taken to East Dedham st. station in separate cars. The man was taken to the office of Capt. John Mullen where he was questioned by Commr. Wilson, Dist. Atty. Foley and others.

More Aid for Widows of Slain Policemen Asked

While one state representative today sought an increase in the pensions paid by the city to widows of policemen killed in performance of duty, another filed a bill providing for compulsory payment of a $2000 annuity to widows of such policemen and firemen throughout the state.

The bill was filed by Rep. Thomas H. Carr of Jamaica Plain. It is retroactive to Jan. 1. Payment of the annuity would be made to widows while they remain unmarried.

Rep. George A. Gilman of Boston brought up the shooting of Patrolman James Troy at a hearing before the legislative committee on pensions.

He pointed out that Mrs. Troy will receive $2500 from the state and only $600 from the city, with $25 a week for each child. He said he already has filed a bill which comes before the committee shortly and which provides payment of $1000 by the city instead of $600, and he urged favorable action on it.

Congress Acting on Hoover Dry Plan

"there has all along been the fullest co-operation with a view to such changes as may be of assistance in securing the best possible enforcement of the prohibition act.

"The leaders in the House," he said, "have given assurance that the decks will be cleared on the prompt consideration may be had when the bill reaches the calendar."

The Williamson bill would transfer laws pertaining to prohibition enforcement from the jurisdiction of the treasury to the justice department and would set up a prohibition bureau under the direction of the attorney-general, with a director and assistant.

TRANSFERRED BODILY

The personnel in the enforcement division, including attorneys, records, files and equipment and unexpended appropriations would be transferred without any change in status.

The measure sets out the duties imposed upon the attorney-general in the enforcement of the prohibition act. He is charged with investigation of violations of the act, as well as with violations of the internal revenue laws, the apprehension and prosecution of offenders, the seizure and the enforcement of all forfeitures under the acts.

The present prohibition bureau of the treasury is to be known hereafter, as the bureau of narcotics and industrial alcohol, and the prohibition commissioner is given the title of commissioner of narcotics and industrial alcohol.

The act would become effective on the first day of the second month after its approval.

The consensus of the House and Senate was that there would be votes to spare in both chambers to provide the legislation urged by the Chief Executive, who just a year and a half ago in accepting the nomination to his present office, said he regarded prohibition as "a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose."

Speaker Longworth said today in assigning different phases of the program to six committees he had been prompted by a desire to expedite consideration.

130 ON COMMITTEES

He explained he found that the recommendations of the law enforcement commission and the phases covered in the message of transmittal by Mr. Hoover and the accompanying reports from Secretary Mellon and Atty.-Gen. Mitchell embody subjects that could best be handled in this way.

"These six committees," said Mr. Longworth, "have a total membership of 130 members. Thus more than one-fourth of the House membership will immediately be interested directly in acting upon the presidential recommendations. If we had referred the proposals to a joint congressional committee, as once considered, perhaps not more than five or seven House members would have participated in the deliberations."

Representative Garner, Texas, the House Democratic leader, said today he believed Mr. Longworth had chosen the best means of expediting action, adding that the committees to which the speaker had referred the recommendations had been dealing with such questions in a different form since almost the day of the first Congress.

On the Senate side the first consideration of the proposed changes is expected Monday, when the judiciary committee, to which the recommendations were referred, will have Chairman Norris of the committee so far has reserved comment on the recommendations.

Briefly they propose:

A ban against the entry of all persons into the United States except at points of entry designated by the President.

The transfer of the prohibition enforcement unit now headed by Commissioner Doran under the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice.

Concentration under the coast guard of all border patrol activities.

Additional judges and more federal attorneys, marshals and clerks.

Revision of padlock injunction regulations to prevent concealing the ownership of property.

Greater prison facilities and reorganization and parole and other practices.

The definition of "casual and slight violations" as unlawful possession, single sales in small quantities, unlawful making in small quantities, and assisting in making and transporting as a casual employe. Such violation would carry a maximum fine of not more than $500 and imprisonment of not more than six months or both.

Further, state, county and municipal officers would be authorized to seize all liquor-carrying vehicles and to proceed against their operators.

the facts of the tragedy," said McLyman. "Rhode Island wants to know what exactly happened when the 290 sped the Black Duck in the lower reaches of Narragansett Bay.

"A machine gun was brought into play by the 290 and three men were killed. Were the killings justifiable? That is the question we want determined.

"Whether the Black Duck was running rum is not the issue. The Grand Jury will not confuse the issue involving the killing of the three men with the merits of prohibition.

"The work of determining whether indictments should be returned against any of the men on board the 290 rests with the Grand Jury, and to acquaint the jurors with both sides of the controversy, members of the crew of the 290 are appearing as witnesses."

PARROT FEVER FATAL TO NEW YORK WOMAN

Victim Contracts the Malady From Bird in Her Home; Other Cases Reported

Johnstown, N. Y., Jan. 14 (AP)—Psittacosis, or parrot's fever, today caused the death of Mrs. Leon F. Swears, 35, of this city. It was the first death from the disease reported in New York state.

Mrs. Swears, the mother of two small children, became ill soon after a parrot bought in Schenectady shortly after Christmas began to droop. When she was stricken her mother-in-law, Mrs. Francis Swears, began to care for the bird. She was taken ill in a few days and is reported in serious condition.

On Saturday the younger woman's illness was diagnosed as parrot's fever. Her husband promptly killed the bird, fearing to expose other members of the family.

Two other cases of the disease have been reported in New York state. They are Yonkers.

Mexico Moves to Fight "Parrot Fever"

Mexico City, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Government today ordered an investigation to determine if such a disease as psittacosis, or "parrots' disease," several cases of which have been reported from the United States and Europe, has ever existed here. The public health department will make a thorough study of the malady, so as to be prepared to combat it if it should appear in Mexico.

New Cases of Fever Found in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Jan. 14 (AP)—The illness of Mary Walker, 9, of Freeport, was diagnosed today as probably "parrot fever," which, it is believed, caused the death of the girl's grandmother, Mrs. William Shields, 51, last Saturday. A daughter of Mrs. Shields, Elaine, 18, also is ill of what is thought to be the same malady.

Second Ohio Woman Is Victim of Malady

George Washington, Jan 14—That League of Nations propagandists on both sides of the Atlantic are endeavoring to embarrass the position of the United States in the London naval conference by declaring in favor of the limitation of capital ships is the opinion of experts accompanying the American delegates to the five-power parley.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, after being informed by the State Department in Washington as to the substance of the British reply to the French memorandum giving the Quai d'Orsay's stand on the conference, today admitted that British Foreign Secretary Henderson had prepared the reply without consultation with the United States.

The facts regarding capital ships, as set forth in Washington by official records of the Geneva Arms Conference and developments since the capital ship replacement program, which is primarily responsible for the calling of the London conference by the British, are:

Between now and 1936 the United States must lay down eight new capital ships which, by new designs, would be airplane carriers powerfully armed for offense and defense against air, surface and underseas attack.

The total cost of this construction would approximate $400,000,000.

Before 1942 15 new capital ships, costing $50,000,000 per ship, would have to be constructed, if the existing British superiority in this class is ultimately to be overcome, and British and American fleets equated in this category.

the closest relations to the President, had access to him at all times and was in frequent consultation with him on the sugar tariff.

"Shattuck denied that he had ever talked with the President about the tariff, or that he ever told anyone he had. Anyway, in consideration led Lakin to advise his principals that Shattuck should be paid at least $75,000.

"Shattuck insisted throughout that he was employed solely as a lawyer, but the part of the work done by him falling within the scope of what is ordinarily understood to be legal services was negligible.

"The report added that "a particularly reprehensible part of the program carried on by Lakin was an effort made by the Sugar Institute in the United States in Latin-American countries upon the assumption that it, by its tariff policy, was maintaining Cuba.

"Clippings from Spanish-American papers indicated that the attempt had been to no small extent successful.

"Lakin and Shattuck were in almost constant communication with the higher officials of the Cuban government throughout the period in which they were engaged, the correspondence as a whole leaving the impression that the government had associated itself with them in their propaganda."

Referring to the employment of John H. Carroll, Washington attorney, by Lakin and Shattuck at a salary of $4500 a month, the report said his income from a number of other concerns ran his annual salary to more than $150,000.

"It did not appear, after diligent questioning," the report said, "that Colonel Carroll had done anything, or was in a position to do anything, in return for this liberal income."

Carroll, the committee reported, was about 75 years old. In feeble health, and "has not actually lived a lawsuit for many years, indeed since his youth."

Concerning Gen. Enoch Crowder, former American ambassador to Cuba, the report said:

"Gen. E. H. Crowder labored in unison with Lakin and Shattuck, his employment apparently coming from Cuban sugar interests acting through President Machado, to whom he, as well as Lakin and Shattuck, reported."

Lobbyists Scored in Senate as Grafters

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Activities of Washington lobbyists were described in the Senate today as "grafting" by Chairman Caraway of the Senate lobby committee.

"I hope that responsible business men will cease paying tribute to these lobbyists, these grafters in the District of Columbia who have nothing to sell," Caraway said.

"The whole matter is nothing but simple graft," he continued. "It's worse than that because it plays upon the public and undermines the confidence of the American people in the integrity of their government."

policeman or the birth of his fifth child would be the next event in the sorrowed family, the doctors could not say.

Only this was certain: that for neither was there any money.

Patrolman Troy left neither life insurance nor savings. Illness and hungry mouths had taken all his earnings while he lived. His widow, awaiting childbirth, lunched today on a sandwich and a cup of tea, and in the house there was no money with which to buy more.

Joseph Bennett of the Cox Confectionery Co., 150 Orleans st., East Boston, sponsors the fund and to him, at that address, all contributions in aid of the Troy family should be sent.

The Boston American will print the list of contributors, but will not handle the funds.

Five years ago Mr. Bennett aided in raising a fund of $11,000 in a similar cause, for the family of Patrolman "Dick" Matroni, also killed in the line of duty.

Already he has received a number of pledges of co-operation, indicating that the public for which he gave his life will not overlook the suffering family of the slain officer.

Starving Chinese Act as Cannibals

Shanghai, Jan. 14 (AP)—Cannibalism is practiced unchecked in the famine-swept provinces of China, George Andrews, a missionary from Kansu Province, told British and American missionaries in an address, picturing scenes of almost unbelievable horror and death.

"Lakin and Shattuck were in almost constant communication with the higher officials of the Cuban government throughout the period in which they were engaged, the correspondence as a whole leaving the impression that the government had associated itself with them in their propaganda."

Remick Sworn In as War Claims Arbiter

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—James Waldron Remick, appointed last week as war claims arbiter to succeed the late Edwin B. Parker, today took the oath of office.

Remick formerly was associate justice of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire.

Labor Backs Thore Pension Plan Bill

The Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to Wendell P. Thore, has indorsed the Thore bill for legislation to set up a non-contributory system of old-age pensions. The communication is signed by Martin T. Joyce, secretary of the organization.

Anti-Negro Law Is Killed in Virginia

Richmond, Va., Jan. 14 (INS)—Richmond's city ordinance barring negroes from establishing homes in certain residential areas was declared unconstitutional today by the United States Court of Appeals.

LIQUOR FORCES PLAN DRIVE ON VOLSTEAD ACT

Hope Action on Hoover Dry Plan Will Open Up a Chance to Amend It

Washington, Jan. 14 (INS)—While President Hoover was receiving a generally favorable public reaction to the report of his national law enforcement commission, interest today centered on Congress where legislation must be enacted to put that body's plan for bolstering up the present "entirely inadequate" federal prohibition enforcement machine into effect.

Constitutionalists and drys flooded the White House with messages of congratulation, on the proposals of the President and his commission for tighter enforcement.

On the other hand, wet leaders derived much satisfaction from the commission a warning that in any consideration of the liquor problem Congress should not forget "the many historical examples of flagrant public disregard of laws in our past." They took heart over the commission's findings of "a staggering number of what might be called focal points of infection," and prepared to renew their drive for modification on the basis of these statements.

FUT TEETH IN LAW.

On Capitol Hill the prohibitionists were marshaling their forces to spur through the recommended legislation, whereby it is hoped to relieve court congestion, put new teeth in certain phases of the dry law and unify enforcement agencies under the Department of Justice.

Wets apparently were lying in wait, hopeful they would be able to tear into the Volstead act when the proposed codification of the 33 assorted dry statutes is brought up.

For the present at least, the anti-prohibitionists will rally around the resolution of Senator Wagner (D.) of New York, calling upon the President's commission to continue its inquiries and determine whether or not prohibition is, in fact, enforceable and whether it should be modified. A somewhat similar resolution has been introduced in the House by Representative Andrew (R.) of Massachusetts.

Senator Jones, (R.) of Washington, author of the drastic "five-and-ten" law for which modification is proposed, said he looked for the House to act at once and expressed hope for early enactment of the Wagner proposal.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, Republican floor leader of the House, indicated the lower branch of Congress would adopt all of the suggested changes within a month.

PLANS OF THE WETS.

Some inkling of the future plans of the wets may be gained from a statement made today by Senator Howell (D.) of Missouri, giving general approval of the President's recommendations.

"The third recommendation, recodification of the prohibition laws, is excellent," he said. "The Volstead Act is not a scientific enactment. It is illogical in parts, vague in other parts, and extreme. The definition of one-half of one per cent as intoxicating is an absurdity on its face that cannot be successfully defended.

"Modification of this limitation would do more to bring law enforcement than millions spent by Congress, or any other proceeding which the commission could advocate.

"In the interest of law enforcement, to curtail the enormous expenses of that enforcement and to save the loss of life—some 1,300 have been killed and nearly 50,000 arrested—I think it would be best done by revision of the Volstead Act without violating the spirit or the intent of the constitutional amendment."

Examination for Probation Officers

The U. S. Civil Service Commission has announced a nation-wide examination for probation officers to fill positions in district courts.

Applications to take the examination must be in the hands of the commission in Washington on or before January 21. It is expected that about 50 new probation officers will be placed. The starting salary is $2600, which may be increased to $3100.

HARVARD GRAD'S 'BUBBLES' WINS POINT IN SUIT AGAINST 'IN-LAWS'

DUPE CHARGE WIPED OUT BY JUDGE

Court Also Strikes Out Claim Actress Married for Financial Gain

New York, Jan. 14—That Mrs. Mabel Kokin Wilson, former musical comedy star, was affectionately addressed as "Bubbles" and "Subs" in letters she received from her Harvard graduate husband was a highlight of hearing of the bride's suit for $50,000 against the parents of her young husband.

Mrs. Wilson charges alienation of the affections of her husband and love letters she received from young Wilson materially aided her cause when the case opened. The defendants are Nathan and Rebecca Wilson of West 87th st.

The young wife, who is 22, married the Wilsons' only son, Bernard, on the day he was graduated from Harvard last year.

The marriage was much against the wishes of the parents, who, in answering the bride's suit against them, alleged the marriage was solely for her convenience and financial gain.

STRICKEN FROM RECORDS

Supreme Court Justice Townley ordered these claims stricken out, along with charges that the actress duped the law student into marrying her.

Justice Townley took this action after perusing the letters young Wilson had written to his wife.

Robert E. McLear, attorney for the wife, offered the letters to show that real love and not a desire for money influenced his client in marrying young Wilson.

Two of the letters were:

"Dearest Subs—No one will ever love me as you do. But, on the other hand, I don't think I'll ever love anyone quite in the way I love you. Do you really understand my feelings toward my folks? I wonder!

"It's true what you say: It isn't fair that they interfere with our lives. But is it fair that we interfere with theirs? I suppose not. On the other hand, I suppose children were just made to return cruelty for love.

"Bubbles, do you know, my mother still cries when I leave for Boston? It's really funny. She gives me everything—I give nothing. Yet she cries and I do not. Yours, body and soul,

"Bernie."

SECOND LETTER

"Dearest:

"When we first met and had not known each other long, I don't think either of us thought our love would last. Or should I say rather that we would be going together this long?

"There were many outside factors hemming us in and seeking to drive us apart. Naturally, I didn't want you to depend on me so much—to become so tied to me that if the time did come when we had to separate you would feel lost and bitter towards the whole world. I must admit that some of this feeling remains, but it is under a different guise now.

"I love you now more than I ever have.

"I must refer to one of the elements you mention in your definition of love—sacrifice. Because of your love you want to sacrifice for me. But don't you see that it's just because I love you that I don't want you to do it?

"You see, its this way—every time you sacrifice, I am selfish, and every time I accept you feel selfish—and neither of us wants to be selfish because we love each other. You once told me yourself that you couldn't stand other men any more. It made me feel terrible.

"We love each other and that makes a great difference. But I'm not a god on a pedestal by means. My family does enough of that. If you will only realize that I am only a human being—and not such a smart one at that—and love me as much as ever, I'd feel ever so much better. I love you, "Bernie."

The bride appeared in various musical comedies. After her marriage to Wilson she gave up the stage, but since parting from her husband she had been employed in a downtown bank in this city.

Mrs. Ellen D. Root Seeking Divorce

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP)—John Root, prominent Chicago architect, has been sued for divorce by Mrs. Ellen Dudley Root, Chicago society beauty and a member of the Goodman Theatre repertoire cast. The charge was cruelty, and Mrs. Root asked custody of their 12-year-old daughter, Denyse.

They were married in Brookline, Mass., October 1, 1914, and separated four days ago. Root is the son of John W. Root, chief architect for the Columbian Exposition.

Marine Grid Star Made Hoover Aide

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Capt. Frank R. Schneider, football star of the Quantico Marines, has been appointed a White House aide-de-camp, aide-de-camp of Maj.-Gen. Wendell C. Neville, commandant of the Marine Corps. He will report for his new duties tomorrow.

Goettige left Ohio State University in 1917, his freshman year, to enter the service, serving with the 5th Regiment of Marines in the Argonne.

Accused Slayer of Boston Policeman Is Captured 65 Minutes After Shooting in South End

Threadgill Officer Tiernan

From the piazza above in the rear of 14 Dilworth st., South End, James Threadgill, negro burglar suspect, slid down and shot Special Officer James Troy of the Athens st. station dead as the policeman attempt to arrest him. Photo-diagram shows how the officer, who had traced him from South Boston, was slain at 5:45 p. m. Patrolmen later surrounded the house. (Staff photos.)

James Threadgill, accused of the murder of Officer Troy, is shown with Special Officer Arthur Tiernan shortly after his arrest by Tiernan and Supt. Michael H. Crowley. It was exactly 6:50 o'clock when the two rushed into the place on Batavia st., Back Bay, and trapped Threadgill. Police say the death gun was found on him.

Diagram shows the route the police took in running down Threadgill in a Back Bay apartment after getting a tip to the accused slayer's haunts.

Wife and family of the slain police officer. Mrs. Troy, who is in a delicate condition, was informed of her husband's tragic death by Patrolman Thomas Troy. Mrs. Troy is shown with two of her children, Anna, 11, and Irene, 6. In-set is a photo of James J., Jr., 7. Their home is on Brooks st., East Boston.

Wales Is 'Barber' on Ship; Gets Ducking

S. S. Kenilworth Castle, Jan. 14 (AP)—The Prince of Wales acted as court barber at the traditional nautical ceremony of "Crossing the Line," when the ship bearing him to South Africa for a hunting trip crossed the equator off the coast of Africa.

The prince himself was initiated long ago and was therefore officially exempt from the duckings, scrubbings and shavings, not to mention paddlings, which even heirs to thrones undergo on this occasion, but he got a ducking in the end.

Dressed in white clothes borrowed from the chef, the prince wielded an enormous wooden razor that was daubed with red paint to represent the blood of the shaven. He carried out his duties with great zest, and the passengers occupying every point of vantage in the limited space around Neptune's throne were greatly amused.

Girl passengrge, as well as men, went through the initiating ceremony. After a shave by the royal barber they were tipped backwards into a canvas pool of water.

The prince did not escape without a ducking. As barber, he finally seized his assistant and shaved him and ducked him, but was immediately dragged into the water himself.

31,500 DIED BY AUTOS IN YEAR

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP)—Figures made public today by the National Safety Council showed 31,500 persons were killed in automobile accidents in 31 states during 1929.

The total was 13 per cent more than in 1928, the report said, while motor vehicle registration increased only 8 per cent.

California auto fatalities increased 20 per cent on the basis of a nine months' comparable period, and New York and Ohio had 17 per cent increase on the basis of an 11 months' comparable period. Oregon, Rhode Island, Delaware, Wisconsin and Vermont show slight decreases in the first 11 months.

More than half the victims were pedestrians.

Suing for $50,000

Mabel Kokin Wilson, who has frequently appeared in Boston in musical comedy, is suing her New York husband's parents for $50,000, charging alienation of affections. He is Bernard Wilson, Harvard Law School graduate.

2 BANDITS AND OFFICER SLAIN

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP)—Two robbers and a detective were killed today and a police lieutenant wounded as the robbers, rushing from an apartment they had just held up, ran into a police squad that had responded to a burglar alarm. A third robber who barricaded himself in the apartment house hallway was routed by tear bombs and captured.

The three bandits, in entering the first floor apartment of Harry Sacherman, set off a burglar alarm in the adjoining apartment of Sacherman's brother, Joseph, who called police.

The robbers were at work on a small safe in the Sacherman flat, after lining up Sacherman's family at the point of pistols, when a police squad roared up in front of the building.

With escape cut off in front, the robbers ran to a rear window, where new Detective Jerry Murphy, cutting off their flight. One of them fired three shots and Murphy dropped, fatally wounded.

Attempting to get out by the front door, the robbers were met by blazing police guns. They returned the fire and Lieut. Edward Conroy fell, wounded in the shoulder.

583 EXECUTED, SAYS KERENSKY

Paris, Jan. 14 (AP)—Alexander Kerensky, former chief of the temporary Russian government, today told the Socialist members of Parliament that the "ferocity" of repression by the Soviet government at this time against alleged plotters and enemies of the regime has never been surpassed since the Russian revolution of 1917.

Kerensky said 483 persons had been executed in Russia for alleged political crimes in less than two months between October 1 and November 29. He asked the French Socialists to declare antipathy against the Communist members of the French Parliament.

Chicago Mayor and City Council at War

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP)—Mayor William Hale Thompson and the "economy faction" of the City Council were at loggerheads again today.

The mayoralty forces in the Council were unable to halt passage of a budget calling for approximately $55,000,000 in appropriations and substantially the same as that vetoed last week by Mayor Thompson.

Frequently in the heated fight the mayor's forces warned that if the new budget were passed it would be necessary again to discharge firemen, policemen and em-

Jolt Planned for 'Bad Credit' Purchasers

Denver, Jan. 14 (AP)—If you pay your bills promptly on the first of each month, you are one out of every two persons who does so.

On the other hand, if you are slow in meeting your credit obligations, you may find solace in the knowledge that 40 per cent of the credit buyers of America have the same characteristic. Added to that there is another 10 per cent that is downright crooked and not only slow in paying, but buys on credit without ever intending to pay.

The latter two classes, representing 50 per cent of the people of the United States, are about to have their consciences stirred.

The National Retail Credit Association is willing to spend $7,000,000 to cause them a few qualms of uneasiness.

That fact was revealed here by C. T. Hulse of St. Louis, secretary and educational director of the association. The "conscience" fund already has been raised and will be expended in advertising aimed to establish a new psychology on the part of credit buyers.

Saves Dog in Fire

10 DRIVEN OUT IN LYNN FIRE

Ten persons, including six children, whose ages range from eight to 15, were driven to the street in their night clothing, when a fire broke out shortly after 5 o'clock this morning, in a two-story wooden tenement in Stone pl., Lynn.

According to the police, the fire started in the closet on the first floor in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McCafferty, and spread rapidly to the second floor, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tufts.

Clifton McGregor, a milkman, saw smoke coming out of the window in the McCafferty flat and rushed to a box and sounded an alarm. He returned to the house and aroused the occupants.

Asks $3,000,000 for Hurricane Relief

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—An additional appropriation of $3,000,000 for hurricane relief in Porto Rico was asked in a resolution introduced today by Chairman Bingham of the Senate Territories Committee, after President Hoover had sent to Congress a recommendation for this relief asked by the hurricane commission.

Coffee Is Sawdust But Hub Official Won't Complain

When a flood tide licks the waterfront a maritime worker needs at least a cup of coffee, and so Charles F. McSorley, assistant manager of the Chamber of Commerce Maritime Association, was in dire straits today.

At his Maiden home his daughter filled the percolator. It perked and perked, but that welcome brownish tint failed to appear. McSorley officially investigated. The coffee bag was O. K. he found, but its contents were sawdust.

Over a steaming cup at a downtown restaurant he learned that some firm for window display purposes fill the bags with sawdust and, musing that probably he got one by mistake, "Charley" closed his investigation then and there.

Troy's Widow, Stork Near, Destitute

"When I get home, Anna, I'll see No. 5, and some day it'll be a cop or a movie actress."

With these words Patrolman James J. Troy left his wife, expecting her to become a mother for the fifth time, and started on the fatal tour of duty that ended in his death.

Mrs. Anna Miller Troy, the widow, a sister of Charles Miller, a war hero, sobbed out the story of her happy wedded life today in their little home at 114 Brook st., East Boston, and told of a long trail of ill luck and sickness that leaves her virtually destitute.

Of the slayer, she said: "Maybe the man is far worse off in life than Jimmy is in death. He must be crazy. But, oh, if he had only known the misery he was to cause when he fired the shot I don't believe he would have done it."

"Jimmy had telephoned to one of the family or to Dr. Michael Sisson more than 17 times about me," she said, relating her husband's anxiety about the expected child.

BEARD THE WORST.

"He was waiting for the word, and then we received the terrible news. They didn't want to tell me. They were afraid it would kill me or the baby. But I knew something had happened.

"It was Jim's brother Tom, a policeman at Station 2, who told me. My mother and Jim's mother, Mrs. Troy, matron of the East Boston court, had been crying, so I knew something had happened before Tom told me the worst.

"Jimmy kissed me for the last time when he left for duty. He wanted to ask permission for time off, but he and the other men were after two suspects and Jim didn't dare ask for leave.

"He was kidding when he was ready to go. He called me 'Anna-kid' and laughed about the new baby who was to be a cop or a movie actress. He wouldn't leave the house until Dr. Sisson was here.

"Last Saturday in answer to my pleas that he get regular hours, he promised that as soon as the new baby was born he would ask the captain for a route so he could be home each night at 6:15.

"My Jimmie was the best husband and the best father in the world. To snatch him away from me at such a time with another baby coming is terrible. In our 14 years of married life he never once uttered a cross word to me. Never once did he lay a hand on any one of his children.

TRAIL OF ILL LUCK

"All the money he earned went to hospitals and doctors, and for food and clothes for us," she continued. "For 12 years since the first baby was born our ill luck has never ended. It has been sickness, sickness, sickness all the time. A year and a half ago Jimmy had a few dollars ahead but our oldest girl had a breakdown and had to spend more than a year in the hospital.

"I have been praying all night and all day that my baby will not be born until Jimmy is laid in the ground. I want to be able to go to his funeral."

Referring to the slayer she said: "People say to me: 'They ought to string him up, electrocute him or shoot him,' but after all whatever happens to him won't bring Jimmy back.

"I'd often warned Jimmy to be careful. He always replied: 'Nothing will happen to me.' Once a man stuck a gun into Jimmy's throat, but he managed to kid him out of shooting. This time he had no chance to kid.

"On Sunday night when he came home he was all broken up because of the suicide of LaCours in South Boston police station. Jimmy had worked on the case and taken part in his arrest and the thought of the man committing suicide and leaving a wife and children behind broke him up terribly."

NEGRO CADET, 63 WHITES OUT

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 14 (AP)—Sixty-four cadets, including Alonzo Parham, negro, of Chicago, were honorably discharged from the U. S Military Academy today because of failure to pass mid-term academic examinations. Maj.-Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent, announced.

Examinations were held for 137 cadets who were deficient in one or more subjects, Smith said. Forty-eight of those who failed to pass were members of the plebe freshman class, and the remainder were sophomores.

All of the cadets who were discharged were called to pass the written general review in December, he said. They were then given another opportunity to remain in the academy by taking a final examination which, if passed, put them in good standing.

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Representative DePriest, negro Republican of Illinois, who appointed Alonzo Parham, negro, to West Point, said today that he would appoint another negro to the academy if Parham actually had been dropped for failing to pass his plebe examinations.

NEW AIR MAIL RATE SYSTEM PROPOSED

Cleveland, Jan. 14 (AP)—The entire rate scale and airmail system of the Postoffice Department would be changed by recommendations outlined here today by Postmaster-General Brown.

For the first time, he gave his "yardstick" of airmail compensation which would supplant a system in which one carrier receives as low as 8 cents, and another as high as $3 a pound.

Under the system suggested today by Brown, the Postoffice Department would concentrate its exceptional aid on essential routes, "those that have been traveled by ox team, pony express, railroad, and auto," and would use planes as it now uses trains, at fixed rates per mile for definite weight spaces."

The Postmaster-General sketched the growth of the airmail to its present status as follows:

"Two hundred planes and 250 expert pilots engaged; 25 contractors over the regular routes aggregating 14,368 miles, flying approximately 40,500 miles each 24 hours, about 60 per cent of which is flown at night."

He set forth a definite recommendation by the Postoffice Department, amending the air mail act to authorize the postmaster-general to contract for the transportation of mail at fixed rates per mile for definite weight spaces, the base rate not to exceed $1 per mile for 1,000 pounds of mail capacity.

FAMILIES FLEE RAGING RIVERS

of the ditches are from three to five miles wide. The village of Claunch was flooded, and water is more than two feet deep on the main street. The neighboring villages of Bay and Lunsford also are under water and Lake City is threatened.

In the Newport area on the White river, in the same state, there is much inundated land. The Cache river is flooding in the Brasfield territory.

Serious Situation as Ohio Rivers Rise

Cleveland, Jan. 14 (AP)—A serious flood situation impends in Ohio today as many rivers, already swollen far above normal, continue to rise. Rain, which has fallen almost constantly for more than a week, was falling again today in most parts of the state.

The greatest flood menace was at Youngstown, where if the Mahoning river goes five inches higher it will force the shutdown of many steel mills. The Mahoning was at six feet, nine inches above normal today, having risen two inches since midnight.

Lowlands at Warren were under deeper water today as the Tuscarawas river reached a height 62½ inches above the Warren dam. It was still rising.

Rowboats were used in some sections of Massillon today to take children to school and men to work when numerous houses were surrounded by water one to two feet deep. The Tuscarawas had overflown its banks twice and was rising an inch an hour. Six streets were closed to traffic. One of them was four feet under water.

Winter Still Grips Far-Western States

San Francisco, Jan. 14 (AP)—Snow, rain and extreme cold continued today to hold the far west in the grip of a rigorous winter, but California was promised temporary relief from the freezing temperatures.

In the northwest states a continuance of sub-normal temperatures was expected, with snow falling in southern Oregon and mountainous sections of Washington and Idaho. Nevada and the extreme northern regions of California also were promised more snow.

For the first time in several days the weather man forecast warmer weather for southern and central California as far north as San Francisco and the bay region.

Hundreds of motorists marooned Sunday in the Sierra foothills by drifts which blocked highways between San Andreas and Angel's Camp, have returned to their homes.

Bloodhounds in Hunt for Men Who Blew Up Levee

Marks, Miss., Jan. 14 (AP)—A huge gap was torn in the Cassidy bayou levee, two miles south of Belen, near here, by a charge of dynamite, set off by unidentified persons.

Bloodhounds were ordered from Clarksdale to aid in a search for those who set off the blast.

Book League Head to Speak in Store

Thomas L. Stix, president of the Book League of America, speaks on "Books and Book Clubs" at the Sears, Roebuck store in Brookline at 3 o'clock this afternoon. While in Boston, Stix is the guest of Dr. Charles L. Kuhn of the fine arts department at Harvard.

Stix's discussion of book clubs following the heated "battle of books" in Boston last spring proved unusually interesting. At that time war had been declared between the publishers and the book clubs, but peace has since been declared.

Injury and a ducking came near being the penalty of the agreeable disposition of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith at Miami. Just as he stepped back on deck, the newspaper craft careened into that of the governor and disaster was narrowly averted. (I. N. R. photo.)

Wire-Wireless Merger Urged by Postal Head

Washington, Jan. 14 (INS)—Consolidation of American radio, wire and cable facilities would result in cheaper and improved service, and is necessary to combat the British wire-wireless merger, Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the Postal Telegraph Corporation board, told the Senate interstate commerce committee today.

He denied reports that wire and cable companies were seeking to stifle radio development.

"The suspicion that wire companies would like to secure control of radio and stifle its development is absolutely without basis," he said. "So far as we are concerned, we are not only not trying to stifle radio development, but develop radio in connection with our land and overseas communication services to the utmost extent which the law now permits."

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Curley to Address Soda Bottlers Dinner

With several thousand delegates in attendance, the 13th annual convention of the Eastern Soda Water Bottlers' Association and the Rhode Island and New Hampshire Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages opened today at the Elks Hotel.

Arthur P. Angell, of Providence, president of the Rhode Island association, called the meeting to order and led a discussion of the industry's problems.

Speakers at tomorrow's sessions include Dr. P. H. Mullowney, H. C. Lythgoe, William J. Day, Junior Owners and Emil Kekich. Mayor Curley will address the delegates at a banquet tomorrow night.

PROPOSE BOARD TO PROBE N. Y. CORRUPTION

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 14 (INS)—A sweeping investigation of alleged corruption in New York, including the famous Rothstein murder case, is proposed by the Republican leaders of the Legislature, Senator John Knight and Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies.

Measures authorizing Gov. Roosevelt to appoint a commission to make the probe will be introduced shortly, the G. O. P. leaders announced. Friends of the executive predicted today he would veto the bills when they reach his desk.

In a statement the Republican leaders said:

"Conditions demand not only an investigation of the magistrates courts, but also an investigation of administrative branches of New York city government.

Wives Ask Liberty, but It's to Be Fed and Beaten

Cairo, Egypt, Jan. 14—The Moslem idea of woman as property still prevails in the East and she is not admitted the possession of a soul by Mohammedans.

But now the wife of a jail-bird can help herself to some freedom. A new law reads that any woman whose husband is sentenced to more than one year's imprisonment is entitled to seek a divorce.

Most of the emancipated women take advantage of the new law and use their liberty merely to procure another husband to feed and beat them.

NEW AIR MAIL RATE SYSTEM PROPOSED

Cleveland, Jan. 14 (AP)—The entire rate scale and airmail system of the Postoffice Department would be changed by recommendations outlined here today by Postmaster-General Brown.

For the first time, he gave his "yardstick" of airmail compensation which would supplant a system in which one carrier receives as low as 8 cents, and another as high as $3 a pound.

Under the system suggested today by Brown, the Postoffice Department would concentrate its exceptional aid on essential routes. "Those that have been traveled by ox team, pony express, railroad, and auto," and would use planes as it now uses trains, at fixed rates per mile for definite weight spaces.

The Postmaster-General sketched the growth of the airmail to its present status as follows:

"Two hundred planes and 250 expert pilots engaged; 25 contractors over the regular routes aggregating 14,365 miles, flying approximately 40,500 miles each 24 hours, about 60 per cent of which is flown at night."

He set forth a definite recommendation by the Postoffice Department, amending the air mail act to authorize the postmaster-general to contract for the transportation of mail at fixed rates per mile for definite weight spaces, the base rate not to exceed $1 per mile for 1,500 pounds of mail capacity.

of the ditches are from three to five miles wide. The village of Claunch was flooded, and water is more than two feet deep on the main street. The neighboring villages of Bay and Lundell also are under water and Lake City is threatened.

In the Newport area on the White river, in the same state, there is much inundated land. The Cache river is flooding in the Brasfield territory.

Serious Situation as Ohio Rivers Rise

Cleveland, Jan. 14 (AP).—A serious flood situation impends in Ohio today as many rivers, already swollen far above normal, continue to rise. Rain, which has fallen almost constantly for more than a week, was falling again today in most parts of the state.

The greatest flood menace was at Youngstown, where if the Mahoning river goes five inches higher it will force the shutdown of many steel mills. The Mahoning was at six feet, nine inches above normal today, having risen two inches since midnight.

Lowlands at Warren were under deeper water today as the Tuscarawas river reached a height 52½ inches above the Warren dam. It was still rising.

Rowboats were used in some sections of Massillon today to take children to school and men to work when numerous houses were surrounded by water one to two feet deep. The Tuscarawas had overflown its banks there and was rising an inch an hour. Six streets were closed to traffic. One of them was four feet under water.

Winter Still Grips Far-Western States

San Francisco, Jan. 14 (AP)—Snow, rain and extreme cold continued today to hold the far west in the grip of a rigorous winter, but California was promised temporary relief from the freezing temperatures.

In the northwest states a continuance of sub-normal temperatures was expected, with snow falling in southern Oregon and mountainous sections of Washington and Idaho. Nevada and the extreme northern regions of California also were promised more snow.

For the first time in several days the weather man forecast warmer weather for southern and central California as far north as San Francisco and the bay region.

Hundreds of motorists, marooned Sunday in the Sierra foothills by drifts which blocked highways between San Andreas and Angel's Camp, have returned to their homes.

Bloodhounds in Hunt for Men Who Blew Up Levee

Marks, Miss., Jan. 14 (AP)—A huge gap was torn in the Cassidy bayou levee, two miles south of Belen, near here, by a charge of dynamite, set off by unidentified persons.

Bloodhounds were ordered from Clarksdale to aid in a search for those who set off the blast.

Book League Head to Speak in Store

Thomas L. Stix, president of the Book League of America, spoke on "Books and Book Clubs" at the Sears, Roebuck store in Brookline at 2 o'clock this afternoon. While in Boston, Stix is the guest of Dr. Charles I. Kuhn of the fine arts department at Harvard.

Stix's discussion of book clubs following the heated "battle of books" in Boston last spring proved unusually interesting. At that time war had been declared between the publishers and the book clubs, but peace has since reigned.

Just Before 'Al' Smith Faced Disaster

Injury and a ducking came near being the penalty of the agreeable disposition of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith at Miami. On a trip from the beach to Cocolobo Bay Club he clung to the side of the outing boat for the cameramen. Just as he stepped back on deck, the newspaper craft careened into that of the governor and disaster was narrowly averted. (I. N. R. photo.)

Wire-Wireless Merger Urged by Postal Head

Washington, Jan. 14 (INS)—Coordination of American radio, wire and cable facilities would result in cheaper and improved service, and is necessary to combat the British wire-wireless merger, Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the Postal Telegraph Corporation board, told the Senate interstate commerce committee today.

He denied reports that wire and cable companies were seeking to stifle radio development.

"The suspicion that wire companies would like to secure control of radio and stifle its development is absolutely without basis," he said. "So far as we are concerned, we are not only not trying to stifle radio development, but develop radio in connection with our land and overseas communication services to the utmost extent which the law now permits."

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

The robbers are believed to be the same ones who the night before stole valuable antiques from the famous old Rosario church in the same city.

Fears Rhinelander's Life Is in Danger

Las Vegas, Nev., Jan. 14 (INS)—With no word early today from the Kip Rhinelander rescue party, Harley Harmon, the wealthy New Yorker's lawyer, directing the efforts to deliver Kip from his snow prison at Camp Charleston, admitted that he was greatly concerned over the young man's plight.

Divers Enter Hold of Wrecked Freighter

In the face of a northwest wind and heavy ground swell, three divers started work on the wrecked steamer Edward Luckenbach off Block Island today.

Equipped with powerful electric search lights, they descended into No. 4 hold next to the engine room, where thousands of dollars worth of canned goods were stored.

$75,000 GIFT TO DARTMOUTH BY GARRETTSON

Newport, R. I., Jan. 14 (AP)—Public bequests in excess of $400,000 were disposed of in the will filed for probate today of former Mayor Frederick P. Garrettson, socially prominent here and in New York.

Mr. Garrettson, who died last week, left $125,000 to the Newport Hospital; and $75,000 each to Dartmouth College, where he was once a student; St. Paul's school at Concord, N. H., from which he was graduated, and to St. Clare's Home for Children here. Mr. Garrettson had previously given $100,000 to St. Clare's, a Roman Catholic institution, for a new building which he had hoped to see completed before he died.

All public bequests were left in trust and will not become operative until after the death of Mrs. Garrettson who is given the residue of the estate for life. The will contained numerous private bequests, included among which was one of $50,000 to a grandnephew, Frederick Garrettson Landon of Hewlett, L. I.

Pleads "Not Guilty" to Killing

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 14—Maurice Hurd, 28, who was arrested in Boston Friday, pleaded not guilty when arraigned here for the murder of Edworth G. Ham last October. The case was continued to January 23 to permit Hurd to obtain counsel and he was ordered held without bail.

Mrs. Marion McCall Converse is being sued in Reno for divorce by Converse M. Converse, grandson of Edwin Converse, one of the founders of the United States Steel Corp. Mrs. Converse is a granddaughter of John. A. McCall, first president of the New York Life Insurance Co.

GLADYS PARKS BARS WOMEN AS JURORS

Camden, N. J., Jan. 14 (AP)—Trial of Gladys May Parks, charged with murder of her two wards, Dorothy and Timothy Rogers, four and two respectively, entered the second day today with Prosecutor Clifford A. Baldwin prepared to call a long list of witnesses.

Attorneys for the woman, Samuel P. Orlando and Carl Risselman, expressed satisfaction that the jury is composed of men. The defendant had asked that no women be chosen. Several were called but were challenged and dismissed.

The former cabaret entertainer and saleswoman is charged with murder in the first degree and in his opening statement Prosecutor Baldwin said the State would ask the death penalty.

Miss Parks is manifesting no emotion over the prospect of a conviction that would mean for her possibly death in the electric chair.

As calmly as if she were a spectator at a motion picture talkie melodrama, she listened languidly to the prosecutor portray her as "a cold-blooded murderer," "a sneaky, tricky, vicious woman," "a liar," and "the killer of two innocent babies."

According to the woman's statements Dorothy died after she had been punished and Timothy after a fall down a stairway. She led investigators to the shallow graves where she said she buried the bodies, but denied responsibility for the deaths.

Girl Burned to Death in Crash of Autos

Madison, Ct., Jan. 14 (INS)—A great truck going down the Boston Post road with the speed of a freight train today swung by another truck that seemed to be going slowly and went on into an auto containing a group of youngsters returning from a theater party in New Haven.

As a result of the crash Margaret Leete, 18, was burned to death; Ray Leete, her brother, is in Guilford Hospital with a broken leg and severe burns; Katherine Jansas of Killingsworth is undergoing slight injuries in his nose.

Ernest Coe of New London, driver of the truck, is under arrest.

In the crash the gasoline tank of the light car exploded and Miss Leete, sitting on the front seat with her brother, received a fiery bath that snuffed out her life almost immediately.

New Zealand Lands Marines in Samoa

Apia, Western Samoa, Jan. 14 (AP)—The New Zealand Government today invoked force of arms to enforce its authority over British Samoa and end the long resistance of Samoan natives to its government.

A proclamation issued by S. S. Allen, administrator, decrees the Mau (League of Samoan natives) to be a seditious organization. Parties landed from the warship Dunedin were dispatched onward to Sielmoa, 11 miles from Apia, where most of the Mau supporters were believed to be.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and 3 meals are patronized daily in the Fur Id cafeteria.

Road Builders' Head Sees Prosperous 1930

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 14 (AP)—Paul L. Griffiths of Pittsburgh, president of the manufacturers' division of the American Road Builders Association, addressing the 27th annual convention of that body today, said the prediction of Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University that the United States is due for a long period of business depression may be based on some scientific formula, but it certainly isn't substantiated by facts.

The year of 1930 in the manufacturing industry alone, Griffiths said, gives every indication of exceeding 1929 from a prosperity standpoint.

Says Power of Judges Should Be Untrammelled

Editor Boston American:

Your paper refers to legislation filed by Representative Ginsburg regulating the conduct of judges in certain contempt cases. As a citizen of Massachusetts and an attorney-at-law I view with apprehension any encroachment or curtailment of the judicial power by the legislative body.

In the exercise of its power, the judiciary should be untrammelled. Deriving as it does, its power from the people, whether through appointive or elective channels, after its investment with such power it should be responsive to none but the legislative body, and then only after a manifest abuse of that power is clearly proved and substantiated.

The first formidable weapon of governmental anarchy is the dictatorship of the legislature to the judicial, or the usurpation of the functions of the latter by the former.

Of course it may be my misfortune to fail to comprehend the benefits to be derived by the people from the proposed legislation. My conception of law and justice is not based upon the rule of individual advantage or expediency.

The court and its decrees should be immune from attack and molestation from any quarter, and when its equilibrium is disturbed wrongfully the first who should come to its assistance are the lawyers and legislators. Instances of such disturbances are rare. The State of Massachusetts has prospered under the undisturbed and wise guidance of its judiciary.

Much as I admire my excellent and well-meaning friend, Mr. Ginsberg, I must dispute his abstract theory of refined justice for persons in contempt cases. It would do nothing but hamper and delay the progress of law and justice. If the conclusion arrived at is the result of "long study from judicial decisions," which has been collected and to a large extent embodied in the proposed law, then it is a law already. The courts of Massachusetts will not be slow to take judicial notice of it, and there may be no need of any further legislation in the matter.

Found Dry Milk Was Good for Baby

Editor Boston American:

Regarding your editorial comment on the Russian idea of bringing up babies by the state.

I have a 20-months-old baby brought up entirely on dry milk until it was old enough to take cows' milk about four months ago. This baby is 34½ inches tall and weighs, dressed to go out, 32 pounds. He is strong and healthy.

Perhaps the dry milk shouldn't have all the credit, but I know of several other husky babies who never had mother's milk. Dry milk is always the same; it is not subject to the variation of mothers' milk.

It doesn't necessarily follow that the state could do a good job bringing up children, however, although a good many parents leave much to be desired.

Auto Takes Toll of Progress in Lives

Editor Boston American:

Automobiles are part of the onward movement of the human race but in the transition stage it is regrettable that in this country we pay such a high price for progress.

Undoubtedly the automobile is the most deadly contrivance ever invented by man. About 50,000 people are killed every year in automobile accidents and as many more are injured. Moreover, the automobile is directly responsible for a great increase in all kinds of crime.

Practically all murderers, highwaymen, robbers, thieves, crooks, racketeers, gangsters, gunmen, bomb throwers and criminals of all sorts, drive to the place where they commit their crimes and make their escape in automobiles. Our government should at once consider the menace of the machine to true civilization.

American Inventions Rule Industrial World

Editor Boston American:

That speaker in expounding the different policies of nations at a meeting in the South End recently, was certainly frank in his statements about America. Does he really know what America has done to advance the interests of the average person? Why did he declare that America has done little or nothing for the world except to advance her own interests? Such talk should bar the speaker from the country.

Does he not know Americans invented the steamboat, the cotton gin, the sewing machine, the telephone, the typewriter, the talking machine, the incandescent lamp, the linotype, the motion picture machine, the airplane, vulcanization of rubber, modern agricultural machinery, modern bootmaking machinery. Does this speaker know that the American inventions have revolutionized everything in the world today? America runs everything. It will run more in time. It will run that speaker out of the country, if he keeps on.

Suggestions to Speed Up Commonwealth Ave. Traffic

Editor Boston American:

There is much talk about traffic conditions in Boston, but nothing is done about it. If only some of those so-called traffic commissioners would drive along Commonwealth ave. between 8:30 and 9:30 a. m. and 4:30 and 6:30 p. m., I am sure they would see how slowly traffic moves along.

I have a few suggestions to make, and they are:

1—A strict law to make the side street traffic come to a stop before crossing the avenue. Only a few do observe this law. The signs, "Stop before entering," are hardly noticed by the majority.

2—Put white lines all the way down from Kenmore sq. to Arlington st. and have the slow moving traffic keep on the extreme right. This is being done in other cities, and it certainly speeds up traffic. Of course, the cars have to keep in each lane.

3—Do away with business trucks, etc., backing up towards the curbing and taking the whole street. It seems that you always find them doing this during rush hours. Would a private car get away with it?

4—And, then, have the officers work a little more together. That's about all for Commonwealth ave.

RUSSIA AIMS TO CONQUER WORLD WITH INDUSTRY

AMERICA GOAL IN 5-YEAR BOOM PLAN

Machine Speeds Progress; Death of Lenin Seen as Aid by Writer

By FRAZIER HUNT
European Representative for Cosmopolitan Magazine
Written Especially for International News Service

(Copyright, 1930, by International News Service in the United States and all Foreign Countries; reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

London, Jan. 14—Today Russia, with American help, is doing business. She is a going concern. Despite terrific unrest and hate of the richer peasants—the despised "Kulaks"—despite all the insurmountable difficulties that are the inheritance of 15 years of continuous war and revolution, Soviet Russia is forging ahead.

She has finished her old "intellectual" revolution. Today she has a "practical" revolution, a "physical" revolution.

Lenin and his followers believed that once they could capture the factories for the city workmen, and the land for the peasants, they could put over a successful revolution.

But they found they could not run the factories; managerial sabotage, civil war, foreign intervention and the blockade, coupled with the heart-breaking famine of 1920-21, was too much. Hard and fast communism was swung into a new economic policy that permitted the small trader, the little factory owner and the richer, more intelligent peasant to prosper.

A new capitalism began to take root. Communistic principles were being swept aside and threatened.

GREAT INDUSTRIAL PLAN

Then, with the death of Lenin, a newer, harder group took control. The new economic policy was condemned; the private trader crushed; the rich peasant ordered to be ostracized and broken, and a new Russia dreamed out in a great five-year industrial plan.

Every phase of life was touched by the stupendous, audacious plan. It started October 1, 1928—and already it is far ahead of its schedule. Russia is building factories and mills, and power plants and great agricultural schemes. She is putting more bricks on bricks than all the rest of continental Europe put together.

She will carry out the building operation of this gigantic five-year plan. But when she gets all this built how efficiently can she operate it? This is the crux of the Soviet problem—at least for this decade.

Let me repeat: The Soviet Union will carry out the building plans of the five-year period. And more: Nothing short of a terrific and devastating famine can retard her from doing it in even less time than her original estimate.

This statement obviously carries with it the unquestionable assurance that the Soviet Union is solid and lasting; that all effective counter-revolution is over; that Russia's only problem is an internal economic one.

COMPETITOR OF U. S.

Granted all this—what can she do with this magnificent economic equipment once she has it built? If she can run it as efficiently as American managers and American workmen and American genius can, then within 15 or 20 years Soviet Russia will be a real competitor of America. Her second motto, "Catch up with and pass America," will be close at hand.

But Russians are a non-mechanical people. Eighty-five per cent of them, up to a few years ago, could not read or write. They had never seen a more complicated machine than an eight-inch steel plow. They had no 150 years of mechanical tradition behind them.

And now in a brief half decade they are to be motorized and industrialized in terms of America. They are to start off in high gear.

I contend it is a magnificent and audacious dream — but that something is bound to break. Until they can get the hang of this new machine of civilization, they will rip out gear after gear.

They are thrilled beyond belief by anthing and everything mechanical. Driving through a little village in the North Caucasus, and stopping for a moment to ask directions, we had an old peasant beg us to wait until he could run and tell his wife so she could see our new motor car. He couldn't handle a monkey-wrench, but he had caught the religious fervor of the new god machinery.

HAVE CAPTURED PEOPLE

Everywhere in Russialand this is true. The machine—the factory — the motor car—the tractor — these are the symbols of new Russia. They have captured the minds of 152,000,000 people. But this 152,000,000 must teach old fashioned hands how to do modern things.

Today they will not be able to operate their great new plants and factories at more than 25 per cent of American efficiency. This means that it will take four times the labor—in terms of men and machinery—to turn out a given unit of product. They cannot overnight be shifted from a backward, agricultural people to a highly modernized, highly efficient mechanized people.

They can construct factories, import machinery and American technical aid, but the building of tractors, motors, machinery are fundamentally questions of assembly. The machine is no stronger than its weakest part.

They have neither engineers, trained managers nor efficient workers, nor do they understand the tremendous difficulties of exact materials. It will be impossible to turn out first-rate machines except after years of experimentation and elimination. Two things are indispensable: first, good workmanship, and second, good materials. Both are woefully lacking in Russia at present.

AMERICA THE GOAL

I stopped a schoolboy in the city of Rostov, in south Russia. He was a bright-eyed, eager lad of 14 —a Communist pioneer, a Russian Boy Scout. "What are you learning in school?" I asked him.

"I learn that we must have machines and tractors like America," he answered quickly and proudly. "Some day we will catch up and pass America. Then other countries will have to have revolutions so they can be like we are."

"Do you like America?" I asked.

"Yes, they have motor cars and machines. America is our goal." And then came the inevitable question—the result of these years of propaganda education: "When will America have her revolution?"

I laughed. But he was serious. "Well," I finally answered, "I suppose we'll have our revolution when they take the motor cars away from our workmen."

For minutes he argued with me. He had been taught the stock phrase and ideals. He was a "Pioneer"—A Red Boy Scout. In five years more he would be a Communist Youth, and then at 23 a full-fledged Communist. He was the voice of future Russia speaking.

INTERNATIONALISTS ALL

His older brothers—now between 20 and 30—have had the same narrow, pointed class education. In another 10 years they will be the rulers of Russia. All their thinking lives have been spent under the spell of Communism.

They have been taught in Communist schools; they have been preached and harangued and inspired with the "religion" of Communism. They are hard and Red and uncompromising. They are the real revolutionists—real internationalists.

They are interested in the masses of the world. They have abiding faith in their doctrines, and unshakable belief in their crusading destiny to change the whole social face of the world.

I shall never forget a group of these young men in a hotel dining room in Harkov. Ninety per cent of them wore their caps as they wolfed their food. They were proudly without manners, without culture, without gentleness. They were hard, determined, unsympathetic, burning up with the fire of their doctrines—with a self-confidence beyond belief. They were the "physical" Communists.

They are the new men of new Russia. They are the fruits of 12 years of Soviet teaching and propaganda. And these new men are from the old rough soil, but the new rough soul of Russia. They have been mechanised, industrialized. They dream of the coming of the machine age. They have given up all individualism. They are the bolts and wheels of the great Russian machine of the future.

MACHINE GOD

To these eager young millions who know nothing but Soviet philosophy—who have never felt the cool, free winds of the wide world blow through their minds—the machine is the new god.

They no longer believe that Russian bayonets can capture the "capitalistic world," but they are sure that once Russia can build a better civilization than any other country, they will win the world by the very force and power of their ideas.

To build this new Russia they turn to the country they hate most —to America, the perfect example of "capitalistic" efficiency. They will buy our brains and our machines. They will pay for them with gold and platinum and metals—with oil and timber—with caviar and eggs—with furs and coal and butter.

Then, with Russia industrialized —with the song of her city factories in tune with the hum of her million tractors and her new agriculture—she will contest for the world. And her rival will be America.

THIS is the second of a series of six articles on conditions in Soviet Russia of today which Frazier Hunt, war correspondent and magazine writer, has written for International News Service.

In this article Hunt makes the startling disclosure that Nicolai Lenin's death probably saved the cause of Communism, rather than damaged it; that during the last months of Lenin's life and rule in Russia the principles of Communism were being rapidly crowded out of Russia by a limited capitalistic economic policy.

It was Josef Stalin, the present "Iron Man" of Russia, who restored Communism, crushed the private trader and the rich peasant with a mailed fist, and dreamed the great dream of the five-year industrial plan.

In tomorrow's article Hunt tells us "Russia is still cruel and intolerate. Never has there been such a spy system, nor such an actuality of terror. Never has there been so little genuine personal freedom. Never has there been a government so centralized and autocratic. Never has life been harder and cruder. Religion is crushed and the home is in a transitory stage."

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—thief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors and dietitians because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is to soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

QUIZ DYE MAN ON 'USING' SEN. KING'S OFFICE

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—E. R. Pickrell of the General Dye Stuff Corporation of New York denied today before the Senate lobby committee that he had used the office of Senator King, Democrat, Utah, as headquarters during consideration of the pending tariff bill.

Questioned by Senator Robinson, of Indiana, the only regular Republican on the lobby committee, Pickrell said newspaper reports that he had used King's office as headquarters were untrue.

Pickrell said he had written two or three letters in King's office.

"You were with Senator King constantly," Robinson asserted.

"I was not," Pickrell replied.

"When did you last write a letter in his office?" the Indiana Senator asked.

"Along about September or October," the witness answered.

Robinson asked if Pickrell had ever met H. A. Metz of New York in King's office.

"I don't recall," he said.

The Indiana Senator asked Pickrell if he had made an appointment to meet Frank K. Boal, a newspaper man, in King's office.

Pickrell said he made an appointment, but was unable to keep it because he was called back suddenly to New York.

Liquor Being Taken Off U. S. Liner Seized

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Twelve hundred bottles of liquor, which apparently had lain secreted in the United States liner America for almost two months while she was being overhauled, today were seized by the crew of a customs department bureau patrol boat as the contraband lay on the deck of a lighter alongside the steamship in Hoboken.

The crew of a motor skiff tied up to the lighter, got away, but the customs men seized two of the American's crew who were on the lighter. They were turned over to their own officers for questioning.

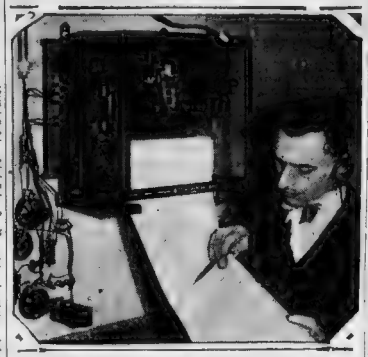
Solving Sun-Radio Riddle



Prof. Paul De Mars of Tufts, who is conducting extensive investigations into the effect of the sun on radio broadcasting and reception. (Photo by Munro.)

Study Effect of Sun on Radio at Tufts

Experiments are now in progress at Tufts to determine the effect of the sun and the upper atmosphere on radio transmission.

These studies are now being carried out by Prof. Paul DeMars and Dr. Gleason Kendrick, in collaboration with G. W. Pickard of the Wireless Specialty Apparatus Co., and Dr. L. W. Austin of the United States bureau of standards.

Observations of both the strength of signals and the height of the conducting layer in the upper atmosphere responsible for long distance radio transmission and also for fading are being carried out.

Doubtless most broadcast listeners have observed frequently wide variation in the effectiveness of reception from winter to summer and from night to night.

These effects are a result of the characteristics of the upper atmosphere, and by a consistent study of radio transmission and these relationships, an advance prediction of the conditions associated with radio transmission will in time be possible in the same way that weather phenomena may be anticipated.

Heavy Guard Over Viceroy in Bombay

Bombay, India, Jan. 14 (AP)—Arrival of Viceroy Lord Irwin and Lady Irwin here today from Delhi was kept strictly secret and private. Only the Governor and principal government officials were at the railway station to greet them.

Great precautions were taken to insure the viceroy's safety. The entire railway line from Bombay to Delhi was guarded closely and Bombay today swarms with plain clothes men and extra police brought to assist the regular force while he is here.

Noted Mt. Holyoke Principal, 94, Dies

South Hadley, Jan. 14 (AP)—Mrs. Anna Cheney Edwards, 94, an outstanding graduate of Mt. Holyoke, member of the faculty and assistant principal of the seminary for many years, died today in her home here. She was born in Northampton and was graduated from Mt. Holyoke in 1859. She taught school for a period and served for two years as principal of Lake Erie Seminary at Painsville, O., before returning to Mt. Holyoke to become principal.

Farm Board Confers With Vegetable Men

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Thirty representatives of fruit and vegetable co-operative associations met today with the Farm Board to discuss the feasibility of organizing national commodity organizations.

A Fine Record of Fair Dealing

Adjusting losses is but one part of Stock Fire Insurance service. Naturally, in the mind of the assured, it looms large when loss occurs. At that time it is the most important process of all.

Every day the adjuster meets people who have sustained losses against which they were insured. Whether greeted cordially or gruffly, the adjuster must handle his problem with tact and fairness. The reputation of his company goes with him into every case.

A Million Fire Loss Reports

Nearly a million reports of fire loss are filed annually with the Stock Fire Insurance companies. Of the claims arising from these reports, more than 99 percent are adjusted without resort to litigation; a splendid tribute to the fairness of the contracting parties — the public and the fire insurance companies.

The value of good will in the adjusting of losses is as much appreciated by the Stock Fire Insurance companies as it is in the acquisition of business.

Public Confidence

The records afford ample evidence of the sincere purpose of adjusters to settle claims in keeping with the rights of all concerned.

To the fair dealing of its adjusters Stock Fire Insurance owes a large measure of the public confidence which it enjoys.

PLAN PARTIES NEXT WEEK FOR DEBS

A WEEK FROM TODAY MRS. CHARLES BROOKS PERKINS of Beacon st. is giving a luncheon in honor of Miss Marna L. Duane, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brewerton Duane, also of Beacon st. Sixteen covers will be laid for this party, which is to take place at the Algonquin Club. Three years ago when Mrs. Perkins' daughter, the present Mrs. Charles Terry Collens (Eleanor S. Perkins), made her debut, among the festivities given for her was a luncheon at which Mrs. Duane was hostess at her Beacon st. residence.

THIS SAME DAY, JANUARY 21, Mrs. Charles L. Thayer and Miss Marjorie Thayer are to entertain at luncheon at the Hotel Sheraton, where they reside at the present time. The Thayers' summer home is at Marion. Miss Anstiss Putnam of Beacon st. is to be hostess at a luncheon at the Algonquin Club on Thursday, January 23.

THE FOURTH AND CONCLUDING of the Theater Guild performances is being produced at the Hollis Street theater this week, and tonight as at three other Tuesday soirees the Free Hospital for Women is to be the beneficiary. Many prominent people hold season tickets for these Tuesday evenings; therefore, a similarly smart audience to that present at the three former shows is anticipated. The play is Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," a rollicking comedy, highly valued by Shaw himself and greatly appreciated by all those who have already seen it.

THE ENTERTAINMENT committee to whom great credit is due for the success of these benefit performances is comprised of Mrs. Louis Curtis, Jr., Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper, Mrs. G. Richmond Fearing, Mrs. G. R. Fearing, 3d., Mrs. George P. Gardner, Jr., Mrs. Gelson T. King, Mrs. William Dana Orcutt, Mrs. Richard C. Paine, Mrs. Richard Saltonstall, Miss Alice Sargent, Mrs. Robert M. Tappan, Mrs. George E. Warren, Mrs. Leslie C. Wead, Mrs. Channing M. Wells, Mrs. Rose Whistler and Mrs. Moses Williams.

THIS TIME OF YEAR IN Boston is dull socially, and as to climate, most undesirable, therefore many are now wending their way to warmer climes. One of the most appealing trips is a cruise to the Caribbean Sea. On Saturday Miss Elizabeth Hubbard, who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. Gorham Hubbard of Beacon st., and Miss Esther Pierce are sailing for Cuba there to remain for some time. On February 6 Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collens of Low Row, Oak Hill, Newton Center, will take ship for a cruise to the West Indies.

STILL OTHERS DEPARTING for foreign shores are Prof. and Mrs. Oakes Ames, whose departure is scheduled for Saturday, Friday, Miss Constance Creighton and her father, Albert M. Creighton, leave for a trip to the South Sea Islands, their itinerary including Australia and New Zealand. The first of next month, Miss Peggy Creighton is starting for Honolulu with her mother, where they have taken a charming house for the season, and there father and Miss Constance will join them later on. Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Hunnewell (Mary Frances Oakes) of Wellesley are leaving for Honolulu the first week in February, to be gone about seven weeks.

A DINNER CELEBRATING the 50th anniversary of the Family Welfare Society is taking place at the Hotel Somerset this evening at 7. Mrs. John M. Glenn, president of the Family Welfare Association of America, is to speak, as is also Mrs. John F. Moors, Bishop Lawrence and Dr. Richard C. Cabot. This organization was at one time operated under the name of the Associated Charities. Many prominent society people are planning to attend this affair.

INVITATIONS HAVE BEEN sent out in behalf of the trustees of the Boston Dispensary, the Boston Floating Hospital and Tufts College by the members of the executive committee sponsoring the New England Medical Center to a dinner on Thursday evening, January 23. The dinner is to be held at the Copley-Plaza at 7 o'clock.

MR. AND MRS. LLOYD D. BRACE (Helen Rhodes) have purchased and recently moved to an attractive estate in Dover. Formerly they made their home on Chestnut st.

MISS MARIAN UPTON, daughter of the George Uptons of Channing st., Cambridge, is leaving for New York today to visit friends. She will return to Boston the 26th, arriving in time to attend the next meeting of the Scribblers' Club. This club meets at the League rooms fortnightly on Monday.

Betty Alden

Miss Anne Tuckerman is the debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tuckerman of Union Park, a provisional member of the Junior League and a member of the Vincent Club. The ribbon over shoulder marks her as an usher at a recent charitable event.

AUCTION BRIDGE

by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

PREPARING FOR A NEEDED DISCARD

Many games are lost that could be won had Declarer but refused to win a trick in an early stage of the play. With an inevitable loser in the suit opened, Declarer has nothing to lose and may have much to gain by conceding such loss at once.

If conceded at once, the leader may have no clearly marked suit to another suit. If conceded later, a shift which may prevent game will almost surely be disclosed. In the above hand West opens with the King of Diamonds. Should South win with the Ace, he will not go game. Should he refuse to win, he will go game; unless West shifts to Hearts, a shift not marked as the only one that will save game.

The Bidding

Auction: South's holding presents an option as to an original bid of one or of three Spades. Either would be sound. Exercising this option South bids one Spade originally with the firm intention of rebidding Spades if necessary or expedient. West passing, North decries Spades with No-Trump. East passing, South bids two Spades to indicate that he is looking for side support only, which if held by North, should produce game at Spades more surely possibly, than at No-Trump. (At No-Trump, North and South make but one odd against perfect defense.)

Contract: South, as in Auction, starts with but one Spade. Following North's two No-Trump take out, however, South assured of side support, must now bid four Spades, concluding the bidding.

The Play

West's apparent best opening is the King of Diamonds from ♦ Q 10. Following this opening, South pauses to consider the situation. He can lose four tricks one Spade, one Diamond and two Hearts. How best to try to pick up one of these losers? Obviously, by refusing first to win the King of Diamonds provided West, if permitted to hold the trick, does not shift to Hearts.

Should West no shift, then another chance remains, to wit the dropping of the Queen of Spades on the lead of the Ace and King, or by a winning finesse of the Jack or Ten. Taking his first chance, South refuses to win the King of Diamonds, hoping West will not shift to Hearts. South's hope comes true as West's seeming best shift is to his Jack of Clubs.

With this shift, South can see a sure game in hand provided he does not risk a Spade finesse. He, therefore, wins the Club lead, lays down his Ace and King of Spades and, failing to drop the Queen, leads a remaining small Diamond, finesses the Jack and lays down the Ace upon which he discards one of his two losing Hearts.

From this point on, South must make his needed ten tricks, assuming he draws out West's Queen of Trumps and captures his remaining Spade before he employs it to ruff.

N. Y. BANKER IN 9-STORY FALL TO DEATH

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Herbert Spencer Martin, 47 years old, a vice-president of S. W. Straus & Co., investment bankers, early today either fell or jumped to his death from a window of his ninth floor apartment in Park ave.

His body was found in the rear courtyard by a house employe and a passerby who heard the thud as the body struck the ground.

Mr. Martin also was a vice-president of the Ambassador Hotels Corporation.

His wife, the former Madeline Straus, daughter of the banker, told the police Martin had suffered a nervous breakdown a year and a half ago and that they had been planning to sail today for Europe to consult nerve specialists.

Mrs. Martin, said she had accompanied her husband to the theatre last night and on their return both busied themselves packing for the trip. She said she fell asleep and was awakened by an attache of the apartment house, who called her on the telephone to notify her of her husband's death.

She said her husband when unable to sleep had been accustomed to stand before an open window to breathe fresh air and she believed that while doing so this morning he fainted and fell.

Mr. Martin was a manufacturer of women's garments before entering the banking business. In 1923 he turned over the business founded by his father and capitalized at $1,000,000 to four employes as a reward for long service. The employes were to assume full control and pay for the business out of its earnings on easy terms.

The Martins lived in a duplex apartment on the eighth and ninth floors of a large apartment house on Park ave. between 75th and 76th sts.

The building is owned by Senator Royal S. Copeland, who also occupies an apartment there.

350 MILLIONS IN DRUGS ENTER NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 14—Narcotics of an estimated annual retail value of more than $350,000,000 are being smuggled into the country and transported openly through the streets of New York, into the hands of the drug rings operating here

Direct evidence to this effect, and the means by which the shipments are brought in, has come into the possession of U. S. Atty. Charles H. Tuttle and his assistants, John M. Blake and Alvin McK. Sylvester.

A further development was that the unhampered importation of these drugs is with the apparent connivance and assistance of certain customs officers, who are winking at the shipments and permitting them to pass through the port without examination

A loophole in the customs regulations of the Federal Government is the means that has been seized upon by the narcotic rings to bring in drugs virtually unhampered, and with little possibility of detection.

This shield of the narcotic rings is the "inter-transit permits" of the Treasury Department, issued to truckmen for the movement of import shipments from the ships' piers to railroad terminals when the consignments are destined to some interior point.

In delving into the records of Arnold Rothstein, Tuttle and his assistants have uncovered this loophole. More than 500 letters and telegrams between Rothstein and his narcotic aids in other countries give details of their widespread operations, and show the leak in the customs wall by which they were smuggled.

HUNT SHERIFF KIDNAPERS

Chandler, Ariz., Jan. 14 (AP)—Armed posses patrolled highways of three central Arizona counties today, searching for a woman and two men who shot and kidnaped a deputy sheriff in Florence and wounded another deputy who attempted to stop their automobile near here.

The wounded officers, Joe Chapman of Florence and Lee Wright of Chandler, were taken to a hospital in Mesa, Ariz. Their condition was not known.

The first alarm was received from Florence, four miles south of here, at 10 p. m., stating Chapman had been kidnaped by two men and a blonde woman about 30 years old, whom he attempted to question concerning ownership of the automobile.

Speaking for ICE—

A new Ice plant will soon be built on Eagle Street, East Boston. The plant will be in full operation on or about May 1st.

During winter months and in the cool days of spring The Boston Ice Company manufactures and stores away huge reserve supplies to take care of its customers' extra demands for service in mid-summer.

With the completion of this ninth plant, people in and near Boston will be assured of an adequate supply of ice as pure and sparkling as is obtainable anywhere in the world.

FROM STRENGTH TO STRENGTH
An event of great significance in the financial history of Boston is the merging of the First National Bank of Boston and the Old Colony Trust Company. Bank consolidations are sometimes necessary or desirable because one of the banks to be merged is in weak condition and requires help to fulfill its obligations, but here we find the largest bank and the largest trust company in New England uniting so as to be bigger and stronger, to give better service to the public, and to operate more profitably.
Just as a great railroad is formed by the union of a number of small roads, a big bank may be made by the merging of several smaller banks. The National Bank of Redemption was a strong and prosperous bank when it consolidated with the First National and accepted the name of the latter for the combined interests. That was twenty years or more ago, and the bank was fortunate in securing Daniel G. Wing to be its President. Other banks were absorbed, and two or three years ago the International Trust Company was added. The First National directors have not sought to secure any banks but the strong and prosperous when mergers have been considered, and union with the Old Colony Trust Co

Big Banks Mean More Big Banks
The announcement today that negotiations are proceeding for the union of the First National Bank and the Old Colony Trust Company will come as no surprise to those who are conversant with the banking situation in Boston or those who have had occasion to study financial trends in the larger cities of the country. The day of big banks has definitely arrived and the newest merger here is no more unexpected than has been the nation's consolidation of some of the more important industrial concerns. The country is prosperous and even larger industrial consolidations are in prospect. To meet the problems that grow out of this situation large banks are needed. That is the essential philosophy behind this present consolidation, behind consolidations which the past and behind consolidations which are almost certain to come in the future.

THE BANK MERGER
The merging of the First National Bank and the Old Colony Trust Company is an event of the first importance not only for Boston but for New England. Considered simply with reference to the financial magnitude of the institutions directly concerned it will command the attention of the whole country. For the New England states as a whole the merging will command the attention of the entire financial world.
It is a guarantee of confidence in New England's future. The prosperity of a bank or other institution is bound up with the prosperity of the region it serves. Such things are not merely dependent upon accurate forecasting of the future, merely on accurate guessing of coming events, but they depend largely on accurate knowledge of the ability to take advantage of forecasting of future conditions and tendencies and time and in the right way. The arrangement now concluded between the First National and the Old Colony is in line with the best practice. It may be accepted as the forerunner of many similar mergers which will be found to be in the interest of and of the community. The

Making History
Today, when the First National Bank and the Old Colony Trust Company carry their plan of affiliation into the stage of living, serving and working reality, we fully agree that "New England makes banking history." When students of the economic growth of New England look back upon this date ten, twenty or thirty years from now, the inception of this important merger most certainly will be found to have contributed in a score of significant ways to New England's strength and prosperity. It is a great new beginning, so great that it is bound to have great new consequence.
But the fact which chiefly inspires faith in that outcome is a fact of a very different color, in no part drawn from the realm of prophecy and prediction, but from the field of observed and established truth. In these days when transactions involving millions of dollars are every whit as common as those which of old involved hundreds of thousands, we are living in a time when New England most

New England responds

NEW ENGLAND'S enthusiastic response to the merging of The First National Bank of Boston and Old Colony Trust Company has been gratifying indeed. To quote a typical newspaper editorial:

"We congratulate the officers and directors of The First National Bank and the Old Colony Trust Company for their achievement in building a banking combine which will give New England a $700,000,000 bank, one of the ten largest financial institutions in the country.

"This great bank will be better able to serve the needs of New England business. It should help to keep New England capital at work in New England. This is the day of big things, and New England must have big banks for big business."

Through its Main Office at 67 Milk Street and through eighteen branch offices conveniently located in Greater Boston, this institution offers you its services.

COME IN—the water's fine!

THE calamity howlers would have us believe the country is headed straight for the bow-wows and that quota will be a mighty rare bird in 1930.

That kind of talk might disconcert a novice, but we know the old timers, with clear heads and steady eyes are going right out after the bag limit.

There were 58 new users of color page advertising in The American Weekly during 1929.

The American Weekly will carry more advertising and show a greater circulation during 1930 than during any previous year in its history.

Twelve additional new advertisers have already bought color page space in The American Weekly for 1930 and advance orders for 1930 are hundreds of thousands of dollars ahead of what they were last year at this time.

This, despite the fact that during 1929 this great magazine broke all lineage records and passed the six million circulation mark, the record circulation for all publications for all time.

This marks the third consecutive year for advertising lineage and circulation increases and 1930 will be the fourth record year.

The astonishing thing is not that The American Weekly has registered the largest gains in the entire magazine field, but that even more advertisers have not seen the cold logic of using this publication as a major medium.

Business is not going to the bow-wows, but the wise old timer is going to use the maximum load and a full choked barrel.

Think of it! For $16,000 you can buy a color page in The American Weekly—a page nearly three times the size of any other magazine page—and reach one-fourth of the entire buying population of America!

For The American Weekly is read by more than 6,000,000 families located in the country's richest buying centers and you can reach this tremendous market at a cost of less than ½ cent per family.

How can you invest your 1930 advertising dollars more effectively than to spend them for space in the medium that reaches the most people, and the best people, at the lowest cost?

Run your eye down the list of advertisers who have come to this conclusion.

Come in, the water's fine!

The month of December, 1929, was the greatest month in volume of orders received in the history of The American Weekly.

LOVEJOY by BEATRICE BURTON

A Wonderful Love Story by Author of 'Hollywood Girl,' 'Easy.'

What Has Happened Before
Armed with happiness, love and youth, Tom Nicholson and Lovejoy Mason are married. Tom's salary is small. They take a tiny flat. To both marriage was a leap in the dark. For two years before the marriage Tom had been jealous of Steve Oglebay, rich and handsome bachelor. Downtown with his friend, Norrie Shane, Lovejoy meets Steve. Although Norrie refuses, Lovejoy goes along to lunch with him. She sees Tom.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER 4

UNTIL that moment Lovejoy had not realized that she was doing anything wrong.

But she knew it now. She knew it by the strong feeling of guilt and terror that came sweeping over her in a flood the very instant that she saw Tom sitting there on the other side of the big restaurant.

He was talking earnestly to the middle-aged man who was with him.

And even through her terror and her embarrassment Lovejoy noticed how good-looking he was with his straight back, his broad square shoulders and the fine head that was set upon them.

Suppose he suddenly turned that handsome head of his and saw her sitting there with Stephen Oglebay.

What would he think?

What would he do?

How could she explain things to him? Her being there with a man who had been in love with her for years.

"Steve," she said tensely, "Tom's sitting over there in the corner. I'm afraid I shouldn't have come here with you—I'm afraid he'll see me and be angry. . . ."

She broke off talking as the waiter came up to the table and set a cup of iced tomato bouillon before her.

"But you told Miss Shane that you'd tell your husband about lunching lunch with me," Steve reminded her, and picking up his spoon he began his soup. "You said he wouldn't care."

Lovejoy nodded her head, her face full of misery.

"I know—" she answered vaguely.

But it was one thing to tell your husband about lunching with another if he were not there. And it was quite another to have him catch you in the very act of eating that cozy little meal for two.

"I'm going, Steve," she said suddenly, and pushed back her chair. "I'm going before Tom sees me."

She gathered up her gloves and handbag and packages from the chair beside her.

As she swayed slowly to her feet Tom turned his head and saw her. Fascinated and unable to move, she watched his eyes narrow as they took her and Steve Oglebay in. . . . She found herself stupidly wondering what she was thinking about finding the pair of them there.

Frowning, he crumpled up his napkin in his hands and laid it down on the cloth before him. He said something to the man who sat across the table from him, and then stood up. All this he did without once taking his eyes from Lovejoy's face.

He started across the room.

And then—

And then in the wide arch of the doorway that opened from the lobby, a tall slender figure suddenly appeared as if by magic. . . . Norrie Shane, her arms full of little packages, her plain round face flushed far back from her forehead, her eyes searching the dining room.

Lovejoy made a sound that was half a laugh and half a sob of relief as she saw her standing there. Then she went hurrying across the deep soft carpet and laid a welcoming hand on her shoulder.

"Norrie," she said to her half hysterically, "you're saved my life. Please let Tom think I knew you were coming here."

There was no time to explain. No time to even say another word.

For Tom had reached the doorway almost as soon as she had. He was standing close to her, looking from her face to Norrie's and grinning in his boyish friendly way as he began to take Norrie's bundles from her.

"I'll give these to the check-girl," he was saying. "She'll look after them. . . . . How did you girls happen to come in here for lunch? Why didn't you tell me you were coming down town this morning? I would have been glad to stand you both to a square meal."

It was Norrie who answered him. "We just happened to run into Mr. Oglebay," she said stiffly. "We were going to have lunch at Tingley's . . . but we happened to meet him."

And so she lied like a lady for the second time that day, to make

CURLEY IS BACKED IN $30,000,000 BUILDING PLAN

Cripple's Wife Begs Governor to Halt Hunger Strike

BOTH SIDES TO AID IN BUILDING

Employers and Employes Pledge Aid to Curley in Big Program

Co-operation in making Mayor Curley's projected $30,000,000 building plan for 1930 possible was promised today by employers and workers in the building trades.

Representatives of both factions assured the mayor that they are anxious to co-operate in furthering the program.

Along this line their representatives were awaiting the outcome of a conference between national groups of employers and employes at Tampa where efforts are being made to adjust a controversy over wages involving four crafts.

Mayor Curley got the "strikeless Boston" boom for 1930 under way at a conference in his office, which was attended by nearly 75 representatives of industry and labor.

It developed that with the exception of four trades, there are existing agreements that will cover the present year. The trades are stone cutters, glaziers, ironworkers and painters. Their representatives were present and it was agreed that the matter would be taken up with the members of the crafts.

URGES SETTLEMENT

Mayor Curley was emphatic in his declaration that the existing difficulties involving the above crafts could and should be settled in order that promoters of new building could be given definite guarantees they would not be handicapped.

He added that he saw no reason why differences should stand in the way of the consummation of a building program which, he believes, may be comparable to that in 1922 when he succeeded in obtaining a similar agreement with the result that new building which cost $70,000,000, was constructed.

"It is in your hands," he continued, "and I trust that you will take into consideration every factor, weigh them carefully and appreciate that this conference was called primarily for the benefit of the workers. I desire to do everything possible to give confidence to those who are desirous of constructing new buildings this year."

LABOR MEN HOPEFUL

The importance of the problem of jurisdiction was described by John Carroll of the Cement Finishers' Union, who declared that it was a national problem, but expressed the opinion that the dispute might be settled on a purely Boston basis.

The mayor then made it plain to both groups that rather than incur the risk of having this great building program held up by jurisdictional strikes, the city funds would be expended in a program of street construction, widenings and improvements, which it is understood would reduce the program by about $20,000,000.

The conference adjourned to February 10

DRAPER WILL STAY IN RACE FOR SENATE

Dismisses Rumor That He Will Withdraw in Favor of W. M. Butler

"Nothing in the present situation has changed my intention to become a candidate for the seat from which Senator Gillett is retiring."

With this terse statement, former State Senator Eben S. Draper of Hopedale today dismissed current rumors that he would withdraw from the senatorial race in the event William M. Butler, former Republican National Committeeman and ex-United States Senator, again decided to make a try for the toga.

Friends of Draper, who supported him in the three-cornered primary battle in 1928, when he came within approximately 20,000 votes of capturing the nomination over R. Loring Young, machine candidate, interpreted the statement of their candidate to mean that he is in the fight to a finish. They pointed out that he has never retired from any contest he entered.

Draper's stand for modification of the Volstead act has not changed, it was also learned. Only through modification, he believes, can true temperance be promoted. He styles himself as a "liberal" rather than a "wet."

It is expected Draper will issue a formal statement shortly and that his views on many national and state issues will be given at that time.

BACKS PLAN FOR MEMORIAL

Declaring that the "spirit that animates the radical prohibitionists today is similar to that of the Salem witch hunters," former Rep. Arthur Blanchard of Cambridge today gave his support to a proposal approved by the Salem city council for a State built memorial to the nineteen victims of the witchcraft trials at Gallows Hill, Salem.

Speaking before the Legislation Committee on Ways and Means Blanchard stated that a memorial would be a "constant warning against fanaticism," and enable the State to expiate its crime."

Speaking for the Salem City Council, Councilor Michael P. Mc-Grath that historical research has established the site of the hangings more than 1000 feet from Gallows Hill park. The position, he said, should be marked this year for the benefit of the thousands of tourists who will come to Salem in connection with the celebration of the Massachusetts Bay Colony tercentenary.

The financing of the memorial should be by the State, it was argued, in view of the fact that the witchcraft prosecutions were carried out under the direction of the colony through a court appointed by Governor William Phipps

Others in favor of the memorial were Gen. William A. Pew of Salem, Van Ness Bates, member of the Salem tercentenary committee former Mayor Daniel J. Long, and several members of the Legislature

Civil Service 'Firsts' Sometimes 'Lasts' to Wilson

WILSON FIGHTS POLICE TESTS

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson appeared before the civil service commissioners today and vigorously opposed their decision to make examinations for police captains competitive

Under the eligible list which expires next June 11 he has been appointing from any part of the list Under the competitive examination scheduled for next Friday the commissioner will have to make a preference from the first three names on the list.

Commissioner Wilson said he did not appear in any antagonistic spirit, and had nothing to say against the competitive examinations for sergeants and lieutenants, but did feel too much responsibility was placed on his shoulders if he had to pick men from the first three.

Wet-Dry Guns Primed for 'Black Thursday'

Birthday observances are planned both by wets and drys for the tenth anniversary of prohibition Thursday, but the programs will be of a widely different nature.

Members of the Liberal Civic League and the Constitutional Liberty League, will hold a protest meeting at Faneuil hall at noon. It is intended as a "memorial service for the death of liberty."

Black armbands and neckties will be worn, and soft dirges will be played. Prayers will be offered for those killers in the enforcement of the law and taps will be sounded at the conclusion of the last rite.

The wet organizations have announced that this will be a solemn protest against the "tyranny of prohibition."

The drys for their part plan speeches calling attention to the alleged benefits of the law. Allen C. Ropes of the State Women's Christian Temperance Union stated that a summary of the benefits of the law will be broadcast

Arthur J. Davis, head of the Anti-Saloon League, said that he was preparing a lengthy statement on the 10 years that the country has had prohibition.

Julian Codman and David Sibley, noted anti-prohibitionists, plan to renew their attacks upon the dry stands and to refute the statements that prohibition is benefiting the American people.

From practically every side of the controversy there will be plenty of matter circulated, and the day which the wets have already dubbed "Black Thursday," will be one of the most active that either side has yet seen

Somerville Mayor to Outline Plans

Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville will be the speaker, tonight, at the monthly meeting of the West Somerville Civic Association, in the Western Junior high school, West Somerville

Mayor Murphy will explain his plans for a new police building, fire station, two new elementary schools, and make reference to the junior high school system. Dr. John E. Gillis, president of the association, will preside.

Hurley Sworn In

John L. Hurley of Malden, recently named a special assistant United States attorney to try the 450 Veterans' Bureau cases, now on the docket of the Federal Court involving War Risk insurance, was sworn in by Hugo S. $50,000 Burrage Gift to Horticulturists

A gift of $50,000 to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has been announced by Albert C. Burrage, who is beginning his 10th year as president.

The terms of the gift provide that the money shall be divided into two funds, the income from one of which will be used to purchase books for the library, while that of the other will be used for the purchase of a gold cup to be awarded at the end of each year for the best exhibit made at any of the shows in that year

HALT GOLD STAR BOOK ISSUE

Distribution of the Gold Star Record edition of Massachusetts men who died during the World War while in the military or naval service is practically at a standstill, it was revealed today at a hearing before the legislative committee on ways and means

Rep. Albert L. Potter of Gardner declared that those entitled to the books do not know that the books cannot be sent to them until a written application has been received by the secretary of state

"They are under the impression," he said, "that the secretary will dig out their names and send the book to them himself. But the law specifically calls for a written application in each instance."

Potter asked the committee to recommend widening the scope of the law so that heirs-at-law would be entitled to the book in the event that widow, father and mother of deceased veterans are also deceased

If there are more than one heir-at-law, the secretary of state would be empowered to designate the one entitled to the record

The Massachusetts Department of the American Legion was placed on record in favor of the change by Representative Leo J. Hallinan

'SCOOP' SHEA IS FETED

Dennis F. "Scoop" Shea, of Ware, fish and game warden, was the guest of honor last night at a testimonial dinner tendered by a group of Boston sportsmen at Hotel Kenmore.

Gifts, as tokens of the esteem in which both are held by the assembled sportsmen and anglers were presented to "Scoop" and to his son, J. Anthony Shea, by T. Sykes Hinman, as toastmaster.

The minutes of the last meeting of the "Seven Winter Club" were read by Bill Thatcher; Pete "Alouette" Lavigne, of Worcester, led the singing and his brother, Walter, entertained with bar stories.

Songs and dances were rendered by Miss Ann Peters and Miss Dorothy Crawford, night club entertainers.

Among the guests were Dr. George Spencer Ritner, of Newark, N. J., and Raymond J. Kenney, deputy chief game warden

Bank of England Job for Prof. Sprague

The first American ever to be so honored, Prof. Oliver M. W. Sprague of Harvard, has been named in a position of great trust in the Bank of England.

Prof. Sprague, a recognized authority on the theory and history of banking, left Cambridge unannounced, for London, on a hasty three weeks' trip. He will confer with Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England.

No official announcement of any kind has as yet been made regarding the forthcoming interviews, but close friends of Prof Sprague expect that he will be asked to work as the Bank of England's liaison officer with the central banks of other countries.

Loses Nurse by Ruling of the High Court; Gov. Allen Promises Probe

Alarmed by threats of her crippled husband to go on another hunger strike rather than be without medical attention, Mrs. George A. Meuse of 6 Shailer at., Brookline, today appealed to Governor Allen for aid

This appeal again brings to attention one of the most perplexing cases in the history of Massachusetts.

Once before the paralyzed carpenter went on a hunger strike when deprived of his male nurse, and his threat to repeat the performance is the result of a decision of the State Supreme Court in favor of an insurance company, which had discontinued paying for the nurse

COMPANY PAID $14,000

The Federal Mutual Liability Company already has paid out $14,000 as a result of Meuse's fall six years ago from a roof.

Meuse complained several months ago when the company discontinued his nurse's services. He contended such services should be his for life, and the State Industrial Accident Board, with some qualifications, upheld him. This decision the Supreme Court upsets.

Mrs. Meuse, who helps support her disabled husband and their six-year-old child by dressmaking, now asks that the State provide special legislation or some other way of dealing with the case.

NURSE WILLING TO STAY

Harold Briggs, the male nurse, has volunteered to remain with the carpenter until the case is settled one way or another, it is said.

Meuse asserts his threat is not a bluff, as he prefers to starve to death rather than exist as a burden upon his family. The Governor promised the wife that he would look into the case immediately.

FLAMES PERIL TRUCK DRIVER

A little overflow while filling the tank of his truck at Broadway and the Fairmount line, resulted today in Charles Silvia of Linden st. Taunton, being severely burned, in his truck being damaged and in traffic being tied up for half an hour.

When the gasoline flowed over it ran down on the hot exhaust pipe and caught fire. Flames leaped the driver, Silvia, in the cab of the truck

A. J. Dozzi, filling station attendant, who was pumping the gasoline, rushed to Silvia's aid after he finally had managed to leap from the cab and beat out the flames in his clothing.

Meanwhile Patrolman W. K. Holden, sighting the fire from a short distance away sounded the alarm

Bishop William F Anderson called upon Mayor Curley today and received the mayor's promise that he would extend a personal welcome to the Methodist bishops' convocation in Boston, May 13.

2 Liquor Squad Cops Ignore Each Other for Months

Capt. George W. Patterson of the police liquor squad today ordered Sergt. William H. McKenzie and Special Officer Bernard McGinnis to make out a report of the reasons why they do not speak to each other.

When the order is concerned, each has maintained a stony silence for several months. The trouble between them is reported to have started when one arrested and had jailed a bootlegger the other was using as a witness with the promise of immunity.

Capt. Patterson's action follows yesterday's report that a sergeant was to be placed in charge of the squad McGinnis now commands.

1915 VALUATION OF NEW HAVEN RAILROAD IS SET AT $256,000,000

ANNOUNCED IN REPORT OF I. C. C.

Final Figures for Owned and Used Properties of the New England System

A final valuation upon the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad as of June 30, 1915, of $256,400,000 on owned and used property, was placed today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The valuation, including nine subsidiaries of the road, valued used but not owned property at $120,615,725 and owned but not used property at $3,516,850.

Investment of the carrier in road and equipment, including land, in 1915, was stated on its books as $190,505,843, which would be increased to $197,670,038 upon readjustment in accounting.

As to corporate financing the report showed that from date of its incorporation in 1915, the New Haven had issued or assumed capital securities to the amount of $498,080,300, of which $124,224,810 had been retired, leaving $373,861,-490 outstanding on June 30, 1915. Outstanding securities consisted of $187,117,900 of capital stock and $216,743,450 funded debt, including $2,463,350 par value held by the carrier. Short-term notes to the amount of $361,428,419 were issued by the carrier, of which $351,289,-418 had been retired, leaving $36,-139,000 outstanding on June 30, 1915.

Valuation on owned, but not used, properties of the nine subsidiary lines which New Haven leases are as follows: Old Colony R. R., $49,795,000; Boston & Providence (Mass.), $18,350,000; Boston & Providence (R. I.), $5,000,000 Providence, Warren & Bristol, $2,-025,000; Harlem River and Portchester, $30,154,500; Holyoke & Westfield, $1,580,000; Providence & Worcester, $10,375,000; Chatham R. R., $150,000, and Norwich & Worcester, $6,187,000.

Cost of reproduction new on wholly owned and used properties was fixed at $243,463,720 and $184,-619,712 less depreciation.

Property held by the railroad for purposes other than those of a common carrier included $13,562,317 in non-carrier lands.

As to the valuation date investment securities of other companies of a total book value of $227,309,-$30 was shown. This sum included $29,017,617 in Boston & Maine R. R., $66,027,209 invested in other railroads, $98,220,787 invested in trolley lines, water transportation and public utilities and $14,153,787 as other investments.

Perfect Girl as B. U. Boys Define Her

Rumbling, muttering and the general unrest which has been prevalent among the boys at Boston University, due to the co-eds' stories about their perfect man, has finally crystallized and the men have answered.

Here is the perfect girl per the boys' code.

Ordinary Intelligence, but not too brilliant, and in most cases college girls are taboo. Money might help although it is not essential. Above all she must be tall, slim and sociable. Despite Anita Loos' statement these gentlemen prefer brunettes.

The men from whom these concepts were drawn are the leading athletes, school presidents and social leaders at the university.

The first young man cornered was "Jimmy" Dincolo, the best football guard B. U. has had in many years. "Jimmy" emphatically stated: "My ideal is practical, she does not have to be beautiful, but she must be neat, have a pleasant disposition and preferably a high school graduate. Above all she must learn how to cook spaghetti."

"Bob" Berry, president of the sophomore class at the college of business administration and basketball player of no mean ability, was next. He said: "I like them dark and tall. Dome-ite women are barred, but the young lady must be willing to spend a quiet evening at home occasionally."

After hearing "Bob" Berry's deductions, "Pop" Nims, Berry's basketball partner, claimed that "Bob" was all wet. "Blondes are the things," quoted "Pop." And he went on to say: "I want her tall and sociable, need not have money, but must have personality."

WANTS A NICE DRESSER

Jack Query, president of the school of education, spoke rather reluctantly: "I have no ideal girl, the only things I ask is that she mix and love music and if I can afford a cook, I would rather not have her domestic."

Jack Carnie, president of the senior class at the college of business administration, said his ideal is: "Easy to look at, educated, sociable, domestically inclined and a sports lover."

To make the survey complete Charlie Stearns, alias "Murphy," in charge of periodicals at Boston University and considered to be a part of the institution, wants no gold digger but a home girl who can dance a bit and is sociable and blonde."

MARY AMES TO WED SATURDAY

Howard Gardner Cushing, Harvard graduate and son of the late Howard G. Cushing, artist, and Miss Mary Callender Ames, daughter of Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames of New York, Boston and North Easton, will be united at St. Thomas' Church, New York, Saturday.

Their engagement was announced just a year ago, but during the late winter both Mr Cushing and Miss Ames changed their minds and on April 27 it was announced that the engagement had been broken by mutual consent.

Miss Ames makes her home with her mother at 1010 Fifth ave, and Mr. Cushing lives at 121 East 70th st, with his mother, Mrs. J. Dennison Sawyer.

Big Fish Pier at Gloucester Sought

News of a prospective fish pier at Gloucester was received at Boston fish pier today, one that would rival their own, the largest fish mart in the world.

A resolve filed in the State Legislature by Rep. Harold B. Webber of Gloucester calls for the creation of a special commission to study the advisability of such a pier.

Gloucester ranks first in the dried fish industry in this country and second in the fresh trade.

The commission would consist of a senator, two representatives and the chairman of the State Department of Public Works, according to the resolve.

Record Crowd for Shoe Style Show

The 8th annual Boston Shoe Style show opens today at the Hotel Statler with indications that it will draw the largest attendance in its history.

Advance styles in spring and summer footwear are being placed before 10,000 shoe manufacturers, buyers and salesmen from all sections of the country, and Boston hotels are crowded to capacity with the out-of-town shoe men.

Taxi Driver Held in Auto Fatality

A charge of manslaughter was brought in the Revere district court today against Thomas W. Dowd of Kimball ave., taxi driver and former police officer, whose automobile is alleged to have caused the death of William M. Finley, 6% year-old watchman. Dowd pleaded not guilty and explained that his first knowledge of the man's presence on the Parkway boulevard was the sound of a body being hit by his machine.

The case was continued until Jan 21, and the taxi driver was released on personal recognizance.

TRIO BEAT, ROB ROOM CLERK

Lured to a room on the third floor early today, Henry Warden, clerk in a lodging house at 330 Tremont st., was attacked, badly beaten and robbed of $40 by three men.

Warden told police he saw the trio for the first time several hours before, when they took a room and paid for it in advance.

Just before the robbery, he said, one of the men came down stairs appearing very nervous, stood near his desk for a short time and then returned, apparently to his room.

He reappeared, however, and asked Warden to go up to the room as there was some trouble. Warden complied, and as he entered the room he was seized by the three men and severely pummeled.

The $40, part of the day's receipts, was in an inside pocket. He said the men were apparently familiar with his habits of carrying the money there.

TIDE FLOODS ATLANTIC AVE.

With a rise of two feet above normal, the highest tide since November flooded the waterfront today.

At Long wharf the sea seeped over the wharf and formed a pool in the depression near the Atlantic ave. end. Heavy trucks were forced to splash their to and from points on the wharf.

At the Charles River dam of the Metropolitan District Commission the official reading was given as 12 feet and 77-100 inches. The tide predicted for today was 10 feet 9 inches.

Many storehouse cellars were flooded along the waterfront, and vessels tied up at the docks along Atlantic ave. reated as high as though they were sitting on the dock itself.

A heavy easterly wind added to the height in unsheltered places, sending the sea washing up over ripples on the western side of the harbor.

PLACED IN BRIG AFTER STAGING '1-MAN MUTINY'

"Passenger" Aboard a West African Liner Plans Action Against the Company

With a strange tale of a one-man mutiny, a trip to the brig in irons and orders to work despite sickness, Napoleon Langlois, 26, of Highland st., Waltham, ended a trip from West Africa today on the steamer Otho that docked in Charlestown.

Langlois was met by his brother, John Langlois, and both went in search of an admiralty lawyer to institute proceedings against the Barber Steamship Co. of New York, owners of the American-West African line.

According to his story, Langlois was a member of the crew of the steamer Padnay of the same line. At Dakar, West Africa, he was stricken with chronic rheumatism and taken to a hospital.

When he had recovered sufficiently to travel, his ship had sailed, the youth said, and he made arrangements to sail for here as a passenger aboard the Ohio.

Capt. E. W. Meese, skipper of the vessel, maintained he had signed aboard as a workaway, and under this classification he was admitted here by Immigration Inspector Frank Quinn during government inspection.

Langlois contended he was a passenger, however, but ship's papers are alleged to have shown he signed as a workaway before the American consul at Dakar.

According to the youth's story, the vessel was a short time under way when Capt. Meese ordered him to work. He refused and was put in the brig in irons, he said.

Fire Head Is Happiest When With Family

If one should ask "Eddie" McLaughlin, recently appointed by Mayor Curley as fire commissioner, what he liked best to do with his spare time the answer would be, "stay at home and play with my children."

When surrounded at home by Mrs. McLaughlin and his four children, two girls and two boys, all of school age, he is at his happiest moments.

One may find him any evening at his modest home in Pond st., Jamaica Plain, assisting all of the four children with the problems that have puzzled them during their school hours.

Appointment as head of the fire fighting forces of the city has made little change in the home life of the former State senator.

You just can't help from calling him "Eddie." It really seems contagious. To see him with his family you would think any minute that the children were about to call him "Eddie" but they respectfully refer to him as "my daddy."

But McLaughlin is not so important in this story as the children. Let us take them in order. There is Miss Mary, who has just passed 12. She is a bright, blue-eyed little lady and an honor pupil at the Girls' Latin School. And how she can play the piano.

If there is a healthy girl in Jamaica Plain, it is Miss McLaughlin. She is full of life and impresses one that she is fond of the great outdoors and is glad to be alive.

Master Edward F. Jr. is a baseball fan. He plays football as well, even if he is only nine years old. If you don't believe this baseball story ask any of the boys in the neighborhood who is captain and organizer of the best baseball and football teams in that section of Jamaica Plain and the answer is "young Eddie McLaughlin."

Next comes George, just a little over seven summers. He and Eddie, Jr., travel the same street each day to and from the local school not far distant from the McLaughlin home. A big brother looking out for the "kid" brother.

Then there is Miss Barbara Ann, the youngest, five. She goes to the kindergarten and is proud to tell you that she expects to be as bright as her elder sister when she grows up.

McLaughlin Home Is Center of Interest

Edward F. McLaughlin | George | Barbara Ann | Mrs. McLaughlin

Boston's new fire commissioner is more pleased with being head of a most interesting family than he is with directing the fire-fighting forces of the city, though he is keen to make good in that, too.

WOMAN BEATEN, ROBBED BY MAN

While returning to her home on Oakland st., Peabody, Mrs. Lawrence Sullivan was brutally beaten by a man, who leaped upon her from the rear, threw her to the ground and robbed her of a handbag.

The screams of the woman frightened the attacker off before neighbors came to her aid. Mrs. Sullivan told Peabody police that she noticed the man stare at her as she entered Oakland st.

She was only a block from her home when he suddenly ran up to her, grasped her about the waist and threw her to the ground. A search of the district was instituted by police immediately following the attack, but no trace of the man was found. Mrs. Sullivan furnished authorities with a description of him.

SOMERVILLE TO HAVE SUNDAY MOVIES FOR THE FIRST TIME

MAYOR LIFTS OLD TIME RULING

Mayor Appoints City Censor to Rule on Programs; the First Showing Sunday

For the first time in the history of the city Sunday motion pictures will be shown in Somerville theaters next Sunday.

Permission for the Sunday movies was given theater operators today by Mayor John J. Murphy when he called representatives of the theaters to his office.

To avoid interference with church services, however, the performances may not begin until 3 p. m. There will also be a license fee charged, the proceeds to go toward financing the position of municipal censor.

The mayor stated that he will appoint Thomas F. Bullock as censor of motion picture shows and dance halls.

Mayor Murphy stated that each theater has agreed to set aside one Sunday a year for the benefit of charity and the profits on that day will go to deserving charity in Somerville.

Present today at the mayor's office in City Hall when the announcement was made to the theatrical men was Alderman Arthur G. Pearson, who opened the first moving picture show in Somerville some 25 years ago. Others present were William E. De Croteau, representing the Viano theaters; George A. Smith, representing the Interstate theaters, and F. W. O'Connell, representing the Locatelli theaters.

The Somerville board of aldermen, a few months ago, voted in favor of Sunday shows in the city, but the mayor at that time, Leon M. Conwell, took no action on the vote taken by the aldermen.

Bossy Tells What's What

Eugene Spatola, the Boston Evening American's office boy, decided to get the lowdown on life, love, politics and prohibition from Mayor "Bossy" Gillis of Newburyport, and he did. "Bossy told him everything he wanted to know and there's no mistaking what Bossy means when he talks. The mayor is seen granting his interview to Spatola, who was invited to "have a seat" on the official desk. (Staff photo.)

Bossy Gives Lowdown on Life, Love, Politics

By EUGENE SPATOLA
(Office Boy, Boston Evening American)

Bossy Gillis is a great guy but he'll never be like George Washington because he never cut down any cherry trees.

He said he wanted to—he never could find any up to the time they made him mayor of Newburyport.

"How can a mayor cut down cherry trees," he said to me when I asked him about George Washington. "I cut down just some ordinary trees once and they put me in the jailhouse. I should go out of my way to look for cherry trees."

The mayor of Newburyport, whom I interviewed, is a red head and he talks like that—fast and quick, like all red heads. He thinks prohibition is the bunk and he hates like this to go to bed and he hates like that to get up again.

I told him I was an office boy for the Boston Evening American and he said: "What of it? Are you trying to give me the office?"

Then I switched and asked him if he would rather join the Coast Guard or the Navy.

"Put the Navy with a capital," he said to me, "but get around the corner from the Coast Guard."

Then I began to ask him general questions, like about the police department and the fire department, and how did he like being mayor and would he fight Art Shires.

"I could stagger through four rounds with him," he said, "and then it would either be the Navy or the White Sox. I think the fire department is functioning as well as possible under present conditions, and I hope to make it one of the best in the State. I don't think the police department is so good. I am trying to better it."

"How does it feel to be mayor?" I asked him.

"Sometimes great, and sometimes not so good," he answered. "It's a hard and thankless job. Bossy Gillis has been called about everything people could think of but I still think I am the best and most honest mayor the city ever had."

ADVICE FOR YOUTH

"What advice would you give to boys and girls to be successful?"

"Be honest, fair and square with yourself and others. Live and let live. Don't try to tell others how to govern their lives."

"What do you think about married life; do you think it would interfere with your office?"

"Not having any experience, I couldn't answer that. However, I believe it is best for anyone adapted to home life. Personally I feel that married life might be a hindrance to me in the mayor's office. I might get married some day but not in the near future."

"Do you think high school boys and girls drink booze?"

"I believe there is some drinking but I don't think the kids of the younger generation are as bad as painted. I think the reason the younger generation drink is because it is smart and they are doing something they have been told they could not do."

"What do you think about prohibition?"

The mayor's answer, like a lot of his others, had picturesque words. Trimmed down, he said:

"Why discuss that? There's no such thing as prohibition. You can get liquor if you want it. The only bad feature of it is the bad stuff that's being peddled. I favor the Government taking control by sale of beer and light wines."

"When you visited Mayor Walker in New York, did you wear spats and carry a cane?"

"No, sir! I don't wear spats. I have a derby. A derby is high hat enough in Newburyport. I'm liable to get crowned with that on as it is."

"When will you run for governor?"

My question seemed to surprise him for a moment, but he quickly countered with:

"I guess I have enough friends in the old Commonwealth to put me over sometime."

Ercolini to Be City Employment Head

Ermino Ercolini of Grant st., Somerville, was appointed commissioner of municipal employment at $3000 today by Mayor John J. Murphy.

The mayor also named Mrs. Mary E. Mulcahy of Walnut st., Somerville, widow and prominent in women's Democratic circles, as assistant commissioner at $2500 a year.

This makes the second appointment of a woman to office by Mayor Murphy, the first being Miss Rita Bryan, whom the mayor made his confidential secretary.

I COULD NEVER EAT WITHOUT VOMITING"

And I Surely Am Grateful For The Results I Received From Bon-Tone," She Says

"I think I had about the worst case of stomach trouble of any woman in the city of Boston," states Mrs. Francis L. Wilson, of 123 Bennington Street, East Boston, Mass.

"I could never eat anything without vomiting immediately afterward, and the nervous and trembling sensations in my stomach were awful. To add to my other troubles, my nerves as a whole went bad. I slept very poorly; and when I got up, I was still tired. I also had very high blood pressure. I was forever taking laxatives for constipation; in fact, I do not recall having had a regular movement in years without taking a laxative.

"When I first saw the ad about all the local people who were getting such wonderful results from Bon-Tone, I decided to try a bottle. I have now taken four bottles of this remedy, and the results have been beyond my expectations. I have never vomited after eating since taking the first bottle and I eat fine. I never have any nervous sensations in my stomach; and furthermore, my nerves as a whole are in very good shape. I sleep much better, and have more pep and ambition to work. I surely am grateful for the results I received from Bon-Tone, and am only too well pleased to recommend it."

Go to Epstein Drug Co., Inc., Scollay Square, Boston, and meet our representative. He will explain more about Bon-Tone to you.

For your convenience Bon-Tone is for sale in South Boston at John S. Austin's Drug Store, Perkins Square, and in Cambridge at the Cole Drug Co., 636 Mass. Ave., Central Square.

I used to get so tired after a few hours' work that I was even afraid in my own house in the daytime. I didn't care if I lived or died. I have given birth to eight boys and I feel strong right after, since I have taken the Compound."

BILL IS AIMED AT BUSHNELL, ITS SPONSOR SAYS

Hub Solon Argues to Restrict District Attorneys in Private Practice

Favorable action on his bill to bar district attorneys and their assistants from engaging in private practice within their districts was urged by Rep. Lewis R. Sullivan of Boston at a hearing today before the legislative committee on judiciary.

Sullivan admitted that he was "seeking to prevent Dist. Atty Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex county from pleading in civil cases within that county."

"The district attorney has enough to do in his district," he argued. "It is about time that he was stopped.

"In Suffolk, Norfolk, and most of the other counties the district attorney does not appear in civil pleadings within his district. I have no objection to a district attorney doing private practice outside his district."

He told the committee that the names of Bushnell's assistants but that in practically all cases Bushnell did the pleading.

Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

JOVIAL JIBES AT SOCIETY FETTERS CRAMS FUN INTO "PYGMALION"

SHAW PLAY FINAL FOR GUILD

The Cast

The Principal Characters

Clara Bill	Phyllis Connard
Mrs. Eynsford Hill	Winifred Hoaring
Freddy Hill	Geoffrey Harwood
Miss Doolittle	Frieda Inescort
Col. Pickering	Percy Waram
Henry Higgins	Rilliot Cabot
Mrs. Pearce	Ruby Hallier
Alfred Doolittle	Dudley Digges
Mrs. Hopkins	Jane Wheatley

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THE Theater Guild turns into its final stretch at the Hollis with another fling at and with Bernard Shaw. This time it is "Pygmalion," rich in comedy, purely Shavian in sharp dialogue and, on the whole, a lively lecture on the futility of keeping society in its place. If the present season has taught us anything at all, and nowadays the earnest playgoer nearly always finds himself groping in an uncharted wilderness, it should give full credit for your best nights out to the lowly revival.

AS for "Pygmalion," it may be quickly conceded that a product of Shaw in his best and most invigorating humor. Twisting a bit of Greek mythology to the drama of modern London would have presented staggering disadvantages to any dramatist but Shaw. To him, apparently, it was all in a day's work and an irresistible opportunity. For Shaw takes the social structure which holds nations together and makes grand sport of it. The psychology of caste, rank or station—or however you prefer to term it—is but so much excellent raw material for this cynical Irishman.

HOWEVER you may react when brought face to face with Shavian logic, as expressed in his plays, you are never left drab and flat when the time comes to go home. There is grim humor in every line of Shaw's theatrical philosophy. He lectures severely, but amusingly. If his logic is bewildering, his wit is not. This is better revealed, perhaps, in "Pygmalion" than in other flights. Here you find an ardent, boresome professor, engaged in the job of transforming a lowly-born flower girl of the streets into a social lady; fit to be a duchess, as the text runs.

NOT even Shaw settles his own problem in this identical case. The girl becomes a lovely creature in gay raiment and of gentle manner. The experiment, successful on the surface, still leaves the child of chance no definite destination, except back to the street corner. Wisely enough, Mr. Shaw leaves a good deal of that speculation to his audience.

OF the Theater Guild players who stand up nobly under heavy demands upon their artistic resources, Elliot Cabot and Frieda Inescort are cheering examplars of the actor who knows his task. There are sufficient requirements, as well as demands for intelligent expression, which test their worth in less pronounced form. Percy Waram, Ruby Hallier and Dudley Digges apply their talents without stint.

PERHAPS the real pity of the Theater Guild season at the Hollis is the regret that this is its final gesture; that it might not be carried on indefinitely for further forays into the many scripts of Bernard Shaw. "Pygmalion" surely whets the appetite for more revivals—better if possible, but anyway more.

Irish Minstrels Making Hit at Arlington

Ernest Moore and his Irish Minstrels opened their last week at the Arlington Theater. The feature picture is a chapter from last week from a scenic point of view, is historical, uplifting and amusing. It depicts home town scenes requested by the Irish of Boston prior to Mr. Moore and his cast's departure for Ireland last June. "The Night Before the Fair," a humorous play, reveals the wit and romantic characteristics of young Ireland.

Looking Ahead

JANUARY 20—
"Little Accident" at the Plymouth.

JANUARY 21—
Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn at the Boston Opera House. One performance.

JANUARY 23—
Ed Wynn in "Simple Simon" at the Colonial.

JANUARY 27—
"Nine Fifteen Revue" at the Wilbur.
"Dracula" at the Hollis.

Isn't He the Dandy?

LUCIEN PRIVAL AND FLORENCE DUDLEY

SARTORIAL PERFECTION seems to fittingly describe Lucien in this mood. Not only does he have breakfast in bed, but also his manicure. It's a scene from "Party Girl," coming to the Modern and Beacon on Saturday.

WILL ROGERS LONDON BOUND TO ABSORB LOCAL COLOR

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

(Copyright, 1930, by Universal Service.)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14. I notice by the papers that Will Rogers is on the boundless main, en route to the London Naval conference as a "surprise delegate." That means he will not be ready for his next movie until some four or five weeks hence.

Perhaps he can pick up some first hand information in London, for Winfield Sheehan has purchased "So This Is London," George M. Cohan's play, for the gum chewing philosopher. I say Winnie Sheehan because Mr. Sheehan has been in New York and there is no doubt that he personally negotiated for the play for Will Rogers.

Louella O. Parsons

Jack Pickford has been summoned to direct. I wonder what happened to the original story written by Ben Ames Williams for Rogers. That's probably in the discard now. Maybe it will also ran class now. Maybe it will be brought out for another Fox actor. That too has been done before.

IF Winnie Lightner is anywhere near as amusing in "Gold Diggers in Paris" as she was in "Gold Diggers of Broadway," she will pack them in at any movie house. Miss Lightner who has been in New York since she finished with Warner Brothers, is returning to the Warner studios shortly to play the chief comedy role in "Gold Diggers in Paris," which is to be made in Technicolor and which I am informed will be a sequel to the original gold digger talkie.

THE langorous-eyed Mona Maris, Hollywood's sole Argentine actress, convinces me that the players who advance slowly make the only permanent progress. Miss Maris was in Hollywood for weeks before she had so much as an opportunity in the movies. Then she played several inconsequential roles. Some farseeing soul at the Fox studios cast her in "The Romance of the Rio Grande" opposite Warner Baxter. Her success has been one of the chief topics of conversations among those who saw the picture. Now she is to have the feminine lead again opposite Mr. Baxter in "The Arizona Kid." There is no doubt "Arizona Kid" is a part of the series Warner Baxter has been playing so effectively.

WHEN I admitted I didn't know a thing about Gus Shy my informant looked so pained I realized I had committed an unpardonable faux pas. I am sometimes of the opinion it's better to pretend to know certain stage strangers than to admit a sorry ignorance. Anyway, this Gus Shy comes to Los Angeles with "The New Moon" company, and when he gets here he is expected to spend part of his time at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company. He has been signed for one of the most important roles in Good News" which Edgar McGregor and Albert Kelly are to direct for M-G-M. Mr. Shy is rated as an excellent comedian—and maybe next time I write his name I won't be so shy on information. Did you ever think I would stoop to making puns. No, neither did I.

"SMOOTH AS SATIN" is the name of Bebe Daniels next talkie. I have a sneaking feeling it is "The Chatterbox" story which was written for her and which will precede "Duxiana." I had the thought, too, will remember, that Bebe's voice should be capitalized to the fullest extent. That she should be given every opportunity just the same as our operatic stars feature their voices. Yet I suppose if songs are dragged in by the heels, that isn't so good either. In fact there have been many criticisms that the talkies are prone to overdo things and add music where silence would be better.

Elly Ney

Elly Ney, German pianist, will appear in Jordan Hall for the first time this season on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 25. Mme. Ney's program will include Beethoven Sonata, C minor; the Schumann Scenes from Child hood; works by Chopin, Liszt, Brahms, Bach and Mozart.

"DYNAMITE" MELODRAMA DE LUXE

The Cast

The Principal Characters

Roger Towne	Conrad Nagel
Cynthia Trenholm	Kay Johnson
Hagen Dorh, the "Fire Boss."	Charles Bickford
Marcia Towne	Josie Page
Kate Dorh	Muriel McCormac
Harve, the "Smith" ...	Jon McCree
Wise Fire	Robert Keeon
Young Veiture	Louis Fenton

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

MELODRAMA, manufactured by Cecil DeMille, which means in the good, old-fashioned manner, with all the frills, is most generously served up in "Dynamite," feature film at Loew's State this week. Mr. De Mille has many years of experience with the public behind this latest effort; he evidently "knows his onions," for the audience liked it. Dynamite it was to the emotions at times. In quantity the picture is most liberal, for it runs just over two hours. There are cuts that could be made without loss, and yet when the DeMille hand doles out its stuff so lavishly, one is willing to take it that is considered a thick thereon. We have gotten so we are thoroughly inured to this.

THERE is no need to rehearse the plot. It is a hackneyed one. It is in the realm of the improbable; it is only because one is under the spell of the director that it will pass muster at all. All angles of life, almost, are touched upon, from the seamy side to the dreamy side; society and slums, innocence and sin, have their play upon the screen. There are modern touches to bring in the sex reactions of this age of jazz; such as the hero's becoming engaged even while married to another woman. If the very lack of subspice of screen entertainment, then Mr. DeMille has reckoned properly with his public. He usually does.

THERE are some big moments in "Dynamite." The "mellerdrammer" trips along into a cabaret scene wherein are shown two youths of the Leo-Leopold type; there is tension in the sequence as one of the two is driven to confession of a murder for which another has been doomed to die. The supreme "moment" comes when the pardoned man in "Dynamite" literally crashes the gate into the hero's home; here is a typical DeMille climax. He piles them up, one after the other; this is where he is best. Then later comes the coal mine sequence, where husband, wife and hero are away down in the bowels of the earth, in a coal mine. After a cave-in, the trio face death. They are saved, but it is better to get that from the screen. Suffice it to say that Mr. DeMille does poetic justice to the ending.

"DYNAMITE" is a DeMille manufacture for public consumption. And people do like melodrama, the more mellow it be, the merrier it is. On the score of acting, it struck us that little Muriel McCormac as the child was the best bit in the show. Kay Johnson, new to the films, finished better than she began; and Charles Bickford, also a newcomer, and a native of Cambridge, by the by, did just the other thing, beginning better than he finished. Conrad Nagel, always to be counted upon, to bring in the idol-worshippers, was himself, which is probably all his admirers ask of him. As for dialogue, the lines are often very bright, sometimes a thin-ice coating where the danger sign stood. The photography is fine; and the direction, typically De-Millian.

ON screen are a mirthful screen comedy and two great newsreels, the Hearst Metrotone being topnotch. On stage, there are exceptionally fine offering Mr. & Minto, in a de luxe miniature revue, and Joe Phillips & Co. in a song and dance sketch, offering Mr. Miller and his Stateonians play, and Mr. Rogers is as popular as ever with his organ music.

PARIS THEME FOR GAYETY

TWO funny travesties, "Shenadoah" and "The Punch Bowl," were the outstanding features of "Hello Paree" at the Gayety. The entire company was on the stage during those two scenes, and the result was a rapid succession of laughs. Lee Hickman and Milt Davis dispensed the fun.

Mildred Franklin, a Boston girl, and remembered here from previous appearances, was warmly received. Her dramatic singing made her a favorite at once.

Unique song themes, new gags, new bits and some 1930 dances by various members of the cast made the show move with top speed. Eleanore Abbott and Eida Langer, two soubrettes, kept the chorus in action all the time, while Dorothy K Fuller sang some blue songs in fetching style.

E. H. SOTHERN AT Y.W.C.A.

THE coming of E. H. Sothern tomorrow, to the Boston Y. W. C. A., 140 Clarendon st., in scenes from Shakespearean plays and "If I Were King," and in stories and anecdotes of the stage, is an important event. Mr. Sothern will give readings from "Macbeth," "The Merchant of Venice" and "If I Were King." A generous list of patronesses has responded to the invitation. Mrs. E. O. Fisk is special committee arranging for Mr. Sothern's coming. Mrs. Everett O. Fisk of Brookline, is chairman of the committee.

PIANO RECITAL BY RITA NEVE SLIPSHOD

By MOSES SMITH

RITA NEVE, English pianist, was heard in a piano program at Jordan Hall last night. Her chosen music included Corelli's "Angelus," Beethoven's Sonata "Pathetique," a group of pieces by modern English composers, Spanish numbers, and a Chopin group.

Miss Neve has played here before, but we hesitate to say that she played last night, for her performance was largely an exhibition of how not to play the piano. With a program that gave the appearance of a serious artist, she committed faults for which the pupil is reproved in the studio.

To say that the Sonata was rendered as in a student's recital; that the Angelo lacked dignity, balance, breadth of style, true songfulness; that the Rondo was hurried, blurred, distorted almost unrecognizably; that the English pieces, many of them unfamiliar or new here, were not clearly presented so that the listener might gauge their value; that the pianist was beyond her depth, technically and musically, not only in the difficult A flat, major Polonaise, but in even the E minor waltz of Chopin—these things give some idea of either extraordinary inadequacy or artistically, of a woman undergoing temporary suffering.

Perhaps it is best not to be charitable. On the basis of last night's performance we can see no reason why an audience should come to listen to a supposedly "serious" concert of this type. Musicians complain against the competition of various mechanical substitutes for real concerts. Such a concert as last night's, exceptional though it might be, is no help to their cause. Apparently our diagnosis was confirmed, for there was a mild exodus after half of the program had been played.

KEITH HOUSES TO GET HITS

ESTABLISHING a new record for the current season, Radio Pictures is in the midst of a production drive which finds 10 talking, musical pictures in various stages of preparation, filming and editing, and which will be shown at the New B. F. Keith and Keith-Albee as soon as completed.

Three of the outstanding films of the year are in production in large portion of the studio workers' time. The musical screen version of "The Cohens and Kellys" by Luther Reed, is being assembled in the cutting rooms; Herbert Brenon is directing the dramatic special, "The Case of Sergeant Grischa," with an all-star cast, headed by Chester Morris and Betty Compson, and preparations are being made for the spectacular musical film, "Radio Revels," which Paul Sloane will direct.

Richard Dix's first Radio starring vehicle, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," is completed and Dix is preparing for his second, "I Love You," adapted from a play by William Le Baron, vice-president in charge of RKO production.

The "Big Noise"

KAY JOHNSON

KAY GETS ATTENTION and then some, as the love appeal in "Dynamite," at Loew's State. She's but one of a colorful cast.

PEPFUL SHOW AT HOWARD

WITH the coming of the "Record Breakers" to the old Howard yesterday, local burlesque fans had the opportunity of enjoying the charms and the talents of Jerri McCauley. This spirited young woman is generally acknowledged as the top star of the Mutual Circuit's cops of dancers. She did not disappoint her audiences.

"Record Breakers" takes pride in the excellence of its personnel. Jack Reid, always a big card, found himself in friendly hands and made the most of it, while Jack (Round) Smith and Frank Smith, the latter a South Hooter boy, made more than his fortune in comedy.

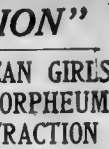
In the vaudeville bill were seen the Seven Nelsons, in a European novelty; Jack Goldie and Byron and Willie. The film presentations included "A Man, A Man" and "Spies." There will be a midnight show on Friday.

Sunday Concert

The first singer to appear in the New Year in the series of Sunday afternoon concerts in Symphony Hall will be Marin Jaritza. The famous prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company will visit Boston to give a recital on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 16.

DUNCAN GIRLS ARE ORPHEUM ATTRACTION

THE Duncan Sisters, from the musical comedy stage, are the stars of "It's a Great Life," talking and singing film, which is attracting capacity crowds to Loew's Orpheum. Technicolor sequences are an important feature of the picture, which includes in its supporting cast Lawrence Gray, Benny Rubin, Ted Healy and others. The story might well be a biography of the dancers, as it deals with a sister act in vaudeville, which finds itself in difficulties when a quarrel separates the pair, who find themselves unsuccessful as "singles." The Duncan Sisters, as usual, score with their new song hits, and a number of skillfully executed dance routines staged by Sammy Lee are worthy of mention.



Lawrence Gray

In conjunction with the screen program there is offered on the stage one of the most entertaining revues witnessed in months. In the cast are 25 capable performers, banded together into this splendid musical show by Fanchon and Marco, famous producers.

"Gobs of Joy" is the title of this extravaganza and all scenes are laid on the deck of a huge battleship. Arthur "Pat" West is the leading member of the company. The Emperors of Harmony, Betty Rhythm, the Cook Sisters and Dolly Kramer, will win much applause for their efforts, as do also many others for their pleasing specialties.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, kings of screen comedians, appear in an all-talking riot entitled "Night Owls," and the usual newsreels round out the star bill.

DEFENDS USE OF MONEY FOR PUBLICITY

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Although the National Electric Light Association has engaged in publicity opposing government ownership or operation of public utilities, Preston S. Arkwright, chairman of the association's public policy committee, told the Federal Trade Commission today that the organization was forced into this expenditure defensively.

Arkwright said the proposals of others to change from the present general system of private ownership of utilities forced the association and the industry to engage in publicity, he told the commission. He said only a small part of the association's advertising expenditures had been directed against government ownership.

In 1927, he said, $107,647 was spent to advertise rural electrification, while $53,000 was spent on public relations. Only $4622 of that sum, he said, was spent on literature making any reference to government ownership.

During that year, however, the association raised a separate fund of $37,000, which he said was apportioned $30,000 to Harvard University, $25,000 to Northwestern University, $10,000 to the American Mining Congress, and $5000 to the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Arkwright said one reason for the association's use of publicity and advertising for goodwill was the question of local franchises and the competitive aspects of furnishing power to large industries which are able to supply their own current at a reasonable figure. Even in the household, he said, electric energy is sold in competition with other forms of energy.

An Arctic Baptism Halts the Army's 'Arctic Flight'

One of the planes of the "Arctic Patrol" of the first pursuit squadron, Army Air Corps, shown with the ice formation on the tail as it landed at Lake St. Clair, Mich. The patrol is making a 3500-mile flight to Spokane, Wash., and return, and completed the first leg at Lake St. Claire. They were lined up for the takeoff, but overnight rain and freezing weather coated all ships with ice, delaying the start for two days. (World Wide photo.)

Warsaw's Drinking Water Poisoned

Warsaw, Poland, Jan. 14 (AP)—Warsaw was greatly alarmed today by news that a large reservoir of poisonous acids used by a chemical works had drained out and poisoned the waters of the Vistula, used for drinking purposes after being filtered.

The poisoned waters were expected to reach here this afternoon and flow by for three hours. Masses of poisoned fish floated down the river. A discharged worker is said to have caused the leak.

Urges Canadians to Make More Movies

Toronto, Jan. 14 (AP)—The need of Canadian-made motion picture films that will present the Canadian point of view and counteract the influence of pictures made in the United States is pointed out in the annual report of the Ontario board of censors.

Domination of the screen by films produced in the United States the report says, "has already been a subject for strong complaint, not only in Canada, but in Australia and New Zealand."

Dutch Producers to Restrict Rubber

Amsterdam, Jan. 14 (AP)—Dutch rubber producers, meeting here today, decided to try restricting production of rubber from 10 to 20 per cent by European and native producers.

A committee formed in co-operation with British rubber interests will leave soon for Java, Dutch East Indies, to study restriction methods. They will propose the forbidding of tapping and the deposit by European producers of a twenty-florin forfeit per ton, to assure fulfillment of the restriction.

Mayor Wires Conry to Press Project

Mayor Curley today urged immediate action by the Federal Government on Boston's proposal to assume control of Governors Island for a $1,000,000 extension of the Boston airport.

In a telegram to Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conry, now in Washington seeking government sanction of the arrangement, the mayor declared the program to be an emergency measure for the relief of unemployment and development of aerial resources.

STOP RUM TIDE, SAYS WHALEN

New York, Jan. 14 (INS)—Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen today answered the charge of Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell, at a ministers' meeting, than speakeasies might be wiped out in New York if the police wanted them wiped out, by prosecution under the state nuisance act.

"I always thought Campbell's duty was enforcement of the prohibition act, and that such work could keep him busy without bother-ing about other violations," said the commissioner.

"I might also say that if the prohibition forces stopped smuggling of liquor over the borders and from the sea, and stopped diversion of manufactured alcohol into illegal channels there would be no other sources from which the speakeasies he so frequently refers to might get the material with which to carry on business.

"There is no state law upon which the police department may proceed against speakeasies. There is a law upon which Campbell and I in turn may proceed, I yield to Campbell."

Lenox Taxpayers Hold Up Town Wages

Lenox, Jan. 14 (AP)—Failure of several large property owners to pay their taxes before has prevented payment of wages due town laborers and teachers for two weeks.

About $20,000 is due on the 1929 tax warrant and $5,000 for 1928, according to the tax collector's office.

Arrangements have been made by town officials with a bank for an $8,000 loan to meet the salary demands until the annual town meeting is held next month.

Give Health Camp to Association

Fitchburg, Jan. 14 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Schoonmaker and their son, David, of Ashburnham, have presented a large building, with spacious grounds, in Ashburnham to the Northern Worcester County Health Association, the association announced today.

The association has used the property for five years as a summer health camp, but now plans to use it as a preventorium throughout the year. The gift is made as a memorial to Miss Ethel Whitney, sister of Mrs. Schoonmaker.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Taylor Death Haunts Mabel Normand

Monrovia, Cal., Jan. 14—The memory of the William Desmond Taylor murder mystery today continues to haunt Mabel Normand as she battles for her life within a sanatorium in a picturesque wooded canyon of this little southern California town.

With the Taylor case resurrected and her name once again thrust into the spotlight, the once foremost comedienne of the screen, however, is far too ill, according to her physician, to be disturbed by questioning.

"The shock of such a thing might result fatally, and we cannot afford to take any chances," explained the doctor, Francis M. Pottenger.

In fact, no visitors are allowed to see her at all, with the exception of her husband, Lew Cody, film actor, whom she married three and a half years ago after a romantic midnight elopement.

By a queer twist of fate, Miss Normand was the last person known to have seen and talked to Taylor before he was shot in death in his bungalow court apartment in Los Angeles nearly eight years ago.

Ever since that time she has been pursued by the specter of the tragedy which dimmed her screen career apparently forever.

No longer is she the piquant and vivacious Mabel of old, but a frail young woman whose entire life now is hemmed in by the bare walls of her room in the sanatorium.

It was to return a book she had borrowed that the actress went to Taylor's home and saw him for the last time in life.

"Miss Normand told all she knew to the Taylor case at the time it was first investigated," said her secretary, Mrs. Julia Kenson, who is her companion. "She has told that story time and time again and has nothing new to relate now."

The fact that the mystery is again filling the pages of the newspapers has been kept from the patient the secretary added.

The actress is waging her fight for life against the ravages of the white plague. Both her lungs are affected and she has been virtually bed-ridden for months.

"She is very ill," Dr. Pottenger said. "We can't say she is gaining any, but she has made a wonderful fight—the most wonderful of any patient I ever had."

She was first stricken ill about three years ago with pneumonia but recovered. Then a year ago she went to a card party given by Mrs. Roscoe Arbuckle.

There she contracted a cold which developed into pneumonia and tuberculosis. For months she was confined in her home at Beverly Hills near Hollywood, but finally was prevailed upon to go to the sanatorium last September.

POLITICAL ROW OUSTED CITY MANAGER

Cleveland, O., Jan. 14 (AP)—The turbulent course of Cleveland's city manager system of government, instituted here first among the nation's larger cities, had reached its bitterest climax today with the summary removal of City Manager William R. Hopkins.

In the stormiest political spectacle Cleveland has seen since the days of Mark Hanna and Tom L. Johnson, the city council by a vote of 14 to 11 last night ousted Hopkins from the position he had held since the manager plan was adopted six years ago.

The immediate outcome of the council's action is the suspension of Hopkins effective at once, with the final removal January 22. Before that date he will be given a public hearing, which he demand ed as provided for in the city charter. On January 27, former State Senator Daniel E. Morgan is scheduled to become the new city manager.

Beyond this, however, lies the open rupture between Maurice Maschke, Republican county leader, and Hopkins. Hopkins, it is generally taken for granted, refused to follow the instructions of the party leader in the matter of patronage at the City Hall. Friends of the manager plan, which has been upheld in four municipal elections, charged that the ousting of Hopkins was the first move in making the chief governmental office a political one.

Hopkins' suspension was ordered without any charges being filed. This will be done by a committee of five of the ostensible leaders of the fight against him in the council.

Councilman F. W. Walz, Insurgent Democrat re-elected on an anti-Hopkins platform, made the removal motion after a speech declaring the city manager had usurped the power of the council. The vote showed Walz and James J. McGinty, another Democrat, joining 12 of the "regular" Republicans to remove Hopkins.

Radios Byrd 15,000 Miles from Far North

Moscow, Jan. 14 (AP)—A wireless triumph over time and space was achieved on December 1 by Ivan Krenkel chief Russian radio operator in Franz Josef Land, when he talked by radio for more than an hour with Rear-Admiral Richard E. Byrd at the South Pole.

Krenkel, the man at the top of the world, says he communicated with Rear-Admiral Byrd, at the bottom of it, on a short wave length of 41 meters over a distance of nearly 15,000 miles. The wireless station in Franz Josef Land is the northernmost radio outpost in the world.

OTTAWA BATTLES BRUINS AT GARDEN

AMERICAN SPORTS SECTION

O'FLAHERTY TO CLASH WITH GIBSON

THE most slashing fights in recent months will be staged at the Arena on Thursday night, when the Arena A. C. will present a 10-round return match between Joe Monte and Harry Allen, rival Brockton heavyweights; a special six-rounder between Patrick O'Flaherty of South Boston and Ug Gibson of Medford, bitter amateur rivals, and a long card of preliminary bouts that will feature local talent exclusively.

Judging from the advance sale, the Arena will be packed with the largest crowd in months. The prices have been scaled at $1, $1.50 and $2, and Col. Bob McKirdy, Arena matchmaker, has lined 52 rounds of boxing that will feature such satisfactory fighters as Monte, Allen, O'Flaherty, Gibson, Tony Shucco, Bob Jasse, Leslie Baker, Joe O'Donnell, Pat Perkins and Jimmy McGrannahan.

Monte and Allen fought a vicious slugging match at the Arena some weeks ago, Monte won the decision, but before he did so both he and Allen had been on the floor. It was one of the most bitterly fought battles of 1929, and since the local and sectional rivalry between them is keen, they are expected to unfurl another heavy punching duel.

THE O'Flaherty-Gibson bout should be another whirlwind of punches. They stand out as the two best 175 pounders in the amateur ranks. Big times they've fought, and each has won three victories over the other. Col. McKirdy induced them to turn professional by offering them the largest guarantee ever given preliminary boxers in a local ring. Their rivalry is so intense that they will split the purse on a 75-25 basis.

Tony Shucco, brilliant North End middleweight, is to box Bob Jasse of Revere in the eight-round semifinal match. In his whole career, Shucco has been defeated but once. He and Jasse are both bowling for a match with Al Mello for the New England middleweight title. Mello will start training for a ring battle next Monday, and has agreed to meet the winner of the Shucco-Jasse bout.

In a pair of six rounders, Jimmy McGonigal of Weymouth, former national amateur lightweight title, will meet Izzy Hyams, English lightweight star, who has not met defeat in this country since Abe Lee, hard-hitting Somerville youngster, will fight Mickey Sears of East Boston.

IN the four-rounders, Leslie Baker of Watertown, most promising young welterweight in New England, will meet Joe O'Donnell of Roxbury, who has lost but one professional bout. Joe Donnelly of Dorchester will be paired with Tony Sarno of the North End, Pat Perkins with Alex Enos, Watertown heavyweight; and Charlie Longo of the North End with Sammy Mango of Dorchester.

Loughran-Charles on Miami Card

Philadelphia, Jan. 14 (AP)—Joe Smith, manager for Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion, has made known that he has signed Loughran and Abe Pierro Charles, Belgian heavyweight, in one of the 10-round sporting bouts at Miami, Fla., on February 27, which will be headed by Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott.

Smith said he had affixed his name to the papers last Saturday in the Madison Square Garden office in New York. It will be Loughran's first start since he was knocked out by Sharkey in New York last September 26.

Wesleyan Tennis Schedule Announced

Middletown, Ct., Jan. 14 (AP)—Wesleyan's 1930 tennis schedule, announced today, includes 11 matches, with May 7 as an open date. The schedule follows:

April 30, M. I. T.
May 3, Rutgers at New Brunswick; N. J. May 7, open, May 9 Williams; May 10, Yale at New Haven; May 14, Trinity; May 15, open; May 17, Amherst at Amherst; May 22, Springfield; May 23, Brown at Providence; May 24, Tufts at Medford; May 31, West Point at West Point.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

SAID Mr. Boston after he strolled into the Sporting Department today:

"Saw Sheldon H. Fairbanks of the Garden looking the fighters over at Jim Toland's Gym. He's a regular fight fan as well as a live wire as a generalissumo.

"Baby Joe Gans, classy New York welterweight, stepped into the ring and showed the boys how it is done.

Jim Toland whispered that Baby Joe is a little sweet on a girl playing in 'Hot Chocolates' which explains his visit to town.

"Joe Monte stepped to bat for a three round workout with Jack Moulton, who is managed by Jack Girnan of Elliot sq., Roxbury.

Monte whispered he would flatten Harry Allen at the Arena, Thursday night. The gang answered "Maybe."

"And Johnny Buckley talking about how swell Jack Sharkey, his star thumper, looked in his latest photos taken at Miami Beach, Fla. Johnny shoves off for the South next Tuesday. Going to take his new set of golf clubs, a gift from Sharkey, along, too. And the missus and four youngsters, so that he won't be lonesome when not hanging around the training camp.

"Jack Gagnon, who fights on the card with Ruccardo Barlatsolo and Johnny Risko at Cleveland on January 20, only cashed Phil Riccola for six bucks. Cleveland show is being staged as a testimonial to the late Ray Campbell, sports writer who died on Christmas Day. Ray was one of the few men who used that kind of English which satisfied Gene Tunney. He was Gene's press agent. In Ray's pick pens Tunney furnished him with the best medical care money could buy. After all, Tunney has a heart and isn't an ingrate.

"ALEX MacLEAN, new matchmaker at the Garden after February 1, dropped in at Toland's to get a whiff of the room. He is keeping his opening card under his hat, but you can bet it will be a nifty. Alex knows his cauliflower.

"Took a peek at Jake Zeramby as he worked through a stiff workout in preparation for his bout with Herman Perlick at the New York Garden on Friday night. Al Lacy was master of ceremonies and chirped Jake will prove a riot along Broadway. Lacy tipped me that Tony Palosio, Jack Sharkey's trainer, will assist in Zeramby's corner. Tony is taking a last fling along Broadway before hopping to Miami to join Sharkey.

"JOHNNY BUCKLEY showed me a letter from Sharkey in which the American champion mentioned about the renting of a house at Miami Beach for $2500 for the season. The Florida season starts on December 1 and ends on May 1. I'll wager the family jewels Sharkey will be back in Boston long before May 1.

"ON way to the office I bumped into Eddie Mack, who had a flock of press notices in regard to some ritzy school affair in which his daughter is to take part. Eddie is getting steamed up over the Sharkey-Scott bout at Miami and will have one of his famous Specials rumbling South next month. He plans to charge $140 for a round trip. This will include meals en route and sleeping privileges on the train, making a six-day stopover at Miami. The regular round trip price, without any extras, is around $200. So Eddie is giving the boys a bargain.

"JOHNNY CARR acted as the Sergeant's secret service detail. Of course Johnny would like to feel the breezes along the coast of Florida.

"Crashed into Paul Rowser as he hurried along Washington st. Paul remarked that the near capacity crowd at the Sonneberg-McCoy bout convinced him the mat game is still going on high. Paul looks for another big house when Stecher and Malcewicz collide a week from Thursday night.

HARVARD OUT FOR 5TH WIN ON COURT

HARVARD will attempt to make it five court victories out of six when the Crimson hoopsters stack up against Lowell Textile tonight.

The game, originally scheduled for tomorrow night, was shifted to tonight in order that it would not conflict with the Harvard-Tufts wrestling bouts tomorrow night.

Harvard won a push-over victory against Norwich, but Coach Ed Wachter was far from satisfied with the way his court five looked that night.

If the Cantab basketeers do not show better form tonight, Wachter threatens to relegate his first team to the sidelines in favor of the scrubs.

ARMY FIVE COMING

This is because Harvard will face the strong Army five at Cambridge later this week. Wachter is anxious to put his best team on the floor against the Cadets.

So tonight's game ought to see the boys putting on the steam a bit to insure appearance against the West Pointers.

There is no telling what Lowell can do in the way of basketeering this season. They may or may not be the equal of Harvard's five. Coach "Rusty" Yarnall of Lowell has only seen his boys in two tilts so far this season, and little can be told from those two games.

The Textile schedule did not get under way until January 10. This game with Harvard will be the third in four days for Lowell.

All five boys have had more or less experience together and should put up a good battle tonight.

NIDO HARVARD STAR

All eyes are expected to follow Tommy Nido of Harvard tonight. Nido, a Porto Rican, nd a third rate basketeer a season ago, has been going like a house afire lately. In the Norwich tilt he gathered six baskets in almost as many minutes.

Pooch Mahady is another Harvard player whose berth is comparatively safe for a while. Mahardy has not been a high scorer this year, but his feeding to Wenner, Nido and Pierce has made him invaluable.

The Cantabs are getting ready for the toughest battle of the season when Army pulls into town the last of the week. Led by Murrell, famous football star, the future officers are coming to Cambridge to scalp their Crimson hosts.

BROOKLINE BOY WITH ARROWS

Robby Taylor, Brookline boy and former Boston amateur hockey player, will make his first appearances in Boston as a member of the Philadelphia Arrows when the Quaker City team meets the Boston Tigers in the Garden Saturday night.

A large crowd of his friends will turn out on that occasion and plans are being made for a presentation.

Taylor was farmed out to the Arrows by the Bruins, whose property he is, early in December. He played right wing for the Tigers for three seasons before he was drafted by the National League club.

For Philadelphia he is playing center as relief for Lea Andrews, one of the top-scorers of the league. Last Wednesday in Philadelphia he scored the tying goal against the Tigers three minutes from the end of the game, but this was made possible their defeat in overtime.

Taylor is one of two Greater Boston boys on the Philadelphia team. The other is Maurice Roberts of Somerville, one of the few Jewish players in professional hockey. He has tended goal for New Haven and Philadelphia in the Can.-Am. loop for four seasons.

Holyoke High Coach to Quit in June

Holyoke Jan. 14 — John P. (Dotty) Whalen, for the past 13 years head of physical education and coach of athletics at Holyoke high school, announced that he would sever his connections with the local school department at the end of the school year in June.

He intends to continue his work in physical education and expects to close an offer in another city within a few weeks.

He is a graduate of Springfield College and came here following a successful year as coach at Buffield school, Connecticut.

SENATORS WHO WILL PROBE BRUINS

The two players shown here, H. Kilrea and A. Finnegan, will be seen in action against the Bruins tonight at the Garden. The New York Rangers recently offered $25,000 for Kilrea, but the Ottawa management believes he is worth more than that to the Senators.

INTERCLASS MEET AT B. U.

The annual interclass meet, one of the features of Boston University's winter track season, will be held at the Play Street, Boston Track, Friday afternoon at 3.30. Coach Freddie Burns of the Terrier track team is holding this meet earlier than usual in order to give his men competition before entering the K. of C. meet at the Boston Garden, January 25.

The following events open to all students, whether members of the track team or not are on the program: 40-yard dash, 300-yard run, 600-yard run, 1000-yard run, one mile run, interclass relay, shot-put, and high jump; in addition, there will be an interclass relay.

This is the only opportunity of the winter for the runners to hang up school records at their favorite distances and indications are that several marks will fall. Norman Bicknel, holder of the 300-yard record, has an excellent chance of lowering his own mark.

Norman George, 600-yard record holder, is the only other record holder still in college and he will go after his old mark with an even chance of lowering it. Stuart Tarr is likely to clip the 1000-yard mark of Greg Hemmer, captain of the Terrier track team two years ago.

Lawlor Begins Task at Exeter

Exeter, N. H., Jan. 14 — John Lawlor, B. A. A. athlete who has been engaged as assistant track coach at Phillips Exeter Academy, assumed his duties and took the broad jumpers and shot putters in charge. A large number reported to him for work in the cage.

Coach Carrell worked the runners and hurdlers on the cage track. The first meet of the season is with the Boston College freshmen, February 1, and for this event, Coach Carrell expects to have a fast team.

Bill Terry of Giants in Holdout Ranks

New York, Jan. 14 (INS)—Bill Terry, New York Giants' first baseman, was reported today to have joined the ranks of the holdouts. Terry, it was said, has demanded a contract calling for a salary of $25,000 a year.

Terry had a batting average last season of .372.

I. C. 4A in Favor of Starting Blocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (AP)—Recommendations that the use of starting blocks be approved for intercollegiate competition in 1931, provided that the International Amateur Athletic Federation passes favorably on them, and that several changes be made in the running of the intercollegiate cross-country championships will be presented to the annual convention of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. by the executive committee of the organization.

At a meeting yesterday, the committee decided on a proposed rule change, to be adopted in 1931 if the international federation approves the use of starting blocks in May. It reads:

FOUR INCHES HIGH

"Starting blocks may be used in races held under the rules of the I. C. A. A. A. A. If starting blocks are used they shall be of such size and shape that the lower edge shall be flush with the track and the upper edge shall not be higher than four inches therefrom.

In using the blocks at least some part of both shoes of the runner shall touch the ground.

No device of any kind shall be used for support or gripping purposes for the hands other than corks or similar grips to be carried in the hands during the race.

This is the first official definition or description of the starting blocks and is expected to be useful in settling the argument for or against their use, whether or not they are adopted

The tentative proposal was sent to the convention without the committee's official recommendation which is equivalent to adoption

The committee recommended the elimination of the hurdles in the cross-country championship race on the grounds that it is a sufficiently hard test without them, and passed on other proposals that the distances be shortened in three miles for the varsity and two miles for the freshmen.

BAR FRESHMEN.

It also was recommended that place winners in national championships be ineligible for freshman competition

Rupert B. Thomas, jr., former Princeton runner, who served in that capacity two years ago, was named referee for the indoor intercollegiate championships, March 1

Other proposals considered by the committee concerned giving awards to the second and third place teams in the outdoor intercollegiate championships and a change in the order of events of this meet so that the preliminary and semi-final heats of the sprint races would be held on the first day and only the finals on the second.

Chicago Blackhawks Manager Quits

Chicago, Jan. 14 (INS)—Thomas J. Shaughnessy has resigned as manager of the Chicago Blackhawks hockey team. It was announced today.

Although Shaughnessy's resignation was accompanied by the explanation that he needed more time for his law practice, friction with the management was rumored.

Yale, Columbia and Penn Meet May 3

New Haven, Jan. 14 (INS)—Yale, Columbia and Penn crews will meet on the Housatonic river May 3 and the 150-pound varsity crews of Yale, Harvard and Princeton will race over the same waters May 10, it was announced today

Yale will take part in the American Henleys in Philadelphia May 31 and will meet Princeton and Cornell crews at Princeton May 17.

The crew season for Eli will wind up June 20 with the Harvard meetings for varsity, junior and freshmen eights at New London.

BIG ENTRY FOR AMATEUR SHOW

Probably the largest entry list ever received for any amateur boxing tournament held in this city will be registered for the State championship to be decided at the Boston Arena next Monday night under the direction of the New England Association of the A. A. U.

From every section of the state, according to reports by Tom Kanaly, simon pure ring leaders are entering the event and the recognized topnotchers will be forced to send themselves to the limit to win

As this is the first big amateur fixture of the season, to be followed later by the New England and national championships, there seems to be greater interest in this tournament than ever before

Bouts will be held in eight championship classes, including 112, 118, 124, 135, 147, 160, 175 and heavyweights and all the recent winners are expected to be on hand

JANVRIN COACH OF 'H' SECONDS

William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, announced today that Harold Janvrin has been appointed coach of the second varsity baseball team subject to the approval of the committee on the regulation of athletic sports

The appointment of Janvrin completes the staff of baseball coaches at Harvard for the 1930 season. Fred Mitchell will coach the varsity nine and Claude Davidson will coach the freshman team

Bowdoin Beats Northeastern, 2-1

Brunswick, Me., Jan. 14—In a game that was anybody's until the final whistle, the last Northeastern hockey sextet went down before the Bowdoin puckmen by a 2 to 1 score.

The opening tally came in the first period, when Dymers took a pass from Ward and shoved the puck past Kuposky. There was no more scoring until the opening minutes of the final period, when Martin tied the count by dribbling one through Stockman's legs. Soon after this score, there was a wild scramble in front of the Northeastern net and Rose pushed the puck in for the winning tally.

By BILL GRIMES

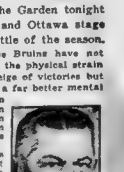
ALTHOUGH the Americans broke the Bruins' string of 14 victories, one of the most thrilling games of the season is expected at the Garden tonight when Boston and Ottawa stage their third battle of the season.

Obviously, the Bruins have not recovered from the physical pain of their long seige of victories but they will be in a far better mental condition than they have been for weeks, when they take on the Senators this evening.

The Bruins are so far out in front in the race for the American division championship, that it is almost a foregone conclusion that they will finish at the top of the standing.

They are seven and one half games ahead of the Chicago Blackhawks, a tremendous advantage even with 24 games to be played.

Possibly, the Bruins will let down, unconsciously, but they are too strong to stay in a slump for any length of time and within a few games will be clicking as consistently as they did during the first half of the season



Bill Grimes

BRUINS DUE FOR REST

Now that the winning streak is on, Manager Art Ross will undoubtedly rest up some of his players, especially Hutton, Hitchman and Eddie Shore. Hitch has been working like a trojan all season, with comparatively few rest periods. Incidentally, he has been playing the best game of his career and is fully entitled to lay off

Shore has never fully recovered from the Sweet assault and Manager Ross plans to use his star defense man as little as possible until such a time as he is able to display his old time dash and fire.

Should the Bruins run into a surrountable lead, the Bruins can well afford to ease up for awhile as the most important games of the season are the play-offs, and it is Manager Ross' intentions to have his men ready for the fray.

The Bruins forwards are all in fine condition, other than that some of the boys are suffering from a few minor bumps. The three line unit style of play used by the Bruins this season is responsible for the excellent condition of the forwards, who although they have played hard and without a let up, while they were in action, have only averaged about a period a game.

Except for the fact that Hitchman and Shore will get more relief tonight than is usually their fortune the lines will not change their mode of attack. Relief for Hitchman and Shore means that George Owen will see more service.

OWEN MAY PLAY TONIGHT

Due to the stellar article of hockey that the regular defense men have been playing this season, Owen has been kept on the bench and has been able to break in as frequently as he did a year ago. Owen, however, is in fine shape and ready to carry on a game of the 60-minute route, if necessary

Manager Ross will send his Dynamite Duo, Galbraith, Barry and Oliver in at the start of tonight's game to take the rough edge off the Kilrea, Joe Lamb and Frank Finnigan.

Ottawa packs a terrific punch in the first five minutes of play in all of their games but Manager Ross has great confidence in the defensive ability of the Thunderbirds.

Cooney Weiland, Dutch Gainor and Dit Clapper will replace the first line after five minutes of play and will carry on until half time, when Mickie MacKay and his two cohorts, Bill Carson and Bill Hutton, will make their bow. The MacKay line is coming very fast and has been getting their share of the goals during recent games. Carson has recovered his scoring eye, while MacKay is always dangerous, and Hutton is looking better every game.

Wrigley to Trade Hack Wilson if He Fights Art Shires

HEYDLER IS OPPOSED TO BOXING

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—Starting with the off-season of 1930-31, Art Shires, the great big adenoids man of the White Sox, and other ball players who fancy themselves as pugilists, probably will do all of their fighting at home over the breakfast table, President John A. Heydler of the National League, informed the writer in an exclusive statement today.

Baseball, he said, was sure to bar the boxer-ball player, not only as a protection for its investment in the player, but to protect the player himself.

"Good," he said, when told that William Wrigley, Jr., had warned Hack Wilson he might be traded elsewhere if he persisted in meeting Shires in the ring, "that's fine.

AITHIN HIS RIGHTS

"Mr. Wrigley merely is acting within his legal rights, as all contracts expressly state that the player can't indulge in outside sports without the owner's consent.

"I doubt if that consent has been forthcoming in any instance so far. We could break this up right now, if we didn't feel that the thing was just a phase and had about run its course.

"Anyhow, it had better do all of its running now, for I predict it won't get the chance hereafter."

The National League president claimed to be speaking neither for baseball in general nor for his own organization. He said he was speaking only for "common sense."

The clause forbidding this activity is in the contract and all we have to do is insist upon it being obeyed," he added. "After what has happened this year I can't conceive of any owner who won't be very insistent on this point."

He thereupon listed the following commonsense objections to ball players pretending to be fighters in their spare time, as the case may be:

That so called "had hands" are oft the hallmark of the man who won't know how to field, run and the rest of the ball player's career.

That blindness, partial or actual, not uncommon to the ring and that to player so affected would be useless, perforce, on baseball.

That, if not otherwise injured, is boxer-ball player jeopardized in health by eliminating body aches that might slow him up on the field or play; and, finally, that the conditions were absurdities, and, therefore, reacted unfavorably on the profession he was supposed to ornament.

We don't want to interfere with the off-season activities of our men any more than we can help," said he, "but when these activities threaten our investment in the man and the man himself, it is time to call a halt.

CITY'S BRAVEST PLAYER

It took the Boston club some time and money, for example, to develop young Spellman. Why should its interest in this man be placed in a compromising position by his thoughtlessness?

It is surprising to me the players themselves don't think of this. It has taken them an long to get where they are and yet they want to jeopardize this position for a few dollars.

"They would do well to seek the advice of Frank Frisch, who played basketball one winter and found that the pounding on the hard floors had begun to tell on him by the middle of the following season. Thereafter, he wisely refrained from indulging in an activity that threatened his livelihood.

"This is common, everyday horse sense but, if our players refuse to think in these terms, they leave us no alternative but to set to and do their thinking for them."

Bob Quinn Opposed to Morris-Shires Bout

The ring career of Arthur (The Great) Shires, White Sox first baseman who recently turned fighter, is likely to come to a sudden close here, it is reported, has been summoned to meet Judge Landis high commissioner of baseball, in Chicago on Saturday.

The "great one" continues to receive challenges from baseball players and others who are anxious to test his mettle. Bill Barrett of Cambridge, Red Sox outfielder, sought permission of Bob Quinn to meet Shires, but the president of the Red Sox flatly refused to give his sanction.

Eric Erickson, Red Sox hurler, is another ball player anxious to meet Shires in the ring. Ed wired from Seattle that he would like to meet Shires, but in view of Bob Quinn's refusal to allow Barrett to enter the ring, it is unlikely that Morris and Shires will meet.

Eddie Mack, matchmaker at the Boston Garden, is still seeking an opponent for Shires. Earl Smith, Cardinal catcher, who has a reputation as a rough fellow, has been invited to meet Shires but, so far, no reply has been received by Eddie Mack.

Eddie Shore, star of the Bruins, who refused to meet Shires, and it takes to look as if Shires will have to retire from the ring, or be ruled by Landis, before he can get a quarter of a million dollars he dreamed of collecting as a hitter.

Rusty Callow, head coach of the University of Penn crew, is shown giving his squad a lesson in how to hold their oars. From all indications, Penn will have a stellar crew this spring. Callow has already begun intensive indoor training and his charges have responded enthusiastically. (International Newsreel photo.)

2 MIAMI BOUTS FOR SONNY

Gus Sonenberg, heavyweight wrestling champion of the world, and originator of the famous "flying tackle," will defend his title twice this winter in Florida, according to an announcement today by Elwood Rigby, local matchmaker.

Sonnenberg has signed to meet either Ed "Strangler" Lewis or Joe Stecher next Feb. 14 or 24 in Miami, Fla., according to Rigby.

Sonnenberg's title as well as his $10,000 diamond-studded belt will be at stake. Sonnenberg has also signed to meet Stanley Stasiuk on March 14 at St. Petersburg, Fla., for a championship match, providing he still holds the title, Rigby said.

A $50,000 purse will be Sonnenberg's end of the money for the both bouts.

Mackmen and Browns Best on Defense

CHICAGO, Jan. 14 (AP)—The world's champion Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Browns had the tightest defense of all American League clubs in 1929, official fielding averages disclosed today.

The Athletics accepted 58-4 chances and the Browns 5971, each compiling a grand season average of .975, or three points higher than the leading mark recorded by Washington in 1928 and two points less than the all-time major record established by the New York Yankees in 1923.

Detroit, leader in team hitting, was last in team fielding, making 242 errors for an average of .961. New York was third with a .971 average, Chicago fourth with .973 and Washington and Cleveland tied for fifth and sixth with .968. Boston, with a .965 mark, was seventh.

KAMM RETAINS RECORD.

Only one player, Willie Kamm of Chicago White Sox, retained his fielding championship. Kamm defended his third base post at a .978 clip, accepting 491 chances and making but 11 errors in 145 games in 1929 he fielded .977.

Joe Judge, Washington veteran led the first basemen. He played in 142 games, made 1323 putouts and 88 assists and only six errors for an average of .996.

Lew Fonseca of Cleveland new American League batting champion, was second to Judge with a .995 average.

Charles Gehringer, Detroit's youthful second baseman, was the best defensive player of the year around the keystone station. He had 404 putouts, 501 assists and but 23 errors in 154 games for a .040 mark.

Gehringer also participated in 93 double plays. John Hodapp of Cleveland had an average of .977, but he competed in only 72 games.

Shortstops were unusually mediocre in defense. The averages revealed Joe Boley of the Athletics the best, with a .963 average. Boley played in only 88 games. His record was 181 putouts, 229 assists and 15 errors. Leo Durocher was second with an .958 average.

OUTFIELDS TIP.

Al Simmons of the Athletics and Fred Schulte of the Browns tied for first place among the outfielders with .980 averages. In 112 games in centerfield, Schulte accepted 373 chances, while Simmons had 348 in 142 games in left field.

Harold Rusl led the catchers with .990 for 83 games, although Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane of the Athletics who played in 95 games, averaged as the best when he caught the ball.

Thirteen pitchers were worthy of games in the fielding record. Jack Ogden accepted 81 chances without an error during the season two by the Yankees and one each by St. Louis and Detroit.

Willis Kamm of the White Sox completed a triple play by jumping the bases full of Cleveland runs in his major league career. Cleveland, leaders in double play, plays in 1928 with 181, repeated in 1929 but with a 162 total.

B. U. Six Tunes Up for Game With Harvard

BOSTON UNIVERSITY'S varsity hockey squad will go through its final workout at the Arena today in preparation of its clash with the Harvard sextet at the Arena tomorrow night.

Coach Wayland Vaughan will settle on his starting lineup today after several sessions of experimenting following the team's collapse in the recent Boston Hockey club game.

Practically every player on the team, with the exception of Dick Lombard at left wing, and Bob Elliot at right defense, has been juggled around in various positions in an attempt to bring the Terrier six out of its slump.

Buck Reynolds has been moved up to both center and right wing from his former defense berth and may be seen in one of these posts against the Crimson. Shorty Barton has been moving back and forth between the first and second teams at center ice.

MIAMI BOUT FOR WINNER

Only a victory over Armand Emanuel, Pacific coast heavyweight, will prevent Jimmy Maloney, South Boston ring giant, to accept the proposed bout with Paulino Uzcudun at Miami next month on the same card with Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott.

Judging by the speed of Maloney's daily training sessions at his Wamesit camp, he is planning to take the measure of the Californian, when they clash at the Boston Garden, Friday night, January 24.

Maloney always has insisted that he can take the measure of Paulino or other members of the top flight of heavyweights and now that he is facing an opportunity to make the grade he doesn't intend to allow Emanuel to block his way to this important bout.

Emanuel looms up as one of the most dangerous opponents that the South Boston man has ever met. Always weak against opponents with flashy left hands such as Emanuel boasts, Maloney plans to break the jinx that has followed him when pitted against such men as He is perfecting a defense for left hands in his daily training sessions at Wamesit and according to his handlers, he is planning to hang a knockout on the Far Westerner.

Bates Six in Tie for State Title

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 14—Bates defeated Colby, 3 to 1, in their hockey game. Capt. Johnnie Dugan of Stoneham scored two of the three goals for the winners, while White added the other. Ted Lovett made the only Colby score. The game was unusually rough, with many penalties. Bates is now tied with Bowdoin for the Maine college championship.

TUFTS PICKS MAT TEAM

The 135-pound and unlimited classes elimination bouts at Tufts resulted in wins for Govoni in the 135 and Littleton in the unlimited. This completes the lineup which will face the Harvard matmen in the Jumbo's opening meet of the year at Hemenway gym tomorrow evening.

Curly Edwards who wrestled in the 115-pound class two years ago will represent his class. Capt. Stella, last year's 115-pound intercollegiate champion, will defend in the 125 class this year.

Govoni in the 135 and Mumford in the 145 will oppose Harvard. Mark Seaver of the 1928 team will wrestle 155. Giles in the 165, Wilkinson in the 175, and Littleton, the big football tackle, in the unlimited will complete the card.

Pres. of Hartford Club Is Dead

Hartford, Ct., Jan 14 (INS)—Robert I. Farrell, youthful head of the Eastern League baseball club, died at his home here today following appendicitis operation at St. Francis hospital on Sunday. He was operated upon Thursday and had been reported resting comfortably.

Farrell, who was 33 years old, became president of the Eastern League after having served as business manager of the club for a year and a half.

He acquired the Hartford franchise in 1928 handling the team that year and in 1929. He was the youngest baseball executive in the country.

Farrell is survived by his wife and two children, his parents, brothers and sisters.

PANTHER SEEKS SHOT AT TITLE

Panther Joe Malewicz one of the most popular wrestlers who has ever appeared here, will battle for the right to remain among the leading wrestlers in the world when he meets Joe Stecher former champion of the world, in a finish match at the Arena one week from Thursday night.

Malewicz is keen for another match with Gus Sonnenberg, ruler of the heavyweights, and is determined to beat Stecher decisively in order to force Gus the Goat into a match for the title.

"I think I outwrestled Sonnenberg when we met at the Garden last winter" he said yesterday. "I've been shooting at the title for five years. I should have had the title when I beat Earl Caddock. I've also beaten Jim London, Marin Plestina and a few others. You'll recollect a draw with Strangler Lewis that finally finished at two o'clock in the morning.

Stecher, of course, is a great wrestler, continued Malewicz. I've put him and his body artistry out both with my speed and my tricks of the trade, I think I'll be the title one of him."

Malewicz, who is in perfect condition following a rest period in Worcester to which he retired after his match with Ed "Strangler" Lewis and will probably be in New York a month before the match to take the formidable Joe Stecher, his comeback was one of the surprises of 1929 and it is likely he has added a repertoire of sensational wrestling grips to his scissors.

BOWEN TO RUN IN K. C. 440

Reggie Bowen will be a starter in the William C. Prout Memorial relay mile run, one of the features of the annual indoor games of the Knights of Columbus which will be staged in the Boston Garden on Saturday, January 25.

In making the announcement of Bowen's entry for the K. of C. games, Coach Jack Ryder of the Boston A. A. said that a preliminary relay mile had been added to the program for the benefit of the preparatory school race will be in the nature of a championship relay teams from Newark Prep, Tilton Academy, Worcester Academy and Huntington School have been added to the field.

On the relay program to date is the Eastern Mile race at a mile, a Boston College-New Hampshire race, two Boston high school features, one for midgets, always a popular feature, and the academy championship just mentioned. This relay program will be a feast in itself for 14 races have been planned.

Washington to Play Villanova in Philly

Philadelphia, Wash., Jan 14 (AP)—The State College has scheduled an intersectional football game with Villanova in the Philadelphia municipal stadium November 29, 1930, it was announced here today.

MEDFORD TO PLAY LYNN FIVE TODAY

ONE of the best school court games of the year will be played this afternoon at the Medford high gym when the Lynn English five faces the Blue and White.

Medford started this season with poor prospects, but Tony Lyon has built a team of Medford best court teams of recent years. Medford has a very fast five. The boys can handle the ball and work together perfectly. Wongie Spellman all-scholastic quarterback of Medford is at right forward. Spellman is able to move around as fast as any high school courtman in the state.

Spellman is not a good point basketball player in practice. In game, however, his splendid competitive spirit makes him a constant threat, and he is a consistent scorer.

MESSINA GOOD

Johnny Messina and MacLaughlin are the left forward and center respectively. Both these boys can step around and are good on team play.

The backs are capable. Christ Sarno, center of the grid team, right guard and Fred Stoddard left defense man. Either of these boys can stand a lot of punishment. Neither is very big, but their stamina makes up for lack of weight.

McGOVERN A FORWARD

Steve Gunns and Harry McGovern the latter a halfback on the Lynn grid team, are the forwards.

Coach Whelan hopes to pilot his team through with few defeats Brockton beat the Lynn team on Friday, but only by a wild attack in the final 30 seconds of play. Lynn is anxious to make up for that defeat, and should make things tough for Medford.

The Blue and White has the big advantage of playing in its own home and for that reason is confident of the outcome of the game. The tilt is sure to be close, at any rate, with the two leading five, the State battling for a win.

Leo Sullivan, star backfield man of Lawrence high will not be eligible for the grid team next fall. The school authorities have found that when he completes his present year in school he will have had the four seasons allowed Sullivan may enter prep school at the conclusion of the present year. He would be a valuable addition to any of the prep elevens.

Doc Lavallee star football player of Lowell high was credited with running the 30-yard dash in 3½ seconds in a recent meet with Lowell, thereby breaking a record of 3 3-5 seconds made in 1904, the same meet Capt Jim Handley of the high school jumped 6 feet one-quarter inch. Both are fine performances as have been reported recently.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

"Golf is Greatest Teacher"

While golf originated in Scotland, or for the sake of avoiding arguments we'll concede it to the Scotch—at least they gave the game its development to the point where it is time as chasing rocks along the countryside, but ultimately gave the game the success of today. Golf—it has been the privilege of the writer to first to adopt the sport of golf and then to give it speed in protecting the golfer from lighter golfball which came into thought first on the scene of golf. It was recognized that in this step America finally contributed to the game its greatest step in speed factor. For its new ball really means more speed in golf development, and at the same time a sounder golf development. So many millions are now taking to the game and golf courses multiplying so rapidly that something was needed to stabilize the game, enable it to take care of the increase of figures or so of ground, and at the same time make the game the genuine game it started out to be before it developed into a long-driving contest. The new ball means that golfers, new and old will find it give more attention to shot making and less determination to driving 300 yards. The driver will be one of the shots in golf henceforth—but not THE shot.

NEW ERA'S DAWN AFFECTS ROMANCE AND LOVE

Young Girls' Problems Are Much Different Today

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WE are at the beginning of a radically new era!

"The age of machinery," some call this new age, and the prophecy that we shall become as mechanical-minded as the machinery that saves us labor and gives us leisure, is yours let us say of chauffeurs. Others tell us we are entering on the "era of the air," the golden age of adventure, in which we shall conquer the only ocean that remains unchartered—the vast area of atmosphere surrounding the earth.

Beatrice Fairfax

Others—still others—assure us we are at the beginning of a century wherein woman shall dominate and man becomes the weaker sex—an era in which emancipated woman shall come into her own!

Do not all these tendencies of the times affect the nature of romance, after the relationship between men and women to a great extent and affect marriage and home?

I, who have been giving advice to love-lorn girls and boys for many years, realize there are distinct fashions in romance—and unless I kept definitely in touch with new tendencies, my counsel would indeed, be of little value. What will be the questions asked Beatrice Fairfax 10 or 15 years from now? Or will that new generation of young folks be absolutely self-sufficient, solving their own problems from infancy on?

Let us review for a moment the sort of advice asked me 25 or 30 years ago. Elizabeth, let us say, wrote a genuine, gentle little note asking whether it was permissible to kiss a young man to whom one was not engaged. And I replied to Elizabeth, quite decidedly, that kissing was permissible only between two who were engaged.

Later, Elizabeth wrote that Jack had kissed her good-night—for the first time—as she knew he was going to propose—and he did the next day!

Such was the standard of Elizabeth's late teens, the "Maude Adams" decade. Not all lived up to that standard of demureness and strict restraint, but it was the standard.

Today I received a letter from Elizabeth's daughter, Betty.

Mother is hopelessly old-fashioned," wrote Betty. "Mother thinks anything is wrong and smoking is one of the objects to my riding with boys."

I shall write a different type of answer to Betty's letter from that I sent her mother.

Today, girls have attained a degree of freedom undreamed of in mothers' youth. And they set their own standards. Nevertheless, they have standards. I shall write Betty that every girl must decide for herself the momentous question, to kiss or not to kiss the escort, friend, or sweetheart who is for the moment the center of interest.

Girls are more free than they were 30 years ago; they go about unchaperoned in these informal days. But even today a girl with self-respect is very careful whom she drives with unchaperoned, and under what circumstances.

During the last 30 years, all the outward conditions of living have changed. Elizabeth stayed at home until she married, sheltered and chaperoned. In the 90's Betty works today as secretary with her boss in his private office, unchaperoned, save by her own dignity and sense of the fitness of things.

Betty may have a great career—may go to Congress, may become a scientist or an architect or engineer. She was well educated as her brother. She handles her own money. She may, if she is a reckless, impulsive Betty, indulge in some such social experiment as companionate marriage—and weep bitter tears of regret afterward. But all the progress and all the inventions and all radically new eras of past or future have not and cannot change the inborn nature of men and women.

Love with marriage and motherhood is still the great, lasting adventure, the important career for every woman, for which her heart hungers. The girl who refuses love late romance pass by for the sake of thrills or ambition will regret and regret and regret, if not now, later on when the lonely years come and she has not husband, home and children to fill her life with affection.

True women of today may do great work in the world, but home and husband are their foremost interest. Lady Astor, Mme. Curie, Mme. Schumann-Heink, Mrs. Lillian Galbraith, Mrs. Nellie Ross, ex-governor of Wyoming, are examples of feminine modern women who unite marriage, husband, home, children and career, but put husband and home first. "To be the supreme object of the affections of a good man," writes ex-Governor Nellie Ross, herself a devoted wife and mother, "the one of her choice, the mainspring of his home and happiness: the successful mother of his children . . . this in my opinion, is the realization of woman's highest aspiration and most satisfying joys. For this the world were lightly lost."

Girls of today are charming, modern, progressive, lovable. But not more lovable than their mothers, grandmothers and great-grandmothers. Fashions in romance and love may change; some of the rules governing marriage alter to suit new conditions. But love does not change. Men are still men and women, women, and the greatest woman's book, as centuries ago, is she who finds self-realization through marriage to a good man she loves and devotes her life to home, husband and children, and finds the problems that affect their welfare and happiness.

'Norrie, You're a Peach!' She Said

Lovejoy saved from embarrassment when seen by her husband lunching with Ogilbay. Norrie lies bravely for her and tells Tom that she met him by chance.

Lovejoy -:- Serial by Beatrice Burton things easy for Lovejoy.

"Norrie, you're an old peach," the girl said to her when Tom had gone out into the lobby with her packages. "What ever made you decide to join us here?"

Norrie a prim sweet mouth tightened at the corners.

"Well, I thought things over," she explained, "and I thought it would look disgraceful for you to be seen here lunching alone with this Ogilbay, so I came in. . . . I didn't want to, I can tell you."

She looked out into the lobby where Tom had disappeared.

"But I'm glad I did now," she added quietly. "Lovejoy, when a man cares for a girl the way your husband cares about you—well that girl is just insane if she takes chances with her happiness."

Lovejoy nodded.

"You certainly saved the day by showing up here, Norrie," she said. "If Tom had known that I came here alone with Steve Ogilbay I don't know what he'd have done. I wish you'd seen him when he caught sight of us at that table . . . He looked as if he were going to kill us. . . ." She caught her breath, remembering how angry he had been.

"Well, now that you know how jealous he can be, don't make him jealous," Norrie advised her in her quiet sensible way. "If I were lucky enough to be married to a man like Tom Nicholson I'd never know there was another man in the world . . . please believe me."

There was a wistful note in her voice that made Lovejoy study her with wondering curious eyes as she followed her to Steve Ogilbay's table a moment later.

How dreadful it must be to be 27 years old, as Norrie was, without ever having had a love affair. Without ever having a man look at you with his admiration and his desire for you in his eyes. . . Without ever knowing how heavenly it was to be kissed and petted and taken care of. . . .

Oh, well, that was the way of the world and of life itself, if you were beautiful, or if you happened to have the irresistible thing known as charm or sex-appeal, or "comebither," some man was sure to take you for his own.

But if you had none of those alluring qualities . . . why, then you had to be contented with the yearning-worker kind of life that Norrie Shane lived. Slaving day in and day out, year in and year out, earning your own living and pretending that you had everything you wanted . . . Poor Norrie, whose lot was to take care of the babies of women who had had luck enough or looks enough or lure enough to catch a man.

In September the two young Nicholsons left for Lowell at first and moved out into what Uncle James called "the suburbs."

They took a tiny green cottage just beyond the outskirts of the town, in a modest little lane that backed upon a fashionable street in the Country Club neighborhood.

And before she had been in that cottage a week Lovejoy met Aline Hixson, who was to have more to do with the planning and living of her life than any other person on earth.

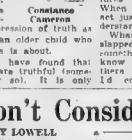
Teach Child to Respect the Truth

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A LONG while ago we considered the fact that a very small child cannot always distinguish just where his fancy leaves off and truth begins. The world is a big, confusing place, and only in asking questions about it and telling stories about things can he finally sift out and catalog fact and fancy. Straying from actual fact in a tiny child must never be confused with "lying"; nor the unconscious distortion or suppression of truth as offered us by an older child who knows what he is about.



Constance Cameron

Personally, I have found that most children are truthful (sometimes painfully so). It is only when a child has deliberately said "No" when the correct reply was "Yes," and found that it saved him a punishment or brought a coveted object that he falls into the habit of saying that which best suits his purpose.

And once this habit is contracted, the only remedy is patience and an absence of punishment for ANY misdeed as long as the child "owns up" and makes a clean breast of it.

Last week a woman said to me: "My daughter lied to me, so I slapped her. I slapped her mouth and I slapped it good." I wonder what she hopes to gain by such a method.

When, I wonder, will we leave off considering children as creatures different from ourselves? When will we learn that they respect just as we do to kindness, understanding and fair play?

What would you do if someone slapped your mouth for telling something which wasn't true? I know what I'd do. I'd then and there resolve that from now on I'd concoct bigger and better "stories," efficient and clever ones so that I'd never be caught again. It would drive me to more lying. Why not? Where is the incentive to tell the truth?

There is no need, nor success in going about it in such a manner. You will only defeat your own purpose if you do.

BUT, you CAN make truth-telling a thing to be desired, a thing which is praised and held up as the right and fair thing.

You can stop a child's slipping away from truth by frightening him. Only when he is sure that he need not FEAR to tell certain facts as they are, will he always give you the truth about things.

Even though what he is to say surprises and horrifies you never show that you had rather he had changed the story a bit. Praise him for having told ver exactly what happened, or what he did, or what was said. If what happened needs correction make it gently, but always with the remark that you are glad the child told you about it just as it was.

Don't Consider Giving Up Work

By LUCY LOWELL

"WORK! Where does it get you? Toiling, day in, day out— grinding—chasing around in a squirrel cage. I'd love a little idleness—fever to see the job again—"

I heard a woman say it, passing me on the street. A fine, courageous type of woman; no stamp of the quitter about her—only weariness, impatience with monotony.

We all stumble into this slump now and again. No matter how much we like the work, no matter how keen the realization that we would be miserable without it, we find it impossible always to keep a high heart.

For we would be miserable without work! without activity which means progress for ourselves something added to the sum of advancement for the world generally.

"Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do which must be done, whether you like it or not," said Charles Kingsley. "Being forced to work and forced to do your best will breed in you temperance, self-control, diligence, strength of will, content, and a hundred other virtues which the idle never know."

And George Bernard Shaw has something to say about work:

"Work is the curse of mankind on this earth. A day is ever struggling forward, a day will arrive in some approximating degree when he who has no work to do, by whatever name he may be called will not find it good to show himself in our quarter of the solar system but may go and look elsewhere if there be any idle planet discoverable. Let all honest workers rejoice that such law, the first of Nature, has been recognized by name."

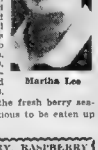
Winter Shortcakes

MOST of the time we associate the summer only with delicious berry shortcakes which require their due of whipped cream to make them doubly delicious.



Martha Lee

Winter, however, is equally shortcake time, as they contain both energy and fruit acids. And there are all kinds of berry available to make them with. Strawberries, raspberries, loganberries and black berries, put up during the fresh berry season, and so anxious to be eaten up now.

STRAWBERRY, RASPBERRY OR LOGANBERRY SHORTCAKE (With cake dough)

Cream one-fourth cup of butter, add one-half cup sugar gradually, and one egg well beaten. Mix and sift one cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder and one-fourth teaspoon salt, adding alternately with one-fourth cup milk to the first mixture. Beat thoroughly and bake in a buttered round tin. Cool, spread thickly with any of the three berries which you like best, after they have been sweetened and the syrup drained from them. Top with whipped cream.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

All main motor highways of Italy are to be bordered by trees under a plan promulgated by the ministry of public works. At the same time the ministry of agriculture is launching a drive for reforestration.

There are 2330 taxpayers in American Samoa.

Indiana has 13 airports classed as "adequate" or better.

LOGANBERRY, RASPBERRY OR STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES (Biscuit dough)

Sift two cups of flour with four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar. Rub in six tablespoons shortening with the finger tips. Add three-fourths cup milk, stirring it as little as possible. Dough should be soft as can be handled. Turn out on a slightly floured board and pat out gently. Cut out with biscuit cutter 16 rounds. Brush half of the rounds with melted butter and place the other halves on top of them. Bake in a hot oven, 450 degrees from 12 to 15 minutes. Split open the halves and again brush the tops with butter. Cover the lower halves with the contents of the number two can of slightly sweetened loganberries, raspberries or strawberries and place the top half on, having the crust side down. Again cover generously with berries, and top with whipped cream if desired This is enough for eight individual shortcakes.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

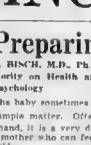
Preparing Milk for Your Child

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

FEEDING the baby sometimes is a very simple matter. Often on the other hand, it is a very difficult one. A mother who can feel her child should do so by instinct means. One cannot stress too much in the importance of the breast as compared to any milk formula. Breast-fed children are healthier, stronger, less given to illness and to digestive disturbances especially.



Dr. L. E. Bisch

If artificial feeding must be resorted to, cow's milk is the best substitute in this country. It happens that camel's milk is the nearest approach to the human milk, but that, of course, cannot be obtained. Since no milk is as good as mother's milk the transfer to cow's milk should not be made abrupt if the mother can supply even a little. Such a little helps to promote the proper digestion of the infant.

Always be sure that the milk supply is reliable, especially as to freshness. Milk from several cows is much better than from a single cow, no matter how good her milk may be. Mixed milk varies less from day to day as to its fat, protein and sugar constituents.

It is perhaps strange, although true, that a baby can digest more of the fat in mother's milk than in cow's milk. Cow's milk is also deficient in sugars and its protein content is often too great. That is why the sugar must be added and the milk diluted to reduce the protein content in milk formulas.

No mother should attempt to make up a milk formula for her baby without consulting a physician and following his directions to the letter.

In giving such directions a doctor is likely to use the expression "gravity cream." Gravity cream is used as a basis for modifying cow's milk. It is the cream which rises to the surface of an ordinary quart of bottle milk after it has been standing from four to twelve hours without being disturbed.

From gravity cream modifications are made to get 10 per cent and 7 per cent milk. For this it is necessary to use a one-ounce dipper.

In order to make 10 per cent milk, take a 12-hour-old quart bottle of milk and, with the one-ounce dipper, remove 10 ounces of the top milk, about the upper third of the bottle. It is best to fill the dipper once with a spoon, else the milk may overflow and disturb the cream too much To these 10 ounces of gravity cream add 10 ounces of plain milk. The mixture is 10 per cent milk.

In order to make 7 per cent milk the same procedure is followed, except to one part of gravity cream three parts of plain milk are added. In other words, 10 ounces, or the upper half of the bottle, are taken and then 40 ounces of plain milk added.

But no mother should try to make milk formulas unless the above method or some other is made plain and clear by the physicians in charge.

The bottles in which the milk for several feedings are kept should be cleansed and sterilized by boiling, then properly stoppered with a tight-fitting sterilized rubber cap. The milk should be kept on ice.

Never be careless about any of the steps in preparing the baby's milk. A little slip and the baby may get sick.

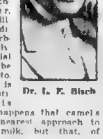
Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HOLIDAYS . . . pretty hard times for some of us, aren't they, stranger?

Looking back to yesterday . . . thinking of those who've gone . . . dwelling on those happier scenes where we may walk no more . . . and then seeing others laughing all around us. Hurts! Thanks giving. Christ-mas! . . . we drift through them like sea shells, with our spirits far away.



Elsie Robinson

And often and often we go on drifting, through the year-empty. Day nothing in offices and homes, work in factories and stores and schools . . . but we're somewhere else.

We're living in the days that are gone . . . living in memories. Or, perhaps, living in the days that are to come . . . living in hope. And so today means nothing. Today just nothing at all because we give nothing to it. And unreasonable as it may seem, we resent the fact that life is cheating us. It isn't. We're cheating life. We're cheating life by refusing to live in it.

Believe this, friend, for its bed rock law.

The business of living is yesterday is a sick and sinful thing. You belong to TODAY. Your place is HERE. Your job is NOW. And living with your face turned early will bring you nothing but grief.

Remember Lot's wife? Her sin was condemned for its sinfulness and her home must go with the rest. She was told to flee with her husband and "not look back." But she had set her heart on this new home-making. She loved her yesterdays. Her body went forward but her spirit lagged. So she turned to look back. And turning, was changed to a "pillar of salt."

That's an old, old story but it's as true for you this Christmas as it was for the Hebrews in the dawn of history. Your life, too, will be changed to bitter, futile ash if you cease to face turned to yesterday.

Today holds life and love and adventure for you and as much as yesterday held them. It must especially have some sort of life, some love that is some adventure. Nothing ever does stay the same. But the same peace and joy and force will come out of living today as came out of living yesterday.

If you have the will and the courage to reach for them.

This doesn't have to be a day of dead dreams . . . it can be a day of new achievement, of fresh and lovely contact, of tingling progress as you will have it.

You need only to turn your face and step in line . . . and put your hands in the nearest job . . . and light the fires of your heart again!

Then stand up . . . buck up . . . throw yourself into today!

Today has need of you and you have need of today.

Today is your partner!

Don't run from your partner . . . [illegible]

Girl Shouldn't Always Pay

By MRS. BEECHMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECHMAN

As I have never seen the subject dealt with in an etiquette books and just to settle a discussion we had the other evening, I am going to ask you to solve the problem for me.

If a boy and girl have been keeping "rather steady" company for four months (but she has no engagement ring) and he has been out to see her for several months and is rather hard pressed for cash would you think it proper for the girl to put up the cash so that they could attend theaters and other places of amusement, or would she lose her reputation and lower herself by so doing? Should they continue to visit homes and away from places of amusement until he got on his feet again—which does not look very close at present.

One girl in particular that I have in mind has been considered by all her friends for a month and is always a reminder if it be her mother and sister in front of [illegible]

This is not a question of expense as much as a question of personal pride. Although I am naturally nothing serious in a girl continually paying for entertainment for a man, I think a girl not only in her teens but in the [illegible] can understand and appreciate a man's position.

I cannot understand the point of view of a man who would allow this if neither has much money, or how he can reconcile his position with such especially unattractive social [illegible] as [illegible] such a high idea of the value of his society that he can understand thoroughly [illegible] a girl can pay her way for it.

[illegible] of the mother and sister of one of the girls mentioned before [illegible] but still I should think that a mother and sister of such a foolish girl would be concerned and ashamed.

As you know if you are a steady reader of my columns, I do not believe that a girl should ever make a gesture of help in the household. Only once and over again in my column I tell girls that it is perfectly correct and charming and friendly to invite a man to go with her, say to a dance given by her club—and always I beg her to but the tickets. But to persist in buying all the entertainment tickets in—well, it is so contrary to tradition that it doesn't work right! a world that isn't built that way.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I am 16 years of age and have been a very good friend of a man of 21 for about two and one-half years. He is very nice to me and has been a perfect gentleman. He has given me flowers for a birthday present. At the time of his birthday last fall, Christmas last year, also. [illegible] was a little misunderstanding between some members of his family and my family. Therefore I did not give him a gift for his birthday or at Christmas. I did not receive a present from him either. We think a great deal of each other, and as I received flowers from him on my last birthday I am puzzled as to whether I should send him a gift for his birthday or whether I should just send a card? Does this apply to Christmas also? I do not believe a girl should give gifts unless she is engaged to the young man. Do you think this is the right attitude to have? Although I do think it is very nice for a young man to send a girl flowers I really cares for—an impersonal gift.

MARIE

ALL of your reactions are socially correct and so have the young man's been. He has shown such excellent taste in sending you the charming gift of flowers that I hope you will show the same taste in not sending him a present, but instead send him a card or a note.

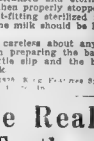
The Real Truth

ABOUT A REPRIMAND

By Elinor Glyn

THE one thing we should all try to do is to learn something every day! I attribute any success I may have had in life mainly to that, and I have kept on learning from the most unexpected sources, and I have learned some thing that has helped me.



Elinor Glyn

A woman wrote to me from San Francisco and she must be a very nice person from what I liked my articles so much but they just disliked the word Greece and Maud," which I use.

Those names were terribly old-fashioned, she said, and simply got on their nerves, and were they real people?

Her letter taught me this, for perhaps she is right; the reference may have gotten on a number of other people's nerves also! So we will "forget it."

They were names which just came into my head to distinguish two different types of girls.

They were both real people and of course we must be up to date and never old fashioned! So we will bury the pair with rose leaves!

But the moral of the whole thing is never to be so stupid as to let wounded vanity or hurt self-love stand in the way of your taking advantage of advice or a reprimand, which if you used your common sense you would realize would be of benefit to you.

Keep your eyes and ears open, learn to see straight, and learn to hear accurately, and then above all learn to make true deductions from what you see and hear, and so gain advantage from everything.

CORN STALKS TO FURNISH LUMBER

By FRANK H. WELDON
Financial Editor

Growing scarcity of wood is indicated by formation of the National Cornstalks Process, Inc., a million - dollar closed corporation, to manufacture thin lumber substitutes from cornstalks. The stockholders include a number of former Boston banker, E. V. R. Thayer. Associated with him are former Governor Lowden of Illinois and Herbert F. Perkins, president of International Harvester Co. The last previously suggested use for utilization of cornstalks was production of motor fuel for automobiles. No one of the great bulk of cornstalks for some time to come will continue to be machine-cut for storage in American silos.

The Stock Exchange houses were also different than others in being unable to keep the number of employees at just the size required a full year through. The half-time idea is a novel experiment. To let help go entirely leaves the possibility that they may seek employment elsewhere and leave the house unable to replace them when the days of need arrive.

Col. Charles R. Gow's suggestion that "L" lines be used to speed up mail transportation is one to be expected from a Boston postmaster drafted from the business world. It would provide a source of revenue which might do away with some of the talk about raising "L" fares and having additional aid given to the "L." And, of course, it would better the postal service, an essential artery in the business life of every community. Stock manipulation in the mails has been doing much better during the past week than in many previous periods.

Household Finance Corporation has set aside a definite fund to be distributed in 1930 among local charities on a basis of the amount of business done in each of the sixty-eight cities where it operates. Funds will be given to community chests, family welfare organizations, the American Legion, Boy Scouts, etc.

"We feel that each branch office is an integral part of the community," said L. C. Harbison, president, "and should volunteer to meet community responsibilities on a definite plan. Heretofore our contributions have depended upon the solicitation of local charities, without reference to the volume of our business in the community. Our new policy will distribute our gifts proportionately to the worthy charities in cities where our offices are located."

Leon F. Merchant of Leon E. Merchant & Co., 1 Federal st., has just been elected to membership in the Boston Stock Exchange. Mr. Merchant, long financial editor of Boston newspapers, secured a seat of John Hull, and $36,500 was announced by the stock exchange as the price paid. The last previous sale of a Boston Stock Exchange seat was $45,000. This took place before the stock market break. A considerable higher figure than has been mentioned in this paragraph would prove tempting to only two or three Boston Stock Exchange members, we are told.

Developments Are Fulfilling Expectations

Trade, Stocks Are Normal; Money Cheaper; One Untimely Move

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—The first half of January has at least fulfilled expectations. Quiet times were predicted for the early part of the year. On the whole, business developments have been moderately encouraging.

The stock market, as anticipated, has ruled very quiet and without pronounced change in price levels.

B. C. FORBES

The Steel Corporation's gain of 291,845 tons in unfilled orders in December is encouraging even after allowing for the rather drastic reduction in production last month.

The industry has substantially speeded up output and this accelerated pace probably will be continued.

The reports emanating from the New York automobile show have been satisfactory, although nothing spectacular has occurred. More manufacturers are cutting prices. Not only so, but it has become increasingly evident that our automobile leaders do not intend to repeat the blundering of our old industry. As all the world knows, wasteful overproduction of oil has been scandalous for several years, at loss to everybody and profit to none, including the nation itself. Motor makers apparently are determined to avoid ruinous excess production.

If this policy be adhered to, the results should be beneficial alike to manufacturers, dealers and our national prosperity.

Retail business has suffered from abnormally mild weather in certain sections and abnormally wintry weather in other sections. The latest reports reveal that Christmas buying was well up to average.

It cannot be said that many of the large-scale construction programs promised at Washington have yet been set in motion. The shrinkage in building during the latter part of last year was unfortunately severe. Nor has there yet been any notable revival in applications for permits for future operations. Nevertheless, there is still every reason to hope that fulfillment of the pledges made to President Hoover will shortly begin to make itself felt.

Certainly the money market is conducive to enterprise. Wall Street, loans running from 60 days to six months have become freely available at 4½ to 4¾ per cent, against 7½ per cent a year ago. The choicest commercial paper became discountable on Friday at less than 5 per cent in some instances, for the first time. Bankers' acceptances for short terms are a shade under 4 per cent and for longer terms a shade above that figure.

Brokers' loans last week fell $72,000,000, reducing the total to $3,352,000,000, which is almost two billion dollars under the corresponding figure of last month's high record, $5,513,000,000. Gold shipments have ceased, at least for the present. The Federal Reserve System is carrying a reserve ratio of 73.9 per cent, contrasted with 68.3 per cent a year ago.

Under these circumstances it is logical to take seriously the chance of a possible reduction in the 4½ per cent New York rediscount rate. Should, as expected, the Bank of England lowers its rate, action here doubtless would not be long delayed. The Reserve authorities are now anxious to do everything possible to facilitate the carrying out of President Hoover's "prosperity program."

Unfortunately, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce has chosen the precise most inopportune time to bring forward the suggestion that Secretary Mellon be deposed from the chairmanship of the Federal Reserve Board and that the governor of the board become its untrammeled head.

The fact is that no Washington official enjoys a larger measure of public confidence than Secretary Mellon. Equally true is it that the Federal Reserve Board members, deservedly or undeservedly, have failed to inspire any corresponding degree of public confidence. Therefore it would seem peculiarly unwise to stir up nation-wide agitation at this time with a view to curtailing Secretary Mellon's authority.

The feeling in financial circles is that Washington is likely to inject enough uncertainty without a body like the U. S. Chamber of Commerce going out of its way to bring to bath an element. It is to be hoped, in the interest of stability and prosperity, that no hornets' nest of this kind will be stirred up.

Unemployment has lately interested seriously in Britain, notwithstanding that a Labor Government is in power.

Often in the past the stock market has become extremely dull and featureless preceding a distinct movement. The shadow favor rather than poorer prices for good stocks.

UTILITIES IN LEAD ON NEW YORK CURB

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Except for a few members of the utility group, Curb stocks were lifeless today. Turnovers in most instances involved only a nominal number of shares.

United Light & Power A was a feature, rising more than 2 points on active buying. Electric Bond & Share advanced about a point, while American Gas & Electric was bid up nearly 3. United Gas, Commonwealth Edison and Allied Power & Light were firm.

The industrials dragged. Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Associated Rayon rallied about a point, but the leaders were dull and showed only small changes either way.

Oil stocks were mixed. Cities Service and Standard of Indiana sold off fractionally, while Gulf lost a point. Illinois Pipe Line rose 3.

Investment trusts ruled steady. Small declines in Blue Ridge and Trans-Atlantic were matched by gains of about the same proportions in Goldman Sachs & Lehman. Insull Utilities traded a point higher.

EQUIPMENT IN BIG DEMAND

After reaching, in 1929, the highest level for any year since 1924, orders for railroad equipment are approaching, if indeed they have not already reached, a peak for the current movement, says a survey of the Standard Statistics Company of New York. The survey continues, in part:

"Hastened by the present Hoover program for the stimulation of business, ordering of such equipment during the closing months of 1929 was extremely heavy, and, with like incentive for current contracting, it is our opinion that the major part of full year requirements will soon be in the hands of the manufacturers.

"Thus, beginning with the second quarter of the latest year, we look for a declining trend of new business, of quite considerable proportions, carrying through the remainder of the year.

"Current orders in the hands of the industry, however, are of such size as to assure, for the next several months at least, a continuously excellent rate of manufacturing activity. In fact, barring heavy cancellations, which at present seem unlikely, we expect little reduction in aggregate business for the first quarter below the generously satisfactory levels of 1929."

City Mortgages to Pay More Than Farm

Reports from the finance committee of John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Boston indicates $65,745,250 new investments placed during 12 months ended December 31, 1929, of which approximately $41,000,00 was in loans on city and farm mortgages. Loans on city properties totaled $26,188,761 and on farms $14,905,988. Loans on city properties were placed on yield average of 6.78 per cent, on farms 5.38 per cent, average for all loans being 5.84 per cent.

Average mortgage loans for December were placed to yield 5.48 per cent, considerably higher than the year's average. Mortgage loans were placed on 2357 farms and on 2007 city properties, including single dwelling houses and 348 apartment buildings, housing in all 6698 families.

Balance of 1929 investments was in railroad securities, public utilities, municipal and miscellaneous bonds, itemized as follows:

Railroad securities	$5,182,500
Public utilities	10,142,000
Muncilipal bonds	7,791,000
Miscellaneous bonds	1,535,000

OLD BONDS ARE NEGLECTED FOR NEW

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Jan. 14—(AP)—The bond market was lifeless again today, making only a narrow response to orders by either buyers or sellers.

It was apparent that the volume of new financing was detracting from interest in, listed securities, although the price structure remained relatively steady, demonstrating the fundamental strength of the recent rise.

There were a few exceptions to the small fluctuations. Union Pacific refunding 5s rallied 1½ points to exceed their 1929 high on active accumulation.

North American Edison 5½s were traded in good volume, coincident with the report that the company was soon to float a $25,000,000 loan in 5s at an offering price of 99½.

The new American Telephone 5s turned over briskly, touching 101¼ early in the session. There were more moderate inquiry for St. Louis Iron Mountain and Southern 4s and for Southern Pacific 4½s, but quotations were only firm. New York Central 5½s rose 3/4.

Changes on the down side involved Liggett & Myers 5s, off 1¼, New York Central-Michigan Central 3½s, off 2; and Montreal Tramway 5s, series D, off 1¾.

United States government securities were firm and moderately active, while the foreign list ruled steady. Convertibles drifted aimlessly, attracting little or no attention.

Time money was quiet and the rates were unchanged at 4½ to 4¾ per cent for all maturities.

COPPER STOCKS INCREASED

New York, Jan. 14 (AP)—Stocks of finished copper at North and South American refineries aggregated 171,320 tons on December 31 compared with 126,910 on November 30 and 65,685 on December 31, 1928, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. The low point was on October 31, 1926, when stocks amounted to 45,648 tons.

Refined copper production last month totaled 138,203 short tons, as against 145,376 in November, and 247,800 in December, 1928.

December shipments totaled 83,802 tons, as compared with 104,858 tons in November, and 134,892 tons in December a year ago.

Steel mill operations in and around Chicago are reported to be operating now at between 65 and 70 per cent of rated capacity, which is one of the 36 stacks in the district are active.

Building permits issued in 586 leading cities and towns of the country last month showed a decline of 39 per cent from the same month of 1928, according to a survey of R. W. Straus & Co. The total for the year was $3,379,977,311, compared with $3,827,321,447 for 1928, a decline of 12 per cent.

'DOOM' FACING U. S. SUGAR INDUSTRY

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP)—Senator Borah said in the Senate today that the domestic sugar industry was "doomed to extinction" if the United States continued to deal with this product from a tariff standpoint.

Borah is inclined to favor a bounty to domestic sugar producers in place of a higher tariff. He said the sugar tariff policy of this country had placed the domestic beet and cane growers in direct competition with the greatest and potentially greatest producers in the world—Cuba and the Philippines—and that it was impossible to meet this competition.

He described the 20 per cent preferential tariff granted Cuba as equivalent to a bounty to American capitalists interested in Cuban production, and asserted Philippine production, now permitted free entry into the United States, could be expanded tremendously.

DR. BABCOCK IS AUTO VICTIM

way to the University Club to attend the regular monthly meeting of the Clerical Club.

Harold S. Stone of Stearns rd., Brookline, an optometrist, was the driver of the car and he said that Bishop Babcock stepped from the curb against the side of his car, as he was shifting gears and moving about 10 miles an hour.

Police prepared a report for the Registry of Motor Vehicles stating the accident was "considered due to inattention on the part of the operator."

Stone, who was accompanied by his son Richard Stone, 24, picked up the injured man and took him in their sedan to the hospital. Traffic Officer John A. McCall, notified by other motorists, arrived in time to ride to the hospital with them.

Bishop Babcock was dazed but conscious during the trip. "What happened to me?" he asked. "I don't know what happened."

The shock to a man of Bishop Babcock's venerable age, and the brain injury are the cause of grave concern, Dr. George R. Murphy, night superintendent at City Hospital, stated that the patient had become irrational at times. There were developments indicating fractured ribs and chest injury.

In the afternoon, Bishop Babcock had attended the Old North Church, and accompanied by Charles K. Bolton, librarian of the Boston Athenaeum, walked to Back Bay.

They parted on Boylston st., and Bishop Babcock turned down Clarendon st. to go to the University Club, where he was to join Bishop Slattery for a dinner of the Clerical Club.

"This is my first accident in 19 years of driving," Stone said after taking Bishop Babcock to the hospital. "I really don't know how it happened. The first I knew was when I felt a bump against the side of my car and stopped instantly.

Meningitis Closes Theaters and Schools

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 14 (AP)—Schools and theatres in Safford and Solomonville were closed today on a report by the State Board of Health that ten new cases of spinal meningitis had developed in that section. The report indicated that 25 cases of the disease developed in the State in the week ending Jan. 11.

Butler, Mo., Jan. 14 (AP)—Because of two deaths from spinal meningitis, public schools have been closed for one week and all public meetings are forbidden. Churches were closed Sunday and motion picture theatres are included in the ban on meetings.

DARE-DEVIL CENTAURS OF SPAIN

Spain's cavalry officers endure the most dangerous tests of horsemanship in the world. Taught to stick in the saddle on precipices, over high barriers and boiling streams, these Spanish cavaliers and their mounts perform marvelous feats daily in the course of their training.

BIG SHAKEUP IN CURTISS AIR SERVICE

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

After about a year's work getting Curtiss-Wright Flying Service of New England on its feet, and off to a flying start the most amazing and unexpected shakeup in the ranks of the company became known today.

When the smoke cleared away, it was found that R. G. "Gil" Ervin, general manager of the outfit in New England, had resigned; there is no more Curtiss-Wright of New England, as a unit, and the Springfield base of the company has been abandoned.

What caused the shakeup could not be learned, but we understand, on good authority, that "Gil" checked out when the reins were taken out of his hands.

Ervin came into New England when the Curtiss Flying Service started its campaign to link the country with flying schools and operating bases, and so far has done a share of Job. All the bases in these six states turned in $178,000 worth of business during the past year, and it cost $174,000 to do this business, showing a net profit of $4000.

But, according to our informant, the Curtiss-Wright of New England, Inc., was washed out, and then came the news that made desirable one of the New England bases responsible directly to New York.

While not entirely unexpected in the way of further shakeups, this one has left the boys gasping for air.

The closing of Springfield office was announced by one chap in particular, Lee "Skip" Tracy. When the office was opened up there, "Skip" and Roscoe Brinton were the words and actions in show mighty fine work. We know that, because we watched them closely. Then Tracy was shifted down here on the sales department, and Roscoe carried on alone until Lowell Bayles was sent up as chief pilot.

The other Curtiss-Wright stations in New England, Portland, Hartford, Bridgeport, Pawtucket, Manchester and Boston will continue their operations under the present system.

We could not reach Ervin to have a chat with him, but we have started plans to give him a banquet, at which all the gang will be present, the purpose of which be will learn even more than he now knows, the respect the boys in New England, the Curtiss-Wright employes and outsiders, have for this chap who was formerly a major in the Air Service.

More details on this banquet will be divulged in the near future.

We haven't mentioned it before, but during the hectic days preceding East Coast's dedication, Frank LeMan didn't forget one of his first buddies in the flying game, here. C. Hogue, Frank and Mark were pals back in the days right after the war, and put on exhibitions all over New England, chiefly at Nantasket Beach.

Then Mark went west at the local airport in 1925 and Frank carried on alone with the plans they had made. Force of circumstances forced LeMan to give up the show, but now he is back again, and back again strong.

So last Saturday morning we were sitting in Frank's office when he appeared with a bundle under his arm. When he took the wrappings off we saw a picture of Hogue, nicely framed, which Frank placed right on the desk, so that Mark would be present at the big time after all.

Nice sentiment, we think.

Walter Rogers, head of the distributing and maintenance, returned from a trip to New York, during which he looked over the plans for the forthcoming air show and glanced at the activities of the boys down there.

Walt reports that the air show will be bigger than last year, with all kinds and shapes of airplanes on display. The show is scheduled for the second week of February, and most of the boys in Boston airport are making plans to attend the racket.

Because a load of motion picture films were necessary for a show house in Burlington, Vt., and the last train had been missed, Charlie Emerson climbed into Skywayo Bellanca cabin monoplane and hopped up there through the practically impossible weather conditions.

Johnnie Haughey, vice-president of the company, gave Charlie instructions to come down at White River Junction if he didn't pass that point before four o'clock. The thing are around waiting to hear from him, but no wire came from the checking point, so Charlie made the hop pretty much double.

Our suggestion of the other day about a couple of loads of ashes from the end of Jefferies st. to the airport proper for those who use the trolley was carried out, although we can't claim credit for the show, but no matter who did the job, we now can walk over without sliding in mud up to our necks.

Helen Wills Moody to Live on Nob Hill

San Francisco, Jan. 13 (AP)—Helen Wills Moody, women's tennis champion, who recently married Frederick S. Moody, Jr., San Francisco broker, is not going to live in a little gray home in the West.

The Moodys will live in a fashionable apartment house on Nob Hill. Their apartment will be furnished in Louis XV design, with carpets of brown and walls of cream tint. Moody and his bride are staying at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Wills, Helen's parents, in Berkeley, until their new home is ready.

Congress Should Aid Voluntary Mergers by the Railroads Themselves

THE report of the Interstate Commerce Commission suggesting the merger of all our railroads into twenty-one groups is a step towards the creation of a true American transportation system.

When that system is finally formed it will consist of a union of carriers by rail, ocean, river, lake, highway and air, all welded into a great machine for public service.

It is a fair criticism of the commission's plan to say that the commission is not qualified to draw up such a plan. It is a body intended and selected to supervise, not to create. Its proper job in the field of mergers is to examine the proposals of railroads themselves and apply to them the test of public interest. If they pass the test, the mergers should be approved.

CONSOLIDATIONS should accord with the natural development of business and the natural flow of traffic. Railroads naturally seek unions along these lines. When formed they are profitable to the roads and to the public served. It is not likely that unions as advantageous can be dictated by a governmental body of regulators.

Hence it is not surprising to find the commission's recommendations weakened by a string of dissenting reports by its members, with further dissents announced for publication later. It is not surprising that the entire document is rejected by the commission's chief adviser in these matters, Prof. William Z. Ripley of Harvard, who prepared for them a widely published consolidation plan in 1921.

IT is fair to say that the commission recognized its own unfitness for the job imposed on it by the transportation act of 1920. It has repeatedly asked to be freed from the task of proposing these consolidations. The commission ought, therefore, not to be offended if its suggestions are treated as nothing more than the starting point and occasion for further discussions and proposals by the railroads themselves. The public should regard the commission's report as important only in this respect.

Congress should do nothing to make the commission's plan as a whole binding in any way. It should offer every encouragement to the progress of voluntary consolidation by the roads themselves, subject to the commission's stringent investigation and approval.

This is the second of a series of editorials on the proposed merger of American railroads. The third will appear tomorrow.

'Popularity Is Impressive'

Mayor Curley as Seen by New York Eyes

THE following appraisal of Mayor James M. Curley appears in the New York Times of yesterday:

THE REAL MAYOR CURLEY

In his canvass for a third term Mayor Curley of Boston said that the Good Government Association ought to support him. This was regarded as facetious. That is the trouble with being a wit, a humorist, a multitudinous "mixer"; to be blessed of the Blarney Stone and have a genius for politics. Substance is forgotten in the accidents. Mayor Curley knows his business. His third inaugural deals practically with instant problems and looks intelligently to the future. He will invite 250 citizens, representatives of organizations that may be said to mirror the ideal and the material interests of the city, to be advisers of the city planning board in making a 50-year program of municipal improvement.

He may have to plead long with the Legislature to allow Boston to fix her tax and debt limit even the amount of money she may spend on sewer construction. A Democratic, and therefore wicked, community must be kept in leading-strings by the virtuous purists of the General Court. Long, too, before the cities and towns within the metropolitan area agree to the creation, in any form, of Greater Boston, Mr Curley compares the Boston situation with that of London before the establishment of the County Council. A metropolitan government under the borough system of the development or a regional plan for the area would be adopted. He recognizes, of course, that nothing can be done except through the consent and union of the towns and cities which it is hoped to include.

Some of these are of historic name and pride. All inherit a tradition of town government. Brookline, indeed, scorns to be a city and prefers to be ruled by its own wise and good. Minor politicians fear that they will become minus. Finally, whatever the present composition of the population, a strong Yankee trace survives. For instance, how convenient it is for Boston's neighbors to let her pay for that enlargement of transportation facilities which they help cause and profit by.

"Pre-eminently a document of social and health progress, it spins are capable of realization, if the city authorities and respect the private co-operation which the mayor asks, the Transcript says. The address receives praise from all sides. Mr Curley's acts speak more loudly. Of Mr. Silverman, the new corporation counsel, assistant under the old, the Boston Herald, appraising his ability, tells us the nobody knows whether he is Republican or a Democrat. Former Congressman Conry is the new traffic commissioner. Traffic in that perverse and crooked generation of streets and alleys in the old parts of the town was hard enough in the age of horses. An East Boston descendant of sailors, as port director Mr. Conry studied water, freight and motor traffic.

Presumably he will now renew an old plan of his to pull down the virtually unused structure of the elevated road on Atlantic ave. and make a thorough fare for vehicles. He would put ramps here, ramps there, along the elevated. He has been working on remedies for congestion these 20 years. Incidentally, he finds congestion in the traffic department's payroll; too many persons employed. In other departments Mr. Curley notes a reduction amounting to $200,000 paid for superfluous overtime work. Our Watch Tower man is impressed with the mayor's popularity. If he keeps on as he has begun, he will even be popular with the Good Government Associates. At least, he is giving them what they want.

A Noble Experiment

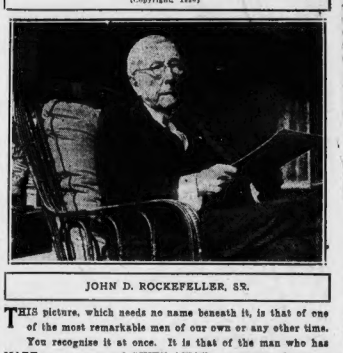
You Would Like to Hear This Man Talk

Now You Can Do It

(Copyright, 1930)



JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, SR.

THIS picture, which needs no name beneath it, is that of one of the most remarkable men of our own or any other time.

You recognize it at once. It is that of the man who has MADE more money and GIVEN AWAY more money than anybody else in the world's history.

Making all that money was a wonderful achievement, but there was nothing MIRACULOUS about it. In this country somebody had to do it. Mr. Rockefeller happened to be the one who did it FIRST.

Much more wonderful is the fact that HE HAS GIVEN NEARLY ALL OF IT AWAY.

You would like to have a ten-minute interview with a man who has done that. You feel that it would be valuable.

Well, you can have it today if you want to.

Mr. Rockefeller, who for two years has steadfastly refused to appear on the talking screen, recently consented to pose for the movie camera, speak into the microphone.

The talkie was made last Monday by the Hearst-Fox Corporation. Mr. Rockefeller, as you see him here, sat on the veranda of his Winter home at Ormond Beach, Florida.

Today he talks to you from the screen of Mr. Hearst's Embassy Newsreel Theater in New York, and of leading theaters throughout the United States.

You are interested to learn that Mr. Rockefeller made this talkie because of the WEATHER.

The Standard Oil Company that he founded sixty years ago celebrated its anniversary at Cleveland yesterday.

Mr. Rockefeller, who is ninety, wisely refused to risk the change of climate and appear at the convention in person.

The sound picture took him to Cleveland instead, quite as effectively and far more comfortably. Executives of his company last night saw his features, watched his gestures, heard his voice coming to them in tones remarkably strong and clear. The recording was flawless.

Mr. Rockefeller told them, among other things:

"I am grateful beyond measure for all these long, happy and prosperous years now drawing to a close."

You would expect that.

He said NOTHING about the six hundred million dollars he has returned to the people of this and other lands for health, art, science, education.

A smaller man might have referred to them—modestly, of course.

This sound picture, interesting to you now, will be more interesting to your children and your children's children.

It preserves the features, the tone, the PERSONALITY of a great American, one of the greatest, and thirty years ago one of the LEAST UNDERSTOOD.

He was then the target of the muckraker and the mudslinger, who saw only his wealth, not the IDEA behind it.

Now we know that he brought a new conception of wealth to the world, the conception that wealth is a PUBLIC TRUST.

That conception, which he has carried out, places him among the truly great of all time.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 — Custom spies have garnered a rich harvest this season. Such snoopers are found where you least expect them—like casual passenger, deck chair neighbor on ship board, the humble clerk aboard, hotel porter, femme de chambre, stewards and others working where people gather.

In a way, the government is forced to this unworthy espionage for it is the only way to combat smuggling. The informer is paid 25 per cent of the fine imposed for information and in no instance is his identity revealed to those whom he betrays.

The valet or nurse in a wealthy family may keep tab on purchases abroad, file the list with officials and receive a handsome reward without even losing a job. Clerks in European jewelry houses are the biggest profiteers in getting their duty of smuggling fines.

Even in reputable establishments clerks have been known to "peddle" contraband into a town. They whisper ways and means for evading duties and immediately dispatch information to proper authorities and later receive the rewards of their treachery.

The biggest smuggling malefactors—outside the professionals—are the extremely rich. They are forever taking chances and forever being caught. At times they are permitted to get away with loot for several voyages and then one day their yacht is sealed and carted off to warehouses.

Where the Knickerbocker hotel bar stood 13 years ago is a drug store. I recall receiving a bartender's scowl for asking for a lemonade. The other day in about the same spot I asked for a lemonade and received a soda jerker's smile. And yet there are those who say prohibition has made no changes.

I like to reminisce about the Knickerbocker. The place is haloed with first thrilling memories of New York. In its lobby I saw Caruso swing out the revolving door, a feather in his green Homberg hat and his cane held in the military fashion he affected for his afternoon stroll on the avenue. I lunched there once with Weber and Fields and it was at the Knickerbocker I learned to call a napkin a "serviette"—that is in those moments when I am putting on the ritz. Its dining room taught me the charming mysteries of en casserole dishes and also the menu name for chicken under glass. And the Knickerbocker had the grandest gold embossed stationery of all the hotel writing rooms into which I dropped to write to brag to the folks how I was getting on.

Harris Merton Lyon, that brave literary spirit whose span was so tragically brief, introduced me to my first pousse cafe at the Knickerbocker. I watched the expert bar man build it tenderly and carefully into its alluring beauty, downed it at a gulp and strolled outside to watch Times Square turn a somersault.

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells

ANOTHER kind of cephalopod, the pearly nautilus, is found swimming near the bottom round the shores and coral reefs of the South Pacific—it lives in a beautifully coiled spiral shell, a shell very different in structure from the persambulator shell of the female argonaut, and its numerous tentacles are not provided with suckers.

H. G. Wells

The fossils known as ammonities are the spirally coiled shells of a vast parallel group of cephalopods that has long been extinct.

The cephalopods breathe by rhythmically inhaling and exhaling water into and out of a large "mantle cavity," where it passes over their plume-like gills. By suddenly electing water from this cavity they can squirt themselves rapidly backward; this is their method of flight from danger.

The cuttlefish have an ingenious additional method of evading their enemies, depending upon their astonishing powers of rapidly changing color—powers that put a chameleon to shame—and upon the inky fluid, sepia, which they can emit when they wish.

A closely pressed cuttlefish tries at first to mislead its pursuers by changing as it flees from white to dark brown, then to a mottled color and so on. If these devices should fail it has another resource.

First it becomes very dark indeed, and for twelve seconds remains so. Then abruptly it turns off to one side, escaping in a direction at right angles to its original line of flight; as it does so it suddenly turns white and at the same time it belches out a puff of sepia, which travels away in the opposite direction.

The pursuer, which has been chasing a dark object, follows the black puff; by the time it has realized its mistake the cuttle fish has made good its escape.

These cephalopods are undoubtedly the most intelligent looking invertebrates. They have well-developed and grimly expressive eyes, and the subtle coiling movement of their arms and the rapid and very striking color changes that they undergo when stalking their prey or when pursued are suggestive of mental accompaniments.

Observers who have watched the very elaborate courtship of these animals or who have noted the voluptuous writhings of the tips of their arms when a hungry octopus devours its prey finds it easy to believe that these creatures can experience a rich variety of intense emotions—though it must be admitted that we have as yet no clear evidence of memory or forethought on the part of a cephalopod.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

A KISS used to be the jack-pot in woman's game of love; now it is merely a little white chip of no particular value.

When a woman loses faith in men her life may be spoiled; but it is not utterly wrecked until she loses her faith in beauty creams, plastic surgeons and her last reducing diet.

A woman can forgive a man for almost anything except that "You-owe-it-to-yourself-to-kiss-me" manner with which he sometimes bestows his favor upon her.

A man often goes back to his wife, just as a woman "goes back to mother"—for consolation, relief and moral support.

Men used to stand in a bar-room and sing "There's no place like home!" Now they go home because there's no bar-room like a man's own little "cellar" and no "homesweet-home" like the average American "home."

Theoretically, a man may admire a "queenly woman," but he will walk all the way around a throne any day to find a little "Cutie" who will sit on a footstool and look UP at him admiringly.

In the modern play it is always the villain who makes love artistically, while the hero just grabs the girl and blurts it out—or has to have it dragged out of him. Is love-making becoming such a "villainous" thing that it's beneath the notice of a really good man?

Every man is entitled to his Indian Summer fling—provided he doesn't mistake it for the return of Spring.

The age of discretion is that placid point at which a woman can control her temper, resist an exciting flirtation, or refuse a sweet just by remembering that such things are "bad for her."

SECTION 3.

Echinoderms; Natures Pentagonal Experiment.

MOST of the animals that we have considered so far bear a certain very crude resemblence to ourselves in the way their bodies are laid out.

But with the phylum Echinodermata things are different; with a few exceptions they do not know front and back, right and left. They are not bilaterally symmetrical, as we are. They do not "look before and after." One cannot imagine oneself a starfish or a sea-urchin however hard one exerts one's mind.

A starfish consists of a number of arms—usually five—radiating out from a central disc—but the so-called "arm" of a starfish is no more like our own arms than a lobster's "liver" is like our livers—indeed, hollow as it is and containing viscera, it is more like a belly than an arm.

Its mouth is exactly in the middle of that disc, on the lower side, on which it crawls; its anus is in the middle of the upper surface.

Its mouth opens into a loose, baggy stomach; that leads into a short intestine; from the intestine ten fingers run off, two into each arm—branches not unlike the liver of a lobster, for the fine food-particles go into them to be digested and absorbed.

If we turned a starfish on to its back we should notice five broad grooves radiating away from its mouth, and one running along the whole length of each arm; in each groove there is a serried double or quadruple row of little tubes that end in suckers.

The tubes are muscular. They can be stretched out or drawn into the grooves or waved from
